ITALIAN ARMY FIGHTS WAY TO FIUME BORDER

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TRIESTE, Dec. 26.—Italian regulars have reached the factories on the edge of Fiume and are closing in gradually on the D'Annunzio stronghold. It is expected Fiume will be taken this evening or tomorrow.

Gen. Caviglia on Friday ordered occupation of advanced positions around Fiume in consequence of incidents and the threatening attitude taken by D'Annunzio legionnaires. The poet's soldiers resisted the advance troops, who lost five men killed and thirty wounded.

FLYING FIELD CAPTURED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

UDINE (Italy) Dec. 24.—Caviglia's regular Italian forces advanced two kilometers today without firing a shot in a combined land and naval movement to close in on Gabriele d'Annunzio, Fiume insurgent leader, whose men retired. The Fiume triangle is cut off and the poet's aviation field at Grobnico captured.

The plan of Gen. Caviglia is gradually to tighten his grip on Fiume until D'Annunzio is helpless. His men advanced today from the north, cutting off the top of the triangle of which Fiume is formed and occupied Grobnico, Santa Croce and San Mattia. The D'Annunzio troops evacuated these points without resistance. At points from the shore northward, the D'Annunzio line gave way and the regulars advanced half a kilometer. It was a simultaneous movement.

ALPINI ADVANCE.

The movement from Udine was effected by an overwhelming body of troops which advanced on the thinly-held line of D'Annunzio's legionaries. The advance was accomplished principally by Alpini, who occupied the highland covering the rugged territory back of Fiume, including two ranges of hills. Toward the sea the regulars' line is held by Royal Guards and carbineers.

While the troops advanced on the hilly ground overlooking the sea, the Italian fleet kept silent guard in Fiume Bay.

It is reported orders to the Italian regulars are not to fire unless provoked. D'Annunzio's spokesmen say he has ordered his officers not to fire until he orders.

SOCIALISTS BESIEGED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BOLOGNA (Italy) Dec. 24.—Reports from Farrara today state that the Socialist Deputy, Marangoni, was besieged by Nationalists in Este Castle. The Socialist Mayor of Farrara, Prof. Morgiantino, and Aldermen Savonuzzi and Ferretti went to his rescue, but were attacked by a crowd, which cried: "Shame! Do not dare appear in public! Do not provoke us."

Alderman Savonuzzi was beaten with a club, while Alderman Ferretti had his beard pulled and was spat upon. They were rescued by carabineers.

KERENSKY ALLEGES PLOT BY HUN MONARCHISTS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—A plot to restore the monarchy in Germany and Russia and re-establish the former Austro-Hungarian empire is charged in a statement made public by Alexander Kerensky, former Russian Premier, and a group of his political friends. The statement was made public by Kerensky in Volia Rossi, a paper published by him and his friends in Prague.

It is the purpose of the conspirators, according to the statement, to annul the Treaty of Versailles and all peace treaties arising out of the war. The conspiracy, it is charged, is headed by Gen. Ludendorff and, according to the charge, is to be carried out some time between spring and fall of 1921.

The text of the statement containing the charges reached this city. Embodied in the proposal is a copy of the full text of a memorandum submitted to his fellow-conspirators by the German Col. Bauers, chief aid to Ludendorff, in the plot, outlining the general plan of the conspiracy and the organization and methods devised for its execution.

HORTHY IS INVOLVED.

One of the chief figures in the plot is Admiral Horthy, regent of Hungary, who, according to the charges, recently supplied 25,000,000 marks as initial contribution to help finance the scheme. The money was handed over by Horthy to Gen. Biskupski, a leading figure of the conspiracy. The general lines of the plot are given as follows:

The countries represented in the plot are Germany, Austria, Russia, Ukraina, White Russia, Bulgaria and Turkey. Hungary is not to participate directly in the execution of the plot but is to close her frontiers the moment the blow is struck and is to remain in readiness for any emergency.

PLAN PRESS BUREAU.

Organizations are to be maintained in all the aforementioned countries. A general executive committee is to be elected and grand headquarters maintained in a place to be designated by Hungary. The headquarters is to consist of one representative from each group concerned. A press bureau is to be established. Gen. Ludendorff is to be in charge of headquarters. Special departments are to be entrusted with the particular phases of the operations. The latter is to be financed by the White Russian government. A money printing plant, managed and financed by White Russians and Germans, is to

SURPLUS STOCK IS DEPLETED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Retail and wholesale merchants and manufacturers, basing their estimate on business done during the Christmas holidays, today predicted that the next year would be one of prosperity.

They asserted that surplus stocks everywhere were nearing depletion; that the public, encouraged by lower prices, was buying again, and that purchasing agents would soon come to the city eager to obtain new supplies for spring and summer trade.

"Judged by our Christmas trade, the prospects for the immediate future are exceedingly bright," said I. D. Levy, president of Oppenheim, Collins & Co. "We feel there is every reason to be optimistic. It is a healthful sign that prices are coming down in a sane fashion. This is good for the merchants and for the public."

EXPECTS PROSPERITY.

Horace Saks, president of Saks & Co., thinks prices have become fairly well established and that if buyers and sellers both keep their heads the country is in for a year of great prosperity. So far as his own business is concerned, this year's Christmas sales have exceeded by a large margin those of last year and indicate, he says, that the public has begun to realize that prices generally have touched bottom.

Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, says there is every reason for being rationally optimistic that all underlying conditions in this country are good and that these sooner or later determine the trend.

"There is every reason to believe that we have touched bottom in the process of liquidation and deflation," Mr. Sisson says, "and there is also every assurance that we will have a sane and orderly administration of our public affairs as the result of the national election."

John Slater, president of J. and J. Slater, shoe merchants, says there are many signs of a prosperous year for everyone. With the Christmas sales larger than ever before in the history of his company, Mr. Slater believes the last two weeks have given definite indications that good times are coming back.

Textiles, including cotton, silks and velvets, will be in unprecedented demand within a few months, according to H. R. Mallinson, president of Mallinson & Co., silk merchants. He declared the demand for silks now was three times greater than the supply.

"Never was there a time when pessimistic talk was more inappropriate than the present," said Mr. Mallinson. "Business can never be good when everybody is preaching depression. Yet, in spite of all the gloomy talk we have heard in the last six months, the country is forging ahead to the greatest era of prosperity in its history. It can't be stopped. January, February and March will find New York crowded with buyers eager to replenish the stocks which are now being fast depleted."

SUPREMACY OF PACIFIC SEEN AS WORLD ISSUE.

German Critic Declares United States 'Engaged in Struggle With Japan to Control Trade With Orient.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—Writing in the semiofficial Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, Vice-Admiral Hollweg compares the strength of the American and Japanese fleets, the new building program and the chances for war between the two countries.

"Not only the general reciprocal racial antipathy and the trade competitions in the Pacific create possibilities of conflict," says Admiral Hollweg, "but far more important is the American navigation bill of June, 1920, which provides that none but American ships can bear the traffic between the islands belonging to America and the American continent.

"Other paragraphs of the Jones bill grant advantages to American navigation at the expense of other countries. Japan being on the edge of the Pacific is strongly interested and feels very bitter over the matter. The Tokio press speaks of the necessity of reprisals.

"America is openly and secretly opposed to Japan's obtaining too great an influence in Asia, especially in China."

Admiral Hollweg then discusses the Sakhalin Island controversy and the quest for oil, inasmuch as Japan's new warships are oil burners. He mentions the Japanese protest against the Vanderlip commercial deal and Baron Goto's protest against the California land law.

DON'T TRUST TO LEAGUE.

"The League of Nations," he continues, "meets in Geneva, but both America and Japan trust their own power more than the League's arbitration. Both countries are rushing big naval programs. Both nations are fighting in a silent, tough battle for the supremacy of the Pacific.

"It seems very probable that there will be no war between America and Japan; war now would be a parody on the League of Nations and there are other reasons why Japan might want to keep up peace appearances. Everything depends on England whose alliance with Japan has been extended to July, 1921, but the English press and the Far West press always insists this alliance would never cause a conflict between the two Anglo-Saxon powers.

"England has too many preoccupations nowadays to take an active part in an Asiatic Japanese venture. Besides, the two rival nations have not yet completed their armament —this certainly is an argument in favor of peace for a little while.

"No one can tell when things will break, and if they will break. The problem of the Far East will not be solved easily and completely. Should England be compelled to act in this matter, then she will certainly act only for her own advantage."

MASKED MEN WRECK CORK NEWSPAPER.

Raiders Say They Were Acting Under Orders from Irish Republic.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CORK, Dec. 26.—Thirty armed and masked raiders invaded the offices of the Cork Examiner Christmas Eve, broke the machinery, wrecked parts of the building with explosives and set fire to the property. They escaped. The fire was extinguished, but the other damage was extensive.

The raiders, who wore civilian clothing, said they were acting under "orders of the Irish republic." They forced their way through the front entrance, carrying sledge hammers, with which they smashed two large printing presses. Cutting the telephone wires, they proceeded to place bombs and gelagnite under the machines, some of which were blown to pieces.

It was believed the attack was caused by the attitude of the Examiner on the recent pastoral letter of the Bishop of Cork.

DUBLIN, Dec. 26.—Two civilians and one soldier were wounded in disturbances Christmas.

Two men who fired on the Crown forces today at Tralee were shot dead by the military when they tried to escape. They had revolvers and dumdum bullets.

TO GIVE VIEWS ON LAND LAW.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, Dec. 26.—E. W. Frazar and J. B. Geary have departed for the United States to place the views of Americans in Tokio and Yokohama concerning the California land question before influential circles there.

NEW JAPANESE PACT NEAR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The negotiations between Roland S. Morris, American Ambassador to Japan, and Baron Shidehara, Japanese Ambassador to the United States, are nearing completion, and if their report is accepted by the State Department and the Japanese Foreign Office, as it is expected to be, it will be sent to the public printer and submitted to the Senate for its consideration with the amendment to the existing commercial treaty with Japan, which it recommends.

The treaty amendment comprises one new clause which would guarantee to Japanese subjects in the United States equal civil rights with the nationals of all the other countries.

The necessary corrollary is a new gentlemen's agreement, which would exclude absolutely the emigration of Japanese labor to the United States and to Hawaii, but would admit it to the Philippine Islands.

DOESN'T ASK CITIZENSHIP.

Japan does not ask the right of naturalization for its subjects. It is pointed out by persons acquainted with the negotiations that Japan could not properly request the alienization of her own subjects.

The report is voluminous, covering Japanese-American relations for a period of twenty-eight years, and is an earnest effort to discover and solve the problems which in more recent years have tended to create a breach of understanding between the two countries.

If the proposed new clause is added to the existing treaty, the California alien land ownership laws would be vitiated, insofar as they concerned Japanese subjects, but that State would not be prevented by new legislation from excluding all orientals from land ownership, if it should follow the example set by British Colonial Legislation. Such legislation prohibits all aliens from owning land, avoiding thereby discrimination against particular aliens.

ABSOLUTE EXCLUSION.

The existing gentlemen's agreement has never been reduced to writing and consists in addition to the original agreement of a series of interpretations and amendments. The proposed agreement would nullify provisions in the existing agreement permitting Japanese immigrants already admitted to bring their wives and members of their families into the country and establish absolutely prohibition of Japanese immigration. Scholars students, travelers, merchants, etc., would not be prevented from entering the United States.

STRIKE MAY AID KAISER

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—A new strike wave is rising in Germany. Railroad employees have issued an eleventh-hour warning that their moderate wage demands should be met before billions of marks in damages are incurred by disregarding them. Many Socialist leaders say they fear a general strike would sweep the old regime back into power and wipe out all the liberal gains made since the abdication of the Kaiser.

Meanwhile the electrical workers of Berlin, whose walkout recently paralyzed the German capital for a week, are again threatening to strike unless thirty of their union comrades who were dismissed for sabotage are reinstated immediately.

RELIEF NOT ENOUGH.

The postal and telegraph employees have served notice that the slight relief voted by the Reichstag in lieu of a salary increase is not sufficient and that their strike has only been postponed. There is general dissatisfaction over the postponement among the rank and file of the employees, a dissatisfaction which is not allayed by the payment to them of their January salaries this week.

At the same time the Frankfort unions are criticising the Berlin leaders and served notice they would not observe union discipline after January 10. The postoffice, telegraph and railway workers have always been included in the so-called "Kava" group of organized German labor. In the last election most of them voted the clerical and Populist tickets, sharing the general belief, which made strong gains by the Right possible, that a ministry without Socialists in it would restore normal conditions.

But the Cabinet, in the face of the present deficit, estimated at about a 100,000,000,000 marks, adopted a policy of economy which shuts out any increase of salary to government employees. The final stand of the Cabinet in this regard was taken last week in anticipation of the Brussels conference. "If you can raise salaries, you can pay larger annuities," was what the Germans feared the Entente experts would say, an important member of the Cabinet explained to The Times' correspondent here today.

Salaries paid to railroad workers average about 75 per cent of the 19,000 marks a year fixed by the statistical authorities as the minimum amount needed to support a family here now. Relief granted by the Reichstag amounts to a maximum increase of forty-five marks a month.

COMMUNISTS AGITATE.

Communist strike agitation has been constant for the last few weeks and all pressure is being brought to bear by the Moscow government on the leaders of the new Third International to force the issue in Germany this coming week. Despite this, however, labor here is quieter politically and production per hour has increased, while the danger of political strikes of the scope of those of two years ago is thought impossible.

However, it is feared that new strikes with purely economic aims and begun by the "kava" unions would give the Communists the opportunity they want to whip up a class conflict here.

The "kava" is now stronger and better organized than at any time since the revolution and the Orgesch and the Escherich societies have 1,000,000 members.

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Dec. 26.—The death of Ernesto Ramirez, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eduardo Ramirez, early yesterday, was attributed to tetanus produced by injury to the child's hand inflicted by a cap pistol, a toy with which he was celebrating Christmas.

MANY PLAN TO DEVELOP ELECTRICITY.

Permits Under Federal Act Involve Many Millions of Horsepower.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Applications for permits looking toward development of more than 12,000,000 horsepower, sufficient to supply many cities the size of Chicago, had been filed under the Federal Water Power Act with the Federal Power Commission up to December 15, the commission announced today.

Consummation of the plans, the commission estimates, will advance water development by more than 40 per cent and will involve an investment of $1,200,000,000.

The projects range from a small two-horsepower plant for a colony of summer cottagers in the Wyoming to the storage of the waters of the Upper Colorado and its tributaries in a huge reservoir and the development of more than 3,000,000 horsepower by the utilization of the water in a drop of 2600 feet.

Forty-seven States, in addition to Alaska and the District of Columbia, are represented in the twelve applications. California leads in the number with twenty-five; New York is second with thirteen; Washington third with twelve. Arizona had six projects.

GERMAN INDUSTRY SUFFERS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HAMBURG, Dec. 26.—Germany's foreign trade relations suffered disastrously during 1920, the Hamburg Chamber of Commerce says in its annual report. Without revision of the Versailles Treaty, the chamber says, it will be impossible for Germany to reach her normal economic and political condition.

"There are some signs of the beginning of better conditions in the form of increased inclination to buy and the desire for better production results," it adds. "There is a distinct movement toward improvement of German economical conditions by the overstocking of foreign markets with food and raw stuffs."

The report advises against accepting foreign credits by the Germans, unless stipulations for paying back the loans are clearly prepared."

It is believed that the United States is in a remarkable position for the development of its world trade and the Chamber thinks that the Hamburg-American Line and German shipping arrangements have placed Germany in a position to obtain a share of the expanding trade.

COMMERCE HALTED.

German commerce with the South American countries is reported virtually halted. Mexico's policy of offering control of foreign trade is regarded as responsible for part of the slump in German business there, while it says has largely been taken away by the United States. The effects of the American blacklist on German goods is seen in the neutral countries of South America, where, according to the report, German houses are finding it almost impossible to resume business. German goods, which are described as too high priced, are declared to have adversely affected trade, particularly in Colombia, but it is now reported that Germans had filled large orders in Colombia, but it is now reported German business there has fallen off down. Trade with Guatemala has suffered. In Venezuela, American, English and Dutch goods are said to have grown in favor. Rather active business has been opened with Ecuador and Peru, but there is little commerce with Chile. Stores fabricated wares from Germany, the United States and Japan have replaced similar goods from Germany.

Export of German iron and hardware to Argentina is developing, while Argentine shipments to Germany are restricted to food. German steamers are sailing direct to Argentina and Uruguay.

The United States, adds the report, has improved its trade with Brazil to the detriment of British and German trade. Home industries

WILL REJECT SALES TAX.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Sentiment in the Ways and Means Committee of the House, following the hearings of the last fortnight, indicates the following line of action on tax revision in the next Congress:

Repeal of the excess profits taxes.

Increase in present 10 per cent tax on corporation net earnings and a moderate, possibly graduated tax on undistributed earnings.

No increase in normal taxes on individual incomes but a reduction of surtaxes on large incomes and increased amount of income exempted from taxation.

New excise taxes and increase in the tax on such articles as tobacco.

There will be no refunding operations during the coming year. Congress will make evident its determination that the burden of the war debt shall be passed along to future generations and that the floating debt shall not be retired from the proceeds of taxation as rapidly as contemplated by the Treasury Department simply by keeping the revenues down to so low a point that no funds will be available for this purpose. Extensive refunding operations will be undertaken in 1923 when the Victory notes mature, the Republican program being to extend the payment of the war debt over a period of from forty to sixty years instead of paying it up in twenty-five years as contemplated by the Secretary of the Treasury.

"MONK" EASTMAN KILLED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—"Monk" Eastman, once leader of a notorious gang that terrorized the lower East Side, a convicted felon, but restored to citizenship as a reward for heroism in the war, was slain today by some one unknown.

Eastman's body, bearing five bullet wounds, was found by a policeman in a street. Near by lay a revolver with five empty shells.

In the dead man's pockets were $140, a watch and chain, and a Christmas card. The police say they believe the killing was the result of a vendetta.

Eastman, whose right name was William Delaney, was the son of wealthy parents. He chose as his companions the gangsters of the one time "toughest" district in New York near Fourteenth street and Third avenue.

A dozen years ago the "Monk" Eastman gang was composed of gunmen, burglars and drug addicts, and the police claimed to have traced a score of murder mysteries to its zone of operation. Their leader, however, served terms for lesser crimes.

Eastman last appeared on police records in 1915, when he was sentenced to two years in prison, after pleading guilty to robbery. On his release in October, 1917, he enlisted in the Army in the One Hundred and Sixth Infantry of the Twenty-seventh Division. He then was 45 years old.

After the war he was honorably discharged, but lacked the rights of citizenship, because he had been convicted of a felony. Gov. Smith, in restoring the man's civic status, asked for Eastman's war record. The letter of Lieut. J. K. Kerrigan read:

"During the attack on Vierstaat Ridge Eastman was wounded and taken to a casualty clearing station. He remainded only three days, for upon hearing that the regiment expected to go into the line again, he escaped, joined his company and was in action throughout the Hindenburg line show. His conduct was exemplary and he has never been reported for absence without leave or any other offense."

ANXIOUS TO HEAR FROM CAMINETTI.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The Senate Committee on Immigration which will have hearings next month on the subject of shutting off of immigration, including the Johnson bill to restrict the entrance of aliens for a year, will place considerable stress on information which Commissioner-General of Immigration Caminetti lays before it. Mr. Caminetti has been touring Europe investigating the reports that a flood of immigration is imminent. He presumably will be able to give the committee the facts and Senator Colt, chairman, and other committee members, are anxious to hear what he has to say.

Senator Colt is strongly of the opinion that unless there is a substantial basis for the reports of a flood of immigration the emergency bill to cut off immigrants ought not be put through. Several others are of the same opinion.

HAITI NEEDS MANY THINGS.

Lacks Honest Courts, Good Roads, Banks, Sanitation.

Unchecked Misery Stalks Through Entire Nation.

PORT AU PRINCE (Haiti) Dec. 26.—All Haiti needs to make it a fine country is roads, more clothes, an anticruelty society, honest courts, vaccination, monogamy, diet kitchens, primary education, baths, schools for artisans, Red Cross, sewers, a land tax, systematic agriculture, plumbing, abolition of export duties, savings banks, day nurseries, garbage incinerators and a school of common civility for American marines.

If you take an hour's walk in any village in any one of the commercial ports on the north and west coasts of the island, or in this capital city of the republic, you probably will discover twenty more opportunities to do good to a people which, considering the chances it has had, is in many conspicuous aspects the most benighted people on the planet.

CHANGES TELL STORY.

Bad, beautiful, backward Haiti! It is like the light on its hills—that light so subtle and so austere; now capricious, now sinister, now of the loveliness of a rose. Then the swift darkness of the tropic night descends and blackness envelopes all. The changes of that twilight hour tell the story of a century.

Haiti needs almost everything that nations which have attained a respectable degree of culture have come to take as matters of course, and the supreme tragedy among its many tragic needs is that it is neither conscious of its needs nor ashamed of the deficiencies and defects which they imply.

NO LIBERTY, EQUALITY.

If you start talking can't about Haiti you are lost. If you start talking liberty, egalite, et fraternite as applied doctrines to this republic those national catch words of cheer, like its official language and its drawing-room department, are taken from the French, then, also, you are lost.

Liberty? From the naked wharfmen, the market woman and the bandits in the hills, to the Minister of state, they are the slaves of their own volcanic passions, and though they can be exquisitely suave, the volcano may erupt at any moment.

PEOPLE VOICELESS.

Equality? The population of the Haitian, one-third of this superb island, comprises 2,000,000 inarticulate beings without means of civic expression and without thoughts to express—only miseries. This inarticulate mass of submerged countryside, village and town people, is ruled—not ruled by 10,000 or 20,000 slick persons of pure African and Afro-French blood.

With few exceptions and among those exceptions is the present nominal chief of state and certain minors around him—this governing class feels no sense of responsibility for the well being, the advancement or the education of the Haitian mass. It is not accustomed to think or to speak for this mass. There is no conscious brutality in this attitude. There simply is no conception of the responsibility. The Haitian gentry feels no more active or fruitful sense of duty or pity toward the Haitian peasant than the Haitian peasant in his turn feels pity for the beast of burden he so dreadfully misuses.

AMERICANS INDIFFERENT.

Nor do certain of the American planters and merchants who are making or trying to make fortunes out of the island. In the face of native mendacity and thievishness they soon become cynical in their estimate of and indifferent in their attitude toward this people which so bitterly needs the helping hand.

Too often officials and officers of the American occupation drift into the same views and attitude, and far, far too often, their wives share it. One subject of light raillery at dinner parties just now is the efforts of an earnest, energetic, hoping woman of the official family to set going in Haiti a great engine of amelioration which has proved its usefulness the wide world over. Men and women cheerfully give her their $5 bills for the cause, but they smile, sometimes wearily, sometimes sarcastically, at her struggle. Perhaps they know best, but it has made me heartsick to hear the joking at dinner parties about this. As for the woman in question her husband told me she had worked herself nearly sick amid this ghastly heat.

OUTS OPPOSE INS.

Fraternity? The kind of fraternity that flourishes from Cape Haitien in the north to the Ile de la Beata (pretty name) in the south is the fraternity between the outs trying to get in. The fraternity between the ins trying to stay in is not so stable a matter. That statement is not based solely on my fortnight's observation of inter-Haitian dissensions and acrimonies, nor solely upon what American official observers who have been here for five years have told me. In the withering survey of the Haitian political character which Charles Moravia, former Haitian Minister to the United States, made before the Haitian Congress in 1915, when he was pleading for good will toward the American occupation are these sentences:

"The Americans are here as the result of our own fault. They have come, in fact, to our rescue; to protect us against ourselves; against our wild folly; our fratricidal and sanguinary rage which incites us to cut each others' throats and to demolish with our own unpatriotic hands, the house built by our forefathers."

NEEDS FIRM HAND.

This Haitian refused to sentimentalize about his country because he knows the peril of sentimentality in considering Haitian affairs. The Haitian has not realized fraternity in his national life, because he is deficient in the sense of personal brotherhood.

"Sometimes I feel that the devoted, tactful, gentle, uncomplaining band of teaching brothers from France who are instructing hundreds of the young of this country in morals and manners and letters are almost the only civilizers down here with any deep sense of human brotherhood in their hearts and sometimes I think that a stalwart American-manned branch of the Salvation Army would do the Haitian people more spiritual and material good than an army of occupation can. Haiti needs a firm hand, but it also needs somebody with a heart."

After much explaining, Rickenbacker convinced the police that he was the real Eddie Rickenbacker and he finally was released.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 26.—Dr. L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota and Dr. E. O. Sisson, president of the University of Montana, will be among the speakers at the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Utah Educational Association, which will open a two-day session here Tuesday.

NO STRIKE IN COPPER MINES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MIAMI (Ariz.) Dec. 26.—Though a protest was made over a cut in mine wages, effective January 1, nothing is to be done by the miners. Back of the refusal to countenance a strike is the knowledge that a general shut-down of the mines would follow. Most of the miners are married and satisfied to retain employment even at lowered wages.

Anastacio and Pedro de la Riva, late arrivals from Santa Ana, Cal., are under arrest here on complaint of the Livesey Garage of Santa Ana, which charged that the lads made a first payment on two motorcycles and a tent and then left the State. The father of the boys has offered to settle the claims, and this offer has been forwarded to Santa Ana.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Dec. 26.—Flagstaff has celebrated the 25th anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Cyprian Valre, who for twenty years has been in charge of the Flagstaff parish.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 26.—Robert Luis Soto, aged 1 year, son of a machinist in the Southern Pacific shops, was on the running board of his father's auto and fell as the machine started. The child was crushed to death under the wheels.

WILLIAMS (Ariz.) Dec. 26.—According to Superintendent Cureton, 90 per cent of the school children of Williams have suffered in an epidemic of mumps that has swept the town. The scourge has about completed its round and school work is becoming normal again.

Would Promote Officers Who Kill Bandits.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Announcement that he would introduce a plan at Wednesday's City Council meeting to make immediate promotion the reward for every patrolman or sergeant who kills a burglar or holdup man in the act of committing a crime, was made last night by Alderman J. O. Koerner.

"I believe it is what the force needs," he said, "although it may seem a little coldblooded. Chief Fitzmorris has given it his approval.

"That some incentive is needed to quicken the trigger fingers of the police force is proved by events of the last few weeks," he said. "Three policemen have been shot and killed in that period."

HOLIDAY MAIL IN CHICAGO IS HEAVY.

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—More than 11,000 tons of letters and packages passed through the Chicago postoffice during the eleven days preceding Christmas, although this year's volume of mail was less than last year, postoffice officials announced tonight.

In the first-class mail department, however, more letters were sent than in any previous Christmas.

FAILURE OF MEXICO TO ACT DELAYS CANAL ZONE FLIGHT.

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 26.—Failure of the Mexican government to grant permission, at least up to today, for the United States government to use Lower California and West Coast Mexican ports as fuel bases for the aircraft squadron which is scheduled to attempt a flight from San Diego to Balboa, Canal Zone, may result in delaying the flight, set to start Tuesday morning.

The fuel steamer Kanawha, which was to have sailed this morning for San Bartolme Bay, the first stopping place set for the giant seaplanes, did not leave port. Eagle boat No. 49 and the fuel steamer Cuyama have been scheduled to sail tomorrow for patrol and fuel stations on the lower coast, but neither will go, Navy officers said today, until favorable word is received from Washington relative to the attitude of the Mexican government.

Capt. Harry Mustin, Pacific air force commander, said today that the departure of the seaplanes would be set, delayed from day to day if necessary, while word from Mexico City is being awaited.

Extraordinary precautions are being taken to prevent mishaps to the seaplane pilots and crews, as officers generally admit that the proposed flight is one of the most dangerous ever planned.

SEEK TREASURE IN HONEY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN MARCOS (Tex.) Dec. 26.—Several of the older settlers of this section have corroborated the statements of G. D. Hooper of Fort Worth that the cave in which honey amounting to probably $1,000,000 in value is stored is situated on the Blanco River, within a few miles of San Marcos.

The story of the alleged existence of this wonderful cave has gained such widespread circulation that an expedition has been organized in the North to make a search for the big store of wealth, with the view of capitalizing the honey. According to the story, which has been handed down for nearly three-quarters of a century, this cave is of enormous size and is practically filled with sweet honey that was and is still being placed there by wild bees.

LED NEAR CAVE.

Hooper, who says he is 71 years old, asserts that he lived within a 1000 yards of the cave for seventeen years. In discussing the cave and its store of honey, he said:

"I've figured every way in the world to get the honey out of that cave. When I was 17 years old, mien and some of the boys in that country drilled the holes that others claim to have seen there. I can show where the bees go in and come out."

He then described the entrance to the cave as being situated 175 feet from the top of the ground. He stated that the cave is fifteen miles northwest of San Marcos and four and one-half miles east of Wimberly.

"That's a mighty rough country up there, the roughest in the world I reckon," he added. "And I doubt if anybody but a feller who has lived there a good part of his life could locate the spot."

TELLS OF ATTEMPT.

Hooper said that in 1866 when he first moved to Hays county, the honey cave was owned by Jim Wrenn, who was Sheriff of the county. The aged Texan told of the attempt in 1866 to gain entrance to the honey cave.

"I reckon all the fellers that helped me drill them holes and blast the rock above the cave are dead. So far as I know they are. There was old E. B. Turner, the only feller that ever went in the cave. We was just boys and he was a daring sort, so we lowered a bucket and let him down to the mouth of the cave. He took a bucket and brought it up full of the prettiest honey you ever seen.

"He was stung so bad by the bees that he couldn't go far into the cave. But he said it was the prettiest sight in there that he had ever seen in his life. With his lantern he looked way back in the cave, and as far as he could see there was honey dripping from honeycomb clinging to the sides and top of the cave. Turner said he couldn't tell where the cave ended. He couldn't way down there very long on account of the bees, and nobody else ever had nerve enough to go down."

INDIANS KNEW PLACE.

Recalling the stories told by settlers older than he, Hooper said that Capt. Billy Pitts of Austin had told him that the bees were working in that cave in 1846. He said that an Indian first showed the cave to "Uncle Billy" Pitts.

"Now, if I ain't tellin' the truth I'd just like for somebody to ask me to go with them and I'll prove to 'em that I know exactly where this cave is. Why, I lived right there. And I seen that cave every day of my life for seventeen years. I'd like mighty well to see something made out of that honey cave, for myself. I'd as soon have an interest in that cave as to have royalty in an oil well, if a smart man gets hold of it and finds a way to get the honey out."

Hooper was deputy sheriff of Grayson county for a number of years.

Suspect Diaz is Engaged in Plot Against Mexico.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 26.—Felix Diaz, one-time revolutionary leader, who, after his capture in the State of Vera Cruz, was deported to Cuba, has arrived in Guatemala and is said to be contemplating aggression against the Mexican government, according to reports received last night.

Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of the late President Carranza, is known to be in Guatemala. In connection with Aguilar's movements, the war office here has several times announced it was watching him.

Caruso Again Ill, Suffering From Pleurisy.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Enrico Caruso, tenor, is suffering from an attack of pleurisy, it was announced tonight. He is under the care of five physicians, who said that the attack is of a painful, though not serious, character, and will necessitate his being confined for a period.

Bruno Zirato, the tenor's secretary, declared Caruso complained of a sharp pain in his side on Christmas and was restless that night. He was reported resting easier tonight and one of his physicians expressed the opinion that, barring unforeseen complications, he could return to the stage in two or three weeks.

Caruso was slightly injured two weeks ago in a fall and a few days later burst a small blood vessel in his throat while singing.

Paris Champagne Bottles Wearing Service Stripes

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Champagne bottles wearing service stripes appeared at the Christmas Eve celebration in the restaurants and cafes. The champagne is marketed by a firm whose cellars are at Rheims and on each label is marked a chevron for every six months the bottle was in a cellar during the German bombardment of the French city.

The 1914 vintage carries seven service stripes, marking the period between Sept. 4, 1914, when Rheims was first under fire, until Oct. 4, 1918, when Americans compelled the Germans to evacuate the district.

It is estimated there were 1,000,000 bottles of champagne in Rheims during the war.

CRIMES OF SUNDAY STARTLE NEW YORK.

SUSPECTED LEADER OF CRIMINAL BAND UNDER HEAVY BAIL IN NEW YORK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—The murder of "Monk" Eastman, once notorious gang leader, and the holding in $100,000 bail of George L. King, believed to be leader of a criminal band of nation-wide activity, were features today in New York's crime situation.

King was arraigned on a charge of assault and robbery.

He was said to have confessed he directed the hold-up and robbery of Henry Fettel, wealthy retired real estate operator in Brooklyn. Dist.-Atty. Lewis said he had information King is wanted for offenses committed in California, and other States. He is said to have served a seven years' prison sentence for conviction of forgery in California.

King ingratiates himself, the police said, with wealthy persons, then informs accomplices, who carry out the job.

Five men charged with the assault and robbery late Christmas night of James Kay, Brooklyn cafe owner, were held in $25,000 bail each, when arraigned today.

CROSSING ACCIDENT CAUSES ONE DEATH.

MOTHER AND SON OF VICTIM ARE SERIOUSLY HURT BUT MAY RECOVER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, Dec. 26.—Thomas Hayes of Stockton, whose automobile was hit at the Jensen-street crossing at Calwa near here, Christmas day, by Southern Pacific northbound passenger train No. 51, died this morning at Burnett Sanatorium as the result of his injuries.

Hayes, with his wife and two sons, had come to Fresno to spend the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Owen Hayes and his brother, O. T. Hayes.

The mother of the dead man and his son, Thomas Hayes, Jr., were reported tonight as being still semi-conscious, but physicians held out hopes for their ultimate recovery.

ALLEGES PLOT BY MONARCHISTS

be established in Hungary. The central executive committee is to meet once a week to hear reports and discuss the situation in the respective countries. All the participants are to take an oath of secrecy, violation of which is punishable by death.

ORGANIZE SECRETLY.

The military forces utilized in carrying out the proposed counter-revolution are to be organized secretly and sufficient troops are to be mustered to prevent interference by the Entente and smash all resistance of the working classes. The German representatives in the conspiracy are to take charge of the general assembling of arms and ammunition. All purchases of arms and ammunition are to be made in Germany. All negotiations with regard to arms and ammunition are to be conducted by the Germans only, the other countries co-operating technically and otherwise in carrying out the plans devised by the Teutons.

The Hungarian government is to supply all needed quantities of grain, cattle, foodstuffs, wine, etc., for the commission of the conspirators. The transport of these is to be placed in the hands of private German-Hungarian firms, especially organized for the purpose and controlled by the central executive committee.

SOLDIERS AS EMIGRANTS.

The political aims of Germany and Hungary are to be determined immediately and those of the other countries concerned at a later date by the central executive committee. To prevent the dissolution of good German military bodies now in the process of disbandment and which are to be utilized in the conspiracy they are to be transported into Hungary under the guise of emigration, which is to be facilitated by a specially formed German-Hungarian society to be directed by the German and Hungarian representatives on the central executive committee.

With regard to military operations, at least in their initial stages, Col. Bauer's memorandum provides:

"The German troops are to be concentrated in Bavaria, ostensibly as civilians. The first blow is to be struck in Austria. To assist in the Austrian maneuver German troops are to be transported as civilians into that country at the proper moment with the assistance of the Orgesch, the secret Bavarian military society. Carinthia will put 5000 men at the disposal of German officers. These are to be concentrated with German troops at Steinmark.

TO MURDER DEMOCRATS.

The leaders of the Orgesch will take care of the Tyrol and will supply all the arms and munitions necessary for the operations in the province. At a given signal there is to be a night raid on the homes of all Social Democratic leaders in Austria. They are to be arrested and shot. Special attention is to be paid to the President and Cabinet Ministers of Austria to prevent their possible escape. The commandants of Carinthia and Salzburg are to take possession of both ends of the tunnel between the two countries to prevent the cutting off of Carinthia by any resistance.

Troops are to occupy Bruck-on-Mur and move together with Hungarian contingents on Vienna immediately upon the entrance of the Hungarian forces into Austrian territory. Should Czecho-Slovakia undertake any hostile movement against the conspirators she is to be attacked by Hungarian troops and by Prussians from Silesia.

In addition a movement for an uprising of Germans inhabiting certain parts of Czecho-Slovakia is to be carefully prepared. The uprising is to take place simultaneously with the advance of Hungarian and Prussian troops on Czecho-Slovakia. If necessary and at the proper moment the principal political leaders of Czecho-Slovakia are to be assassinated.

THIRD GANGSTER WILL FACE TRIAL.

JAMES CAREY ACCUSED OF BRUTAL ATTACKS ON GIRLS IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—The third criminal trial in the drama of alleged gang activities in San Francisco, which spread to Santa Rosa, with the resultant deaths of three peace officers and the triple lynching of their purported slayers, will open tomorrow when James Carey will be placed on trial for alleged participation in attacks on young women.

Carey is alleged to be the owner of the automobile which transported two girls and supposed members of the gang to a house in the Mission district where the girls said they were attacked.

Two pugilists, Edmond Murphy and Edward Kruvosky have been adjudged guilty by juries of charges of attacking the girls. Murphy's sentence has been stayed by motion for a new trial on which additional arguments will be heard Tuesday night. Kruvosky will be sentenced tomorrow.

An outgrowth of the alleged attacks on young women by gangsters came today in the arrest of two men, said to have been in charge of a cafe here, on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

The charges resulted from testimony at the Murphy and Kruvosky trial that the girls had been served with intoxicating liquor at the cafe, previous to being taken to the house where the attacks are said to have occurred.

FAILS IN ATTEMPT AT HAZARDOUS FLIGHT

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 26.—Another attempt to make the dangerous 2500-kilometer flight between Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro, which already has cost several lives was made yesterday by the Argentine aviator Miguel Hesarne, but he was forced to give up the trip when within 400 kilometers of Rio de Janeiro.

WASHINGTON NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Indicated tax revision by the next Congress includes repeal of the excess profits tax, rejection of the tax because of its unpopularity, increase in the 10 per cent tax on corporation earnings and a moderate tax on undistributed earnings, no increase in normal individual income taxes but a readjustment of surtaxes on large incomes and an increase in the exemptions, and excise taxes.

The railroads will not ask another rate advance, but will seek to increase earnings by economies, according to Thomas Downer, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

The negotiations between the American and Japanese ambassadors are nearing completion and their report, if accepted, will be sent to the Senate for consideration with the amendment to the commercial treaty between the United States and Japan, which it recommends.

Radical changes in the organization of the State Department have been recommended by Secretary Colby and will be put into effect if Congress makes the necessary appropriations.

WILL REJECT TAX ON SALES.

the excess profits tax will be a flat tax on net earnings of corporations plus a moderate tax on undistributed earnings in excess of strength among a number of influential members of the committee. Some have advocated the present normal tax of 10 per cent on corporation earnings and the elimination of the excess profits tax without any tax on undistributed earnings as a substitute. Others, including Representative Fordney, chairman of the committee, have inclined towards a flat tax of 15 or 16 per cent as a substitute for all taxes on corporation earnings. Still others have advocated only a tax on undistributed earnings and the payment of the normal tax on dividends from corporation stock by the holders of the stock instead of by the corporation itself as a present.

The objection to the first and second of the three other suggestions is that an advantage is given to the corporate form of organization by not taxing undistributed earnings, whereas, an individual or partnership is subject to taxation upon all earnings. Sentiment in the committee is opposed to the third suggestion, chiefly on the ground that sufficient revenue would not be obtained.

It has been estimated by the Treasury Department that a 16 per cent flat tax on net earnings of corporations would produce as much revenue as the present normal tax of 10 per cent plus the present excess profits tax.

In order, however, that the undistributed earnings may not escape taxation entirely, the probable outcome is that there will be both a flat tax and a tax on undistributed earnings. The present 10 per cent normal tax on corporation earnings probably will be increased, possibly to as much as 18 per cent, and a moderate tax on undistributed earnings added. A tax of 20 per cent on undistributed earnings has been under discussion.

NO INCREASE ON INCOMES.

There is not the slightest chance of any increase in the normal tax on incomes of individuals, apparently. Action of this sort would not be relished by the general public and the political effect would be injurious to the Republican part. There is considerable sentiment for an increase in the present exemptions of $1000 for single persons and $2000 for those who are married.

The present surtaxes on large incomes have been generally criticised. It is probable that the entire scale of surtaxes will be revised. If this is done there may be increases in the lower brackets of the surtax rates.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—Carl Rudolf Legien, president of the German Federation of Trades Unions and Socialist member of the Reichstag, died today.

Herr Legien returned from the International Trades Union Congress in London three weeks ago and attended the Reichstag sessions up to a few days before its adjournment for the holidays. He was 60 years of age.

He had been a member of the German Parliament since 1893. He was convinced that much of the labor radicalism in Germany was due to revolution can be traced to the food situation. He believed that once the German workingman discovered that the fatigue years he would regain his old-time love for work, law and order. He once said a Munich meal had contained real hops and malt there would have been no Bavarian soviet republic.

It was his opinion the prewar standard of cheap living in Germany would return.

Legien started in life as a journeyman wood and metal turner and he kept up the interest in his trade to the extent of maintaining a completely fitted out workshop in his house.

JAP-BRITISH PACT MENACE.

Appears to be Directed Against United States.

Demands Immediate Action by New Administration.

May Have to be Met by Creation of Great Navy.

BY THOMAS F. MILLARD.

[Mr. Millard was the unofficial adviser to the Chinese delegation at the peace conference at Versailles and at the League of Nations Assembly at Geneva. He is an American writer, has lived and traveled in China for twenty years and is considered to be one of the foremost authorities on Chinese affairs.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—The negotiations for the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance are profoundly important in the United States and China, for they indicate that at a time when promising efforts are under way to establish an entente of the English-speaking peoples on all world questions the British Foreign Office is secretly negotiating an alliance with an imperialistic Asiatic power which appears to be directed against the United States.

The policy of the British government, as indicated by such an alliance, inevitably will destroy sympathetic relations between England and the United States and will create a strong cause for dissension between them.

At present the Japanese-British alliance is directed at Russia and Germany. These nations, however, are no longer serious factors in the far eastern situation.

AIMED AT AMERICA.

If made effective it will destroy the traditional American-Pacific policy—the Hay doctrine.

The sinister character of such an agreement is well understood in China where the government and Chinese organizations recently protested against the renewal of the alliances.

The clause concerning Manchuria is recognized as a camouflage for British consent for Japan's usurpation while three of the points advanced by Japan are plainly meant to establish Japan permanently in Shantung.

The situation demands immediate attention by the administration in Washington. In view of the grave circumstances the American government would be justified in notifying the British government that such an alliance cannot be regarded but as menacing the United States.

The alliance is a direct danger, or even a threat to America and may have to be met by the creation of a naval power equal to that of Great Britain's and Japan's combined.

Those hoping the League of Nations can remedy discords must consider clause four of Japan's proposals which reveals that those powers are arranging to support each other in the League.

It is inaccurate to compare the alliance with the Monroe Doctrine for it is almost an exact antithesis of the United States position in America.

YOUTH BURNS SCHOOLS JUST FOR EXCITEMENT.

UNIONTOWN (Pa.) Dec. 26.—Albert Smith of Fair Hope, arrested in connection with the incendiary fires which have destroyed and damaged buildings in this region the last three months, has confessed that he started thirty of the fires in the Fayette City-Brownsville-Belle vernon sections, the State police announced last night.

They said he told them that he started the fires "just to get some excitement." Smith is 19 years old.

PARIS SOCIETY AIDS HEBREWS.

Protect Kinsmen from Frauds by Sharpers.

Many Emigrants Reach City Without Funds.

Friends in America Looked Up, Funds Cabled.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—The Little Ellis Island for Jewish emigrants which has been established by the Hebrew Sheltering Emigrant Aid Society at the highest point in Paris provides an interesting study for sociologists and also gives some idea of the character of the emigrants who are leaving Poland, Rumania and Ukrania by thousands to seek refuge from pogroms.

The Times correspondent was given an insight into the society's work this week by Jacques Chapira, formerly of New York, who is representing tens of thousands of Jewish citizens of the United States who are banded together to protect their less fortunate kinsmen from fraudis while they are journeying to America. Ninety per cent of the emigrants arrive here penniless, having sold their furniture and clothing in order to reach Paris, where help was promised them. Whole families often numbering seven and eight children, are arriving daily, the fathers burdened with rolls of dirty bedding which they are willing to throw in any corner in order to rest while awaiting westbound ships.

ASKS ABOUT RELATIVES.

On their arrival here Mr. Chapira questions them regarding their American relatives, registering each case separately. In the few cases where funds are not lacking, agents are provided to buy tickets and accompany the trains. They conduct the emigrants through the three-day process of medical examination, which rejects all who are mentally defective or who are suffering from diseases such as trachoma or tuberculosis.

FEW HAVE MONEY.

But the moneyed class is in the minority, and from the others come pitiful recitals of the woes which have resulted from the social chaos of Eastern Europe. Mr. Chapira says he rarely fails to find some friend or relative in the United States ready to provide funds for the voyage. In such instances he secures the cooperation of the cable and banking companies. Money orders are paid the emigrants in the society's shelter, where the police are always present to give protection from the hordes of ticket sharpers who have always considered Jewish emigrants their legitimate prey.

SAVES MANY GIRLS.

The shelter has already saved many orphan girls from the devastated areas of Poland from a worse fate. Only last week a girl of 17 arrived from Southern Poland without other clothing than a light shawl over a ragged dress and shoes from which her toes protruded. She had only the name of a distant cousin living in Cincinnati, but within forty-eight hours Mr. Chapira had received by cable funds sufficient to clothe and feed the girl, and sent her on her way to America.

The saddest class of all is made up of those from the Ukraine, where many families have been separated by the Red terror. They are easily picked out from among the hundreds of groups about the corners of the shelter by their drawn faces and their eyes, which seem to burn with the sorrow that they have seen.

TEAMS COMPETE TO GET RID OF PESTS.

SUNAPEE (N. H.) Dec. 26.—The farmers of this countryside have rid their lands and environs of a plague of animal menaces to next season's crops in a new manner. Calling the spirit of competition and the joy of the hunt to their aid they organized the men of the town into two teams of hunters. The result was a week's hunt that brought down a big bag of squirrels and other small game, gave the hunters a good time and for the farmers prepared the way for the next planting.

The clean-up of the countryside was accomplished on a competitive basis that allowed so many points for each animal killed. Squirrels, hedgehogs, foxes, skunks and rabbits each had their point values and each had many members in the aggregate bag that totaled $4,200 points at the week's close. Eli J. Gleason, the fish and game warden, was captain of the team that won with a count of 51,900 and under the conditions of the contest were given a dinner at which the animals killed were tossed into the pot to provide the feast.

FIND INFANT'S BODY NEAR RAILWAY TRACK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

REDDING, Dec. 26.—Railroad men today were questioned regarding a mystery surrounding the finding Friday at Anderson, near here, of the unclothed body of a dead infant lying beside the Southern Pacific Railroad track.

According to evidence obtained by the District Attorney's office the body was thrown from a southbound passenger train.

The World Today
BY BRUCE H. GRIGSBY,
Secretary and Trust Officer, Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank.

Bruce H. Grigsby
"Some years ago a patron placed a sum of money in trust with our company at the birth of his first grandchild, to be held and invested, and the income to be added to corpus until the grandchild became of age. The parents of the beneficiary were able to support and maintain their son in a manner suitable to his station in life. When the beneficiary reaches his majority he will have at his disposal, for business purposes if he so desires, considerable property. Of course, provision was made by the trust for a disposition of the property in case of the beneficiary's death before becoming of age.
"Under the will of an elderly gentleman, naming our company as executor, a substantial legacy was given to the company in trust to invest the same and pay the income to a life-long friend, who is now dependent upon this provision for comfortable maintenance. This beneficiary is living and by the thoughtful provision of his deceased friend, is not dependent upon the haphazard bounty of relatives or friends."

These two instances from the experience of The Fidelity Trust Company of Baltimore contain touches of human interest.
In the first case the future of the grand-child is assured. This naturally brings home to everyone thoughts of what they should do for their children's sake.
Provision should be made for their care and training in case you are suddenly taken away.
The future place of your children in the world will depend largely on the care and training which they receive.
You now see to it that they lack for nothing, but suppose you were suddenly lost to them?
How about their future then? You can protect the financial future of your children and save your heirs endless troubles and anxieties when they come into your estate by planning and settling NOW the disposition of your property.
We cordially invite you to consult the officers of our Trust Department without expense, about appointing this bank as your executor and trustee.
• • • • • • • • • •
What the principal in the second case recited did for his life-long friend, you can do for yours—or for yourself.
It is a wise policy, availed of by many, to guard against financial need in old age, by setting aside in a trust fund, a sufficient amount of money or securities to insure a comfortable income for life.
This form of trust is known as a voluntary or living trust. It may be drawn to last during the maker's life, and even after his death continue to provide for those dependent upon him; or the maker may retain the power of revoking it and be assured of the return of the principal should his wishes change. He can retain as much or as little control of such a fund as he desires.
• • • • • • • • • •
You are invited to come in and talk over with the writer or any of the officers of the Trust Department of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank the many angles of the service this bank stands ready to render. You will undoubtedly be astounded by the fact that you had not long ago given the matter the attention it deserves.

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Torzan, chief of the black hat band, has been arrested with all his followers. His arrest followed the sacking of a candy store and the depositing on the counter of this warning: "If you complain we will slit your gizzard. My band is irresistible.

[Signed] "TORZAN, Chief."

The exploits of the irresistibles have been many and well planned. When at last they arrested Torzan they discovered that he was a small boy 11 years old named Rene Fournel. All of the band were in their teens and the oldest was 15. In six months they had robbed twenty shops.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PENDLETON (Or.) Dec. 26.—James M. Coplen, aged forger, whose wealthy brother, John D. Coplen, of Los Angeles, recently declined to aid him to escape a jail sentence, is reported near death in the County Hospital. Coplen suffered a complete breakdown last night and the county physician, Dr. D. J. McPaul, ordered him removed from his cell to the hospital.

Officials do not believe that Coplen, who is almost 70 years old, will live through the attack. He is low in sprits, does not care to live and is suffering great mental agony as well as being in physical distress.

CELEBRATION ENDS IN MINER'S MURDER.

TONOPAH (Nev.) Dec. 26. — A Christmas celebration at the home of Joseph Lamich ended tragically early today with the death of George Vukelich, a miner, and the arrest of Lamich, another miner, on a charge of murder.

Lamich entertained eight guests at the celebration. Vukelich became intoxicated and was ejected from the house, the police declare. He turned and fired several shots at Lamich, who replied with five shots, all of which took effect, the police alleged. Both men are widely known in this section. Lamich denied he did the shooting.

MYSTERY SHROUDS SHOOTING AFFRAY.

EL PASO (Tex.) Dec. 26.—Miss Wilma Watts, 42, is in a dying condition in a hospital here, and C. L. Larkin, an oil operator of Livingston, Ark., is seriously wounded as the result of a mysterious shooting affray that occurred in the apartments of the woman late yesterday.

Miss Watts, according to the police, had invited Larkin to Christmas dinner. The shooting occurred before they had partaken of the food, which the officers found untouched on the table.

The police say they have discovered an eyewitness who is prepared to testify the woman shot Larkin and then turned the pistol on herself.

RESCUE
BATTERY TEMPERATURE CONTROLLER
Tested and approved for accuracy of operation by two leading battery manufacturers.
DO YOU visit your battery service station at regular intervals or do you go only when there's something wrong with your battery?
Every effort is made by battery manufacturers through their various service stations to give you the full life of your battery. But so much is left to guess work, during the time you drive, that often a battery is ruined before it is half worn out. And you don't even know it until it is too late.
Most batteries are prematurely ruined from overheating. Overheating can come from several causes—steady daylight driving—insufficient water in the battery—an uncharged battery subjected to a constant charge resulting from uninterrupted driving.
Get a RESCUE Battery Temperature Controller and eliminate all the guessing about the condition of your battery. Here's the only device that detects troubles and applies the remedy.
RESCUE will not fail under any conditions to indicate instantly a heating battery. RESCUE keeps your battery in a healthy condition at all times. Longer life and better service during its life are natural results.
RESCUE—"The One Device That Insures 100% Battery Life" is a simple little device about the size of your watch which attaches to the steering column just below the wheel.
RESCUE is endorsed by battery manufacturers and battery service men because no part of it enters the battery or in any way affects any part of the ignition system.
Your batteryman, garageman or automobile dealer will be glad to explain RESCUE to you. They know it is the best battery insurance you can buy.

PLAN CONTROL OF WHEAT PRICE.

American Growers Expect to be in Shape by 1921.

Association Steadily Adding to Membership.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WICHITA (Kan.) Dec. 26.—The Wheat Growers' Association of America, which has been conducting a campaign to induce growers to withhold their wheat from the market until prices are higher, plans to have Midwestern States so well organized within the next six months that the growers will be able to control the price paid for the 1921 wheat crop, according to W. H. McGreevy, secretary and treasurer.

The association now has a membership of approximately 100,000 in the States of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska, according to McGreevy, who has his headquarters here. The organization will be extended, he said, to Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"The purpose of the National Wheat Growers' Association is to control the distribution and marketing of wheat through financial and selling agencies of its own selection at a price based upon cost, plus a fair and reasonable profit," said Secretary McGreevy.

REFUSING TO SELL.

"Not only the wheat growers of our association, but the wheat growers in general, are refusing to sell any wheat at present prices, except in cases where financial conditions force the sale. For more than thirty days we have withheld our wheat from the market, until now a large number of flour mills are idle and the local and terminal elevators are nearly empty. The wheat grower feels that he has practically accomplished what seemed at first impossible, and is now encouraged to continue withholding his wheat from market in order that a price which is fair and just shall be paid him for his labor and money invested."

McGreevy objects to the use of the term "wheat strike" in referring to the action of the wheat growers.

"Our growers are not striking as is commonly meant by the term," he said. "We are still sowing and attending to the many arduous duties of the farm. We are only holding our wheat to be marketed at any time the producer may accept it at a fair price."

GROWING RAPIDLY.

The organization was formed about a year and a half ago in Southern Kansas and Northern Oklahoma. A. Slaughter of Manchester, Okla., was the originator and early promoter. According to its promoters, its growth in the first six months was slow, but in the last few months it has been rapid, until the membership has spread to every wheat-growing county in the four States organized.

The four States now organized, (Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas,) in which a membership of 100,000 is claimed, have 220,806 wheat growers, according to Kansas Board of Agriculture statistics.

Forty-five per cent of growers are members of the association, according to this. McGreevy's statement is, that about 40 per cent of growers in the wheat sections of the States now organized are members.

The four States produced this year 232,955,000 bushels, out of the total for United States of 750,648,000 bushels.

The addition of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota would bring the production up to 359,003,000 bushels, or slightly less than one-half that of the entire United States.

The Kansas State Board of Agriculture recently issued a report on the wheat in farmers' hands in Kansas. It says:

HALF KANSAS CROP.

This year's Kansas wheat crop amounted approximately to 145,000,000 bushels, according to a preliminary report. Growers now estimate that of the total production, 53.4 per cent, or 77,466,727 bushels, is still in the farmers' hands. At about the same date last year 35.5 per cent, or 50,000,000 bushels was in possession of producers, while in 1918, 11 per cent, or 15,000,000 bushels, was reported as held by growers.

"Chief among the reasons given for the unusually large amount of wheat in farmers' hands are the drastic drop in price and the car shortage. Reports indicate that probably 17 per cent of the wheat unsold would have been marketed early had cars been available, but that now wheat is being held mainly in hopes of such an upturn in price as will return a profit—an exercise of business judgement which should be as free from criticism or excite no more comment than the action of say, a haberdasher who declines to sell hats costing $10 for which his customer offers $5."

APPEAR :: IN :: HILLTOP :: DRAMA.

Lone Oaks' Needs Prompt Presentation.

Mt. Helios Community Players in "Love's Awakening."
Phillip Kranth as True Love, reclining, and Mrs. Alvida Venger as Motherhood, presenting Naked Truth in the person of baby Sonia Venger to awaken him. In the background Bruce Delameter, as Liberty, is being freed by L. T. Wilson as Justice.

"LOVE'S AWAKENING," the first of a series of symbolical and allegorical dramatic presentations offered by the Mt. Helios Community Players was given yesterday afternoon in an open-air auditorium on the hilltop near Washington Park School, before an audience of about 200 persons.

Announced as a dramatisation of a message from the unseen world, transcribed by Edith Maida Lessing, the production was directed by Gertrude Caldwell. About fifty characters appeared in the play. The costuming was brilliant and in perfect harmony with the spirit of the story.

The story follows metaphysical lines, dealing with the falling of True Love into a sleep from which he can be awakened by none other than Naked Truth. The awakening is attempted first by Joy, then by Innocence, Wonder, Simplicity, Religion, Form, Ceremony, Charity, Music, Melody, Riches, Beauty, Vanity, Science, Art, Greed and other virtues and passions of the people, but every one fails.

Finally Blind Truth undertakes to accomplish the awakening, and fails. Finally Motherhood, played by Mrs. Alvida Venger, offers the Naked Truth in the person of little Sonia Venger, and the awakening is accomplished, whereupon Liberty, played by Bruce Delameter, falls at the feet of Love, and a season of rejoicing is declared to celebrate the awakening.

Edith Maida Lessing played the Voice of The People. Other players in the cast were Phillip Kranth, Mrs. Titon Heywood, Irene Eagan, Emily Monroe, Trova Caldwell, Martin Witt, K. I. Frost, Formest Henderson, Mrs. Moccasin, Rachel Elson, Eleanor Mason and Marry Hoffman.

The performance was given, without admission charge, to arouse interest in the St. Mary's Cradle, an undenominational organization which cares for abandoned babies. At the conclusion of the entertainment L. T. Wilson, who appeared as Justice, announced that an entertainment of some sort will be given every three weeks on Mt. Helios by the Community Players.

Austria Would Become Part of German Republic

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—LeJournal says today it learns from Berlin that it is reported in political circles that a manifesto has been prepared by Austria asking the League of Nations that Austria be attached to Germany. Dr. Walter Simons, German Foreign Minister, and Count Otto Karr Czernin von Chudenits, former Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, are said to have drafted the document.

The Petit Parisien declares the recent treaty signed by Italy and Jugo-Slavia provides for reciprocal support to prevent restoration of the monarchy either in Austria or Hungary.

WOMAN GROWS BEARD IN JAIL SECLUSION.

GOES TO PRISON VOLUNTARILY SO AS TO BE SHIELDED FROM PUBLIC GAZE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—A woman has voluntarily gone to jail in Newcastle, Del., in order that her beard may grow shielded from the public gaze. She is Mrs. Edward Ferris, and for many years she sat in the sideshow of a circus and displayed her luxuriant whiskers. She was thrifty and managed to save $7000. Nine years ago Ferris, a glass blower of Millville, N. J., wooed and won her.

She married him and shaved off her chief stock in trade. Ferris took her money and invested it in oil stocks which never were heard of again. A year ago he left her and their 4-year-old daughter.

She was in desperate straits. She could not raise her beard unless she found privacy. She decided a jail would be the best place. She put her daughter in a home and hired a horse and carriage, which she sold in Tuckerton, N. J., for $20, but the law let her go. She tried the experiment again in Chester, Pa. Once more the authorities were annoyingly merciful. Having failed in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, she decided to try a third time in Delaware. She was arrested in Wilmington and sent to jail. The beard has begun to grow.

NEW YORK SHIVERS; THICK ICE UPSTATE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Today was the coldest of the winter. The thermometer at 11 o'clock registered 21 degrees above zero, while at 8 o'clock this morning it touched 18. The weather man says that tomorrow will bring rain or snow.

Ice five inches thick was reported upstate and in New Jersey.

Mrs. Bullock Recommends Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"Last winter, when my children were sick with colds and were coughing a good deal, I gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. C. M. Bullock, Gorham, N. Y. "It relieved them at once and under this treatment all symptoms of the cold gradually disappeared. My experience with this medicine warrants my recommending it to others."—[Advertisement.

Famous U-Boat Will be Target for Destroyer.

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 26.—The former German U-boat 88, which in the early part of the World War played havoc with shipping in the Straits of Dover and along the Irish coast, is to be destroyed by the United States destroyer Wickes on the southern drill grounds between San Diego and San Pedro on January 3, it was announced here today.

The U-boat was one of the German vessels allocated to the United States following the internment of the German vessels at Scapa Flow. It arrived from the Atlantic several months ago and after being exhibited at several ports was taken to San Pedro and dismantled. Destroyer officers hoped to destroy the craft with a torpedo but permission for that has not been received. Tentative plans have provided for the use of gunfire.

CHASED FROM HAY, MAN FIRES BARN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DIXON (Ill.) Dec. 26.—Christmas day William Underwood, who operates a stock farm two miles east of Dixon, went into the barn and found a man resting on the hay. He told him he would have to get out, as he did not allow anyone to sleep in the barn, but that he would be glad to give him a night's lodging in the house if he so desired.

The man, who was fairly well dressed, declined and went away. Shortly afterward, looking out of the window of his home, Underwood saw his barn in flames. The barn and other buildings were destroyed. Thirty-one head of milch cows, three horses, a pony and all machinery burned. The loss amounted to about $10,000.

The description of the man found in the barn tallies with that of an escaped inmate of the State epileptic colony north of this city.

HURLS DAUGHTER OUT OF WINDOW.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Hurled from an apartment-house window three floors above the street, Catherine Janzer, 18 years old, is in a serious condition in the Lincoln Hospital. Her father, George Janzer, is in jail, charged with felonious assault.

Policemen found her unconscious and even when she was revived she was unable to tell a connected story.

"How did you come to be in the yard?" she was asked.

"My father threw me out," she replied.

LIQUOR PENALTIES OVER TWO MILLIONS.

ASSESSED IN LAST EIGHT MONTHS IN FIVE NORTHWEST STATES, SAYS DRY AGENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Dec. 26.—Federal prohibition agents have seized 30,445 gallons of liquor, valued at $20,941 by government estimates, which does not include the Federal tax, in the five States of Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska during the eight months from April 1st to November 30, Paul D. Keller, supervising Federal prohibition agent for this district, announced tonight after he had compiled a report for John Kramer, prohibition commissioner at Washington. Taxes and penalties assessed in the liquor cases, total $2,000,432, Mr. Keller said.

The number of violations which have been reported to the district attorneys in the various States as a result of the activities of Federal agents are 921 and the number of seizures of liquor 562. The value of the liquor, probably, would be greatly increased if it were sold illegally, Mr. Keller declared.

Minnesota is "wetter" than Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska combined, according to Mr. Keller's figures.

Four-fifths of the entire amount of liquor taken, or 24,955 gallons, have been seized in Minnesota. The value of this liquor is placed at $64,642 of the total amount. A total of $1,374,956 has been assessed in taxes and penalties in this State.

Federal prohibition agents have confiscated fifty-five automobiles during the eight months, of which forty-six were taken in Minnesota, six in Iowa, two in South Dakota and one in North Dakota.

NEGRO WHO KILLED POLICEMAN LYNCHED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

JONESBORO (Ark.) Dec. 26.—Wade Thomas, a negro, who last night shot and killed Policeman Elmer Ragland during a raid on a dice game, was taken from the jail tonight by a mob of about 400 citizens and after being paraded through the business streets was hanged to a telegraph pole near the scene of his crime. The body was then riddled with bullets.

Thomas was arrested early today at Hoxie, Ark., and brought here. Arrangements had been made to call a special session of the grand jury tomorrow.

The mob worked quietly, leaders demanding admission from the jailer, who, after urging that the law be allowed to take its course, turned over the keys. Thomas was taken from his cell and, with a rope around his neck, was paraded several blocks through the town, the mob following. Then he was lynched. A number of other negroes in jail in connection with the shooting were not molested.

Thomas admitted shooting the policeman, but claimed self-defense.

CONGRESS WILL GO BACK TO WORK TODAY

LITTLE IMPORTANT BUSINESS PLANNED, HOWEVER, UNTIL NEW YEAR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Congress will re-assemble tomorrow after a brief Christmas week-end, but the holiday spirit promises to prevail, with little important business planned until the New Year. Many members will not return until next week, and by unwritten agreement several hearings and other affairs will go over.

The opening clash in the Senate on the emergency tariff bill, which passed the House last week, is expected tomorrow. Blocked by the Democrats last week, Republicans plan another effort to refer it to the Finance Committee. Notices accompanied Christmas greetings to all Republican Senators from Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican whip, urging a solid Republican phalanx tomorrow to vote the tariff measure into committee.

Prospects are that there will be a much more solid Democratic line-up against tariff legislation in the Senate than in the House, and Republican leaders accordingly plan to forego formal hearings before the committee and hasten action in other ways. The majority leaders concede privately that interminable debate in the Senate is in prospect.

Secretary Houston of the Treasury Department will resume his statement regarding national finances tomorrow before the Finance Committee.

The House tomorrow will consider minor bills and expects to begin consideration this week of its second regular appropriation bill, the sundry civil budget. All important House committee work is suspended until next week.

The House is to work all week except only New Year's Day, but the Senate may take another week-end recess.

MONTESANO BOMB EXPLOSION MYSTERY.

MONTESANO (Wash.) Dec. 26.—Investigation by county authorities today failed to clear up the mystery connected with an explosion which shooks the town of Montesano last night. The finding of twenty feet of fuse at the scene of the explosion, a vacant lot near the Northern Pacific Station, is believed by the police to indicate that an outrage was planned, but the object is still a mystery.

No trace has been found of the stranger carrying a leather traveling bag, who was seen loitering yesterday about the County Jail, where seven men, convicted last March of complicity in the Centralia, Wash., Armistice Day killing of ex-service men on Nov. 11, 1919, are incarcerated.

WILL PUSH WAY INTO UNKNOWN.

Dr. John L. Cope Hopes to Solve South Sea Riddle.

Plans to Circumnavigate the Antarctic Continent.

Discovery of Whale Fishing Grounds is Expected.

LONDON, Dec. 26.—The message received from Dr. John L. Cope, commander of the British Imperial Antarctic expedition from Port Stanley, capital of the Falkland Islands, calls attention to one of the most important enterprises of the kind yet undertaken. The message was as follows:

"Sailing from here December 26 with full equipment and dogs. Hope to land at Graham's December 28. All the party well. Expect to hear from us in eighteen months. Good-by."

Jules Verne, by the wildest stretch of his imagination, never conceived of an adventure in the realm of fiction more thrilling than that undertaken by the British Imperial Antarctic expedition headed by Commander John Lachlan Cope, who, with five ships and their crews started in September, 1920, on a five-year quest to solve the riddle of the great unknown South Polar Sea.

COPE'S REPUTATION.

Cope's reputation for daring and bravery was established when, as surgeon and biologist of the Sir Ernest Shackleton expedition, he and eight of his comrades in misfortune, all hope of rescue abandoned, lived for two years in a little hut established by the intrepid Scott, amid the icy wastes of Ross Island. They were marooned when the Aurora, the Mawson expedition ship of 1916, was driven away from them during a blizzard. Their final rescue constituted one of the most interesting chapters in polar explorations.

The expedition, backed by $750,000, has for its purpose the circumnavigation of the Antarctic continent, a dash to the South Pole, the exploration of more than 1200 miles of territory never before trod by civilized man, the discovery of new whale fishing grounds, the study of weather conditions and the extent of South Polar mineral deposits, especially of manganese, coal, granite, marble and rubies. Commander Cope declared before sailing that for six months of the year the climate of the northern area of the Antarctic is no more rigorous than that of Alaska or Siberia.

COURSE OF EXPEDITION.

Cope's ship, the Thor I, left England on Sept. 22, 1920, and from Norfolk, Va., where the commander stepped aboard her, on the following October 26. The Thor I on the way to her base, stopped at Montevideo and then went to Deception Islands in the Falklands, where motion pictures were made of whales disporting themselves at sea and being harpooned for their ambergris and bone and oil. Late in October, 1920, a second ship left Cardiff, Wales, for the Falkland Islands. Three whalers of 7000 tons each and one whale catcher of 300 tons also accompanied the explorers from their base.

The personnel of the expedition included also N. G. Lester, navigator; Thomas W. Bagshowe, geologist; Capt. George H. Wilkins, chief of the scientific staff who accompanied the Stefansson expedition in the same capacity, and 120 men. An airplane called the "Kangaroo" and so constructed that it can land on the ice by means of skids was to be employed in the dash to the South Pole. The goal was expected to be reached in a flight of from twenty to thirty-five hours, instead of a tortuous journey of many months on sledges. The flight was to be undertaken in summer and was not to be a non-stop journey.

EQUIPMENT OF FLYERS.

The Kangaroo carried, besides five men, fuel, a sledge, cameras and food for one month and this weight was expected to handicap the fliers in crossing a mountain range with peaks 11,000 feet high which rise as natural obstacles to the pole. The start was to be made from the great ice barrier at the Bay of Whales. The total weight of the plane, occupants and equipment was 13,600 pounds and it was to be driven at an average speed of ninety-three miles an hour. The party was to include, besides Commander Cope, Mr. Lester, as navigator, George H. Wilkins, Jr., photographer and surveyor; Thomas W. Bagshowe, geologist, and one other man. The airplane was also to carry thirty dogs, Canadian "huskies." Several other planes and an extensive wireless system by means of which it was hoped to keep in touch with civilization at all times were to be held in reserve.

Commander Cope, before starting south, said that while the Thor I was circumnaviating the lower part of the continent, her sister ship, sailing from Cape Ann, would go around the Bay of Whales, and the upper part of the continent, completing the circle. The other planes, meanwhile, were to be utilized on shore. They have a cruising radius of 1000 miles but the first year were to be sent out only 250 miles for the establishment of new petrol bases and the following year sent out an additional 250 miles. The Thor I was scheduled, according to Commander Cope's plans, to return to New Zealand in 1926 at about the same time that her sister ship returned to South America.

THIS IS NO ADVENTURE.

"Previous Antarctic explorations have been adventures," said Commander Cope. "This one is a scientific venture and commercial proposition. The final object of our enterprise is a search for the mineral wealth with which we are sure the South Polar regions abound." In addition to the minerals previously mentioned he said that Antarctica was rich in gold, silver, copper and lead in the chain of mountains that rise like gigantic sentinels guarding the secret of its vast and icy polar fields.

HARDING WILL RIDE GOAT.

President-Elect to Affiliate With Masons Before Inauguration.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—President-elect Harding will ride the Masonic goat at Marion some time before March 4, he has confided to friends here. Senator Harding has been a fellowcraft Mason for some years.

In joining with the Masonic fraternity, President-elect Harding is following in the footsteps of nine other predecessors at the White House, including George Washington, and more recently three other Ohioans — Garfield, McKinley and Taft. President Wilson is the only recent Executive who is not a member of the F.A.A.M. President Roosevelt having joined the order at Oyster Bay shortly after his election as Vice-President. President Taft, it will be recalled, was made a Mason "at sight" during his term.

MASONS GRATIFIED.

Masonic circles here are highly gratified at word from Marion that Senator Harding intends to take his final work before he is inaugurated President. They expect that, like President Taft, he will become an active participant in the affairs at the capital.

Plans under way for several years to erect a Masonic Memorial Temple in honor of George Washington at Alexandria, Va., within sight of the capitol, are now so nearly matured that it is anticipated President-elect Harding will have an opportunity to share in its dedication before he leaves the executive mansion. Already more than $500,000 has been subscribed by Masons of the country for this structure to suitably house the valuable collection of Masonic relics in possession of the Alexandria Washington lodge.

MAKE FINAL PLANS.

Grand Masons from all sections of the country will convene here on Washington's birthday, next, to formulate final plans for the construction of the proposed memorial. Work on it is to commence in the spring.

Senator Harding's decision to become a master Mason before he undertakes his White House duties has not been free from the intrusion of politics. It is understood that some Republican advisers have counseled against the affiliation, perhaps on the ground that it might alienate some of the support he enjoyed at the recent campaign.

WILL LOSE NO FRIENDS.

It has been pointed out, however, that the President-elect has been affiliated in a preliminary way with the Masonic fraternity for several years and that failure to complete this work would be open to misunderstanding. On the other hand, Senator Harding's Masonic friends have recalled to those who raised "political ghosts" that Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, both of whom were active Masons, lost neither the support nor the friendliness of non-Masonic influences by reason of their affiliation.

BELGIUM TO RENOUNCE CONFISCATION RIGHTS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Belgium, says a Brussels dispatch to Le Journal, intends to renounce her rights to confiscation of German property in Belgium, as provided in the Versailles Treaty, following the example of Great Britain, which renounced its right to take over German property in the United Kingdom.

It is said Belgium will announce this decision after consulting the Allies, but considers renunciation necessary from a commercial point of view.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY IS ELECTROCUTED.

STOCKTON, Dec. 26.—Roy Austin McKeel, 19, was electrocuted at his home in Lodi about 5 o'clock this afternoon while conducting an experiment with an electric welding outfit which he had recently perfected and sold to a large commercial electric house.

Young McKeel, who was a student of the electric trade and attended the Lodi High School, was taking a correspondence course in electricity. This afternoon, accompanied by his brother, he went to a shed at his home to conduct his experiments. While at work his arm dropped across a wire carrying a high voltage, and standing on a steel plate laid on wet ground, closed the circuit, he receiving a shock from which he died in a few minutes, according to Oscar C. Pope, County Coroner.

Besides the brother who was with him, he leaves a father and mother. Coroner Pope will hold an inquest Tuesday.

RIVAL ELEVENS TAKE IT EASY.

Ohio State and California do No Work on Sabbath.

Two Sessions of Football Labor Scheduled Today.

Weather Holding Up in Fine Shape for Teams.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

Sunday was a day of rest for the two imported football squads which are mussing up the well-known Pasadena turf preparing for the battle on New Year's Day.

The Ohio State players went motoring in the morning, siphoning some of the famous Topanga country into their systems. Most of the Bears who live in Los Angeles and vicinity paid a visit to the home folks; others went to church, assimilating something thereby that will be good for the inner man.

TWO SESSIONS.

Today both teams will hold prolonged sessions on the Tournament Park lot. The schedule calls for manly labor on the part of Ohio State about 2 o'clock, with the Bears toiling some two hours later.

So far, no complaint has been registered against the weather. Everybody likes it, players, coaches and trainers alike. None of the heat that greeted Harvard and Oregon last year has prevailed to date. At that time it got so hot that the thermometer was trying to poke its head out of the top of the glass. The Harvard men enjoyed frying eggs on their heads.

The native weather sharks have freely predicted that there will be little change in the atmosphere from now until the time for the bi fracas to come off. Both coaches and trainers hope so. They are perfectly satisfied with the present condition of things.

TRAIN IN MUD.

Training in the ankle-deep mud of California Field for ten days previous to their departure south was not thoroughly enjoyed by the Bears. They are glad to set foot on terra firma that doesn't buckle under them. Leaving the refriger. 'mate of the Middle West behind them didn't cause any sad feelings in the hearts of the Buckeyes.

As in previous New Year's games there is absolutely no way of comparing the relative strength of the two elevens. They have met no common foe, and their records are of little value, except as they indicate the offensive and defensive strength of the teams.

Yet there is an outstanding difference this year. In the past condition has been the one definite, tangible basis.

A 25 per cent stronger Harvard team barely beat Oregon by the margin of one point last year, because Oregon was in 25 per cent better condition. Harvard coaches feared the effects of a scrimmage on the Crimson players, and ordered nothing of the nature. Ohio State players staged a hard scrimmage the first day of their arrival.

IT'S QUESTIONED.

There has always been a question whether Washington State and Oregon in 1915 and 1916 were normally by two touchdowns or more than Brown and Pennsylvania. The Brown-Washington State game was played in a driving rain, and the field was a bog. Pollard, the fleet negro halfback of Brown, was unable to use his speed on such a field, and might just as well have played on the bench. The slashing, driving attack of the Northwesterners was just suited to the conditions of the day.

Oregon beat Penn, 14 to 0, and here again condition played a vital role. Penn played well in the first half, and then faded. True, Bezdek had his men play a waiting game in the first half, and might have rallied oftener had he launched his attack sooner, but condition being equal it would have been a terrifically close game.

That either Ohio State or California is going to be in better shape for this year's game is not an outstanding, discernible fact. Western elevens have always been keyed up to the proper spirit for the New Year's Day tilt. The easterners have been the only ones remiss in this respect.

TAKES IT SERIOUSLY.

But this year it is different. Coach Wilce has taken the contest seriously and has made his men see it in the same light.

The contention of Middle Westerners has always been that their football products from the "Big Ten" conference are far superior to those turned out yearly at Princeton, Harvard and Yale.

This is a fact attested by Coach Joe Pipal, who turned out championship football teams at Occidental a few years back. Pipal says he saw the Princeton-Yale game and was so disgusted that he refused to go to the Harvard-Yale affair. Pipal went on to say that he took in one of the Middle Western games, and was immensely thrilled. Though he didn't see Ohio State in action he judged that it is a mighty tough team by virtue of its winning from everybody else in the conference.

There seems to be little doubt in all quarters that California has a rougher game on its hands than had Princeton been chosen to make the trip west. There might have been more glory in beating Princeton, with heavy prestige, but in Ohio State the Bears will be meeting a foe that will make them play harder football to win.

THEY KNOW IT.

That Coach Andy Smith of California and his assistants realize this is an idle comment. The Bears have won all games easily this year by resorting in the main to slashing off-tackle plunges. But the wiseacres are making a mistake if they think the Bears are weak at the passing game. Sprott and Toomey are both accurate tossers of the pill. They get the ball away fast and they shoot to the man receiving on the line. It isn't a lob that anybody can scramble for.

After watching the linemen of both teams it seems improbable to expect any material advance by either eleven through the forward division. The Ohio line plays low. Any line that does that is hard to make yardage through. The Bear line looks just as impregnable.

There is just one safe prediction in connection with the New Year's game. It is going to be one of the most spectacular and bitterly-fought struggles that was ever staged on the gridironed lacing of ground known as Tournament Park.

Shining Lights on the California Eleven.

Coach Andy Smith and Two of His Best Backs.

At the left we have "Morry" Morrison, the curly-haired fullback who does the healthy punting for the Bears; in the center is the Blue and Gold's head coach and at the right is "Dutch" Eels. The latter is known as the "hard-luck kid" on the U. C. team. He was injured early in the season and has had little chance to star. He is one of the hardest-hitting backs in the business and may get into the New Year's game.

BUCKEYE ATHLETES IRRIGATE THEMSELVES WITH DEAR OLD OHIO WATER AND STILL LIVE.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Ohio has no use for California water, and still less confidence in our home brew. Many regard this as an awful slam at our water works, and an insult at our skillful citizen distillers, although it was not meant in that sense.

The Buckeyes brought out 300 gallons of Ohio water with which to moisten their parched tongues during their sojourn here.

Well, there is no accounting for tastes. Personally, we never saw any Ohio water that was anything to brag about. In fact, in certain parts of Ohio, Cincinnati particularly, water is a comparatively recent discovery. When the country went dry, and beer no longer flowed through the household plumbing, many citizens of Cincinnati wrote to the government for the water formula. They had an idea it was something that had to be manufactured, rather than dug for.

Of course, they knew that water existed in a general way, but never believed it fit to drink. They always felt thankful for the Ohio River, because it carried the water away from them.

But a few months of prohibition has wrought great changes, and today we have an Ohio delegation in our midst with a canteen on each hip, and 300 gallons of the best fluid which nature produces in that State bottled in bond. Not only that, but they openly boast of their appetite for water.

It must be admitted that any team which can drink the Ohio stuff and still live is a tough bunch to kill off.

Speaking of the State generally, Ohio has had a great year. Among other things, the State produced two Presidential nominees, a large neighborhood quarrel and the next President of these United States. One of their baseball teams won the American League pennant and the world title. Its State university won the championship of the Big Ten, and another of its football elevens won the professional championship of the country.

Naturally, supporters of the Buckeyes point to this fat year with pride, and enunciate with some energy that it is Ohio's year to win. But if they consult the calendar carefully they will find that January 1 this season comes in 1921 and not 1920. The start of a new year might put a fracture in the good fortune of the past.

Ohio is expected to play typical middle western football, involving a slashing line attack and daring open maneuvers, with a considerable element of the unexpected. That section is regarded as playing harder and less conservative football than the East.

The California play are blended the styles of the East, Middle West and West. The "quick kick," which imposes no unnecessary risk in losing the ball on downs or through fumbles, and places the burden of attack on the opposition, has a flavor of eastern conservatism.

The Bears are by no means strangers to the forward pass, although not forced to rely on it this season, and they seem to have the driving power seen in most middle western teams, plus the far western spirit.

Ohio has just passed through a test such as few elevens have ever survived. If the present generation at California is made of the same stuff as the eleven which played Carlisle to a 2 to 0 score, there won't be any such thing as one team outgaming the other.

Doc Gurney, conditioner of the Buckeyes, says the California climate, sometimes enervating to easterners the first week or two, holds no balmy terrors for his squad. He points out that the team encountered quite a variety of weather while ranging around the Big Ten map.

He refers with something akin to pride to the fact that one of Ohio's hardest conference games was played in a temperature of 80, and that the athletes didn't curl up or crack. Computing 100 deg. at par here, 80 is above par back there, where on a warm day you feel that somebody had picked a blanket out of a hot washtub and wound your head up in it.

The Buckeyes were able to survive that day because they were acclimated. They will find something a bit different, even though undefinable, out here. And if New Year's Day should happen to be what is technically known as a warm winter day out here, the Buckeyes may be surprised to find themselves straining strangely at their gills about the second quarter.

But if there is a snap in the air they should go through the afternoon in good shape.

The only thing they seem to fear is a change of water, and they even submit to that in the bath tub.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 26.—Sedan won the feature race at the Tijuana race track this afternoon before one of the largest crowds of the racing season. The results:

First race—Six furlongs: Little Princess won; Anna Jackson, second; Prairie, third. Time, 1:15.

Second race—Five furlongs: Jack Lee won; Wood Rose, second; Brobdad, third. Time, 1:06.

Third race—Five and one-half furlongs: Hector won; Cal Cura, second; Clear the Way, third. Time, 1:08.

Fourth race—One mile and one-eighth: Little Oink won; Londonmore, second; Rutland Arms, third. Time, 1:54 4-5.

Fifth race—Six furlongs: Sadan won; Garris Moore, second; Hamilton A., third. Time, 1:12 4-5.

Sixth race—One mile: Lioia won; Verdi Loon, second; Lady in Black, third. Time, 1:40 1-5.

OAKLAND SCRIBE IS HERE FOR BIG GAME.

Doug Montell, connected with the sporting department of the Oakland Tribune, is browsing around in Pasadena getting dope on the New Year's game for his paper. Montell came down with the California eleven last Saturday. He is a senior in the northern institution. Ed Hughes of the San Francisco Chronicle and Jack James of the San Francisco Examiner are expected to arrive today.

NEVADA ELEVEN SKUNKS HAWAII.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HONOLULU, Dec. 26.—University of Nevada defeated the University of Hawaii, 14 to 0, here yesterday in the first football game ever played between the Honolulu team and an eleven from the mainland.

Nevada's forward passing was a feature of the game and enabled the visitors to keep the ball in the home team's territory during almost the entire contest. "Rabbit" Bradshaw, the Sagebrushers' quarterback, starred in the passing and plays against the Hawaii line. Nevada scored in the first and third periods.

FIGHT LOOMS ON GAMBLING FRATERNITY.

Organized Baseball is Not Satisfied With Decision in the Los Angeles Courts.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—Action by the Superior Court of Los Angeles county in declaring it a mere breach of contract to "throw" a baseball game presages a strenuous fight by organized baseball to wrest the sport from the stranglehold the gamblers have tried to grasp it in.

The indictments found against eight White Sox players in connection with the world's series of 1919 will come to trial next month, it is expected in Cook county. By vote of the club owners of the American League at their recent meeting the best legal talent to prosecute the cases is to be obtained and reimbursed by the American League, realizing that the welfare of baseball and not that of Cook county citizens is at stake in the cases of the indicted ball players.

If the courts of Illinois follow the ruling of the California jurist the indictments for conspiracy against Cicotte, Jackson, Williams, Risberg, Weaver, McMullin, Felsch and Gandil of the White Sox will not hold up and the only redress President Comiskey will have for the confessed "crime of 1919" will be through the civil courts in action against these eight players for breach of contract in that they did not give him their best efforts as provided for in their contract.

Fortunately for baseball, it may not be necessary to convict ball players of an offense against the criminal laws of the country in order to eliminate the danger of their doing farther damage to the sport. In the decision of the Ohio courts last spring in the case which Lee Magee brought against the Chicago National League club for releasing him unconditionally from a contract, organized baseball won a decision of great importance which was overlooked at the time because the major league pennant races were then on.

It was held in that case that unconditional release of a ball player did not constitute ground for damages.

UNITEDS TAKE TILT WITH THE GORDONS.

In a soccer game yesterday at Long Beach, the Uniteds found little difficulty in taking the Gordons into camp, and emerged from their engagement a 7-to-2 winner. The United machine was working over time, and was too much for the Gordons to stop, although the locals threatened many times, and Waite, the United custodian, was called on to save some hard and difficult shots. The winners scored three in the first forty-five, and repeated in the second period. By their win, the champions strengthened their hold on the league championship, the L.A.A.C. runners-up having to be satisfied with a tie game at the hands of the Long Beach Uniteds.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, has decided to defend his title once more, according to reports emanating from Cleveland. Johnny Reisler, a New York candidate, is the young man who has been chosen to meet the little Clevelander, who has been in possession of the crown for nine years. It is planned to start the two boys in a fifteen-round bout to be held at Madison Square Garden on Washington's birthday.

Tex Rickard has been anxious for some time to get the champion to come to New York, and from reliable sources it is said that Kilbane has accepted Rickard's offer to box young Reisler.

Kilbane won the title from Abe Attell on the Coast on Washington's birthday night exactly nine years ago, and in meeting Reisler he will be risking his title with a most promising boxer. The latter is a by-product of the war and has been coming to the front in lively fashion. His knockout over Battling Lahn recently stamps him as a worthy opponent of the champion. If all the details are completed the men will weigh in at 122 pounds in accordance with the rules of the State Boxing Commission.

Jack Sharkey, the local bantamweight, and Pal Moore, the Memphis boy, will clash in the big-time show at Madison Square Garden next Wednesday. This ought to be a real shindig, as neither boy can afford to suffer a defeat. Sharkey has been working earnestly since the champion, Joe Lynch, rapped him on the chin and sent the game little Italian for the distance in their last wrangle at the garden. Jack wants another crack at Joseph, but if he is outdistanced by the Southerner it will be good night for his chances. Moore also has championship aspirations.

SMITH VICTOR IN AIR DASH.

March Field Lieutenant Captures Handicap Affair.

Robins Makes Fastest Time, but Finishes Fifth.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Dec. 26.—Piloting a Curtiss J-N plane, Lieut. A. W. Smith of March Field, Riverside, won the sixty-mile handicap race, the feature of the afternoon's program of the international winter air tournament at the Daugherty municipal aviation field here this afternoon.

E. H. Rogers, flying a Canadian Curtiss plane, was second; W. D. Timm in a Barnhart biplane took third; David Thompson in a J-L monoplane was fourth, and Master Sergeant T. J. Robins of Mather Field, Sacramento, with a DeHaviland, finished fifth.

MAKES FAST TIME.

Robins, while finishing fifth, according to the handicap allowed, made the fastest elapsed time around the sixty-mile triangular course among the five qualified winners. The Mather field flyer covered the sixty miles in his DeHaviland in 24m. 33s.

Milo N. Clark of March Field, also flying a DeHaviland, made the course in 22m. 44s., the day's record for speed, but was disqualified, on account of cutting a corner 100 feet on the Signal Hill turn. Several other flyers failed to qualify for the same reason.

GOOD AIR CONDITIONS.

Perfect flying weather prevailed again today and a crowd estimated at 15,000 inside and 25,000 outside the canvas fence, witnessed the various events. Following the handicap race, Aviator Earl Daugherty of Long Beach, thrilled the spectators with his stunt flying. Leslie May performed with him again today, dangling from various parts of the plane, while it was put through numerous maneuvers.

Monday, the last day of the tournament, will be lighter-than-air day, the feature of the afternoon's program being the twelve-mile race, the first of its kind in the country, between the Navy C-6 and the Marshall Neilan blimp.

RACE FOR WOMEN.

Another feature scheduled for Monday is the first race ever held in the West between women aviators. Neeta Snook of Grinell, Iowa, will contest with Aloysia McLintic of Long Beach for the feminine speed honors of the Pacific Coast.

Secretary Harrison of the Aero Club, announced this afternoon that an added feature for Monday will be the arrival from San Diego of the huge Martin torpedo plane, the largest aircraft in the country. It weighs 11,000 pounds and will fly tomorrow afternoon at the tournament.

Eddie Pullen Attains Fame as a Golfer.

Eddie Pullen, the demon racing driver, captured first prize in the special Ford Sterling golf tourney at the San Gabriel Country Club yesterday. His medal score was 116, but a generous handicap of 49 pulled this down to 67, which was five strokes better than Dr. Paul Hunter, State amateur champ, was able to negotiate the course in. The complete scores follow:

Eddie Pullen	116	—49—	67
Dr. Paul Hunter	72	—0—	72
Curt Wolselt	97	—25—	72
Ben Leslie	79	—6—	73
Scotty Chisholm	80	—5—	75
Jim Oviatt	103	—25—	78
Harry Cline	91	—12—	79
George Patterson	88	—6—	80
Nigel Brown	95	—14—	81
Fred White	107	—25—	82

Others who played were Claude Kerns, Dick Carlson (G. M.,) Bill Smith, Mahlon Hamilton, Ford Sterling and Crane Gartz, who is back from an extended visit across the pond.

MISS COOK WINNER WITH DR. VOORHEES.

In the mixed foursome at the Los Angeles Country Club yesterday Miss Josephine Cook and Dr. Harry Voorhees tied with Mrs. Guy Cochran and Walter Leeds. The first-named pair had 97—15—82 and the latter 87—5—82. A shake of the dice brought the first prize to Miss Cook and Dr. Voorhees.

PASADENA AND SONS CAN'T DECIDE GAME.

Sons of St. George and Pasadena played to a tie game at Exposition Park yesterday in a Southern California soccer fixture, the count standing one all. The teams were evenly matched, and played a fine game. For the entire period, both elevens played a nip and tuck struggle, with each side alternately threatening, but splendid defense work by each side negativing the work of the forwards. The contest was played before a large crowd.

CARD RUGGERS ARE DEFEATED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Dec. 26.—The University of Vancouver Rugby football team defeated Stanford University, 12 to 0, before a crowd of 10,000 fans here yesterday. Lou Hunter scored all of Vancouver's points with three drop goals.

TWO BILLS WILL REPRESENT U. S.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

AUCKLAND (N. Z.) Dec. 26.—William T. Tilden II of Philadelphia, world's singles tennis champion, and William M. Johnston of California, former champion of the United States, will represent the American team, and Gerald L. Patterson of Australia, former world's champion, and Norman E. Brooks, also of Australia and former British champion, will represent Australia in the challenge round of play for the Davis cup December 28.

All players are in fine fettle. Critics express themselves as much impressed with the superb driving of the Americans. Relative strength of the two teams indicates a close struggle. Seating accommodations for the match have been exhausted.

Vernon Turk Shoot is a Big Success.

E. L. Valleen, J. F. Dodds, C. E. White and E. L. Brawner were the big winners in the special Christmas and New Year's shoot at the Vernon Club yesterday morning. Each captured two turkeys as a result of his prowess in the 25-bird handicap events. Halohan, Downs, Bahring, Reed and Packard won one apiece. Ed Brawner won first money in the 50-bird event and Mellus, Packard and Downs divided the second money.

KEARNS SAYS JACK BETTER THAN EVER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—"Jack Dempsey is not only as good as he ever was, but he is better," said Jack Kearns, his manager, today. Kearns came to his home in Oakland to spend Christmas with his mother.

"Just because Dempsey did not leap from his corner and knock Bill Brennan dead with one punch, some boys say he put up a poor fight and others say he is slipping," continued Kearns. "Nothing like that. Jack fought a pretty fight. He stepped around like a lightweight, and there never was a time when he did not have the fight well in hand. Brennan was on the receiving end all the time.

"After boxing nice and pretty for ten rounds, Dempsey put some weight behind his punches in the eleventh and all but stopped Brennan. He finished him in short order in the twelfth.

"Dempsey had been winning his fights in such big time that doubt was expressed whether or not he could step ten rounds at a fast pace. He showed the doubting ones that he could and still be strong enough to put over the old knockout wallop after the tenth.

"Brennan is a big, tough fellow, but he never had a chance to beat Dempsey. He did hit Jack on the ear and draw blood and an awful howl went up. It is so seldom that Dempsey is hit hard that some of the crowd thought Brennan would cop. There never was a chance.

"Notice how the boys came out of hiding after it took Dempsey twelve rounds to stop Brennan? Before that they would hardly talk about a match with the champion. Now they all want a crack at him. Let them all come. That's duck soup for us. It looks as if Jack has eased himself into quite a number of matches by carrying Brennan along to the twelfth round before dropping him."

REDLANDS PREPARES FOR BEAR HOOPMEN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Dec. 26.—The basketball players of the University of Redlands will be gathered together again this week by Coach A. Cunningham after a vacation during the holidays and will begin the work of getting in shape for the big game with the University of California team here on the night of January 8.

The Redlands team is believed to be almost as strong as it was last year when it won the championship of the conference, so the fans are looking forward to a fast game. Dick Lackey, the star running guard of the team, is not yet in prime condition but will be able to play part of the game.

Cunningham is planning to use Troyer at forward and Tolleson at center at least part of the time. Knights will also get a chance to play this year.

SHORT Miles at Santa Monica play.

VAIL IS DIRT TRACK CHAMP.

Sarles and Hearne Forced Out by Engine Trouble.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 26.—Ira Vail today won from Roscoe Sarles and Eddie Hearne what was advertised as "the dirt track automobile championship," when he made 100 miles over a one-mile track here. Vail's time was 1:38.18 3-5.

The world's record is held by Tommy Milton, who covered the distance at Phoenix, Ariz., on October 10 of this year in 1:24 2-5.

Vail won easily, Sarles, winner of the Los Angeles Speedway race, being forced to drop out on the twenty-seventh lap with engine trouble and Hearne being forced out on the sixteenth lap, when a broken piston was driven through his crankcase. Vail drove the entire 100 miles without a stop.

Automobile officials here believed that Vail established new records for the 25, 50 and 75-mile marks over a dirt track. His 25-mile time was 22:29 4-5 and the 50 miles was made in 45:04 and the 75 miles in 66:57 2-5. His average speed was 71 miles an hour, and many miles were clocked in 49 or 50 seconds. The track record is 46 2-5 seconds, held by Barney Oldfield, who paced today's start.

LOSES THE LEAD.

Sarles took the lead on the first lap, but immediately lost it to Hearne, who showed the way on the second and third. Sarles regained the leading position on the fourth lap and held it throughout the fifth, before Hearne forged ahead and maintained his lead until the fourth lap, when Vail came to the fore and never again was headed.

The race was held under sanction of the American Automobile Association. A purse and a diamond medal were at stake.

Overseas Has an Easy Time With Beachmen.

At Hazard Playgrounds yesterday afternoon the Santa Monica soccer team was defeated by the fast Overseas eleven by a 7-to-2 score. The winners had much the better of the argument, and played a wonderful soccer exhibition. The Beachmen were handicapped in the first twenty minutes of play, with only nine men on the field, during which time the winners counted three times.

First blood went to the veterans when Saddler scored. In attempting to clear, Craig fumbled and the ball trickled over the line. With the kick-off, the Overseas took the offensive and carried the play to the visitors' goal, two goals coming in quick succession. They were splendid efforts and the Saints' custodian had no chance. The visiting backs made the fatal mistake of playing too close on the goal keeper and Craig could not see the shots which were sent in with lightning speed. The half period found the Overseas leading, 4 to 0.

With the change of ends the Saints tried to come back and held the opposition well for some time, but the superior footwork of the veterans again enabled them to put over three more counters. Taking a new lease on life, the Saints threatened in the closing minutes and scored twice, Mills getting the first and Barry the second from a penalty.

For the winners Saddler scored four; Fisher, one; Elder, one, and Davis, one. Mills and Parry counted for Santa Monica.

Long Beach and Mercury Teams Battle to Tie.

The scramble between the L.A.A.C. and Long Beach United elevens yesterday ended in a 1-to-1 tie. Milford scored the lone tally for the clubmen in the first ten minutes of play on a pass from Davies. Scotty Edwards equalized with a beautiful shot for the Uniteds.

The Long Beach forward line showed up to good advantage, being well supported by Center Half Davies's untiring work. The game of the L.A.A.C. forwards was somewhat ragged and not up to standard. Davidson and Doyle starred for the club. The lineup:

L.A.A.C.		L.B. UNITEDS
McKenzie	Goal	Locke
Allen	R.F.B.	Brown
Foran	L.F.B.	Morgan
Lawary	R.H.B.	Keeler
Davidson	C.H.B.	Davis
Fryer	L.H.B.	Stevens
Wiegel	R.O.R.	Morgan
Doyle	R.I.R.	McNeese
Milford	C.	Curtis
Davies	L.I.R.	Edwards

CHANDLER THIEF GETS THREE MORE MACHINES

Auto thieves, who have been making a specialty of appropriating Chandlers to their own use, obtained three more yesterday out of a toll of eleven cars. The list follows:

Chandler, 1920 dispatch, 284103; Saxon, 1916 touring, 225216; Cadillac, 1917 roadster, 175812; Chevrolet, 1918 touring, 2428?2; Chandler, 1918, engine number 37088; Haynes, 1916 roadster, 426533; Studebaker, 1917 touring, 193914; Studebaker, 1919 touring, 277556; Buick, 1920 touring, 440632; Overland, 1920 touring, 243764; Chandler, 1920 touring, 328761.

Persons seeing any of these machines are requested to report the matter to the Auto Club theft bureau or to police officials.

T. B. Sloan Captures the D... Special Trophy.

Prizes Won by a Flock of th... Fowling-Piece Experts.

Good scores marked the holding of the trapshooting program yesterday at the Los Angeles Gun Club. F. A. Gillespie and H. D. Blanchard tied for high score in the special distance handicap at fifty targets, each cracked the black hides of forty-eight clay birds.

The day's shooting began with the ninth of a series of twenty-five events on the Dyas season trophy. Several ties of 25x25 resulted. Seven shooters tied for the second trophy, but T. B. Sloan won in the shoot-off of ten targets. Dooley won the third trophy in the shoot-off. The ninth trophy was won by William Douglas in the shoot-off. Gillispie won the silver piece of silver all along.

Trophies were awarded to couple, Sloan, Pinney, Dechtler, Bolton, Warman, Famechon, Douglas and Gillispie. The summary:

WHITE SOX BEAT SAN PEDRO

The San Pedro baseball team was nosed out by the White Sox baseball team by a score of 4 to 3 at Anderson Park yesterday afternoon. The Sox got ten hits and Pitcher Nick Altrock and Carl Mays were the fun-making points for the Sox. Fagans, the darky second baseman, socked the apple for three hits, one of three times at bat. Girls, Arrested, Tell Police They Are Robber Two.

Confessing to a number of robberies, in two of which they acted as lures, two girls were arrested last night in company with a sailor and booked at Central Police Station. They gave their names as Mabel Pinkston, 20 years of age, and Madge Rhoades, 19. The sailor is W. C. Morgan. He was in civilian clothes at the time of his arrest.

According to the police, the girls and the man confessed to robbing the Morgan Hotel at 629 West Eighth street and to the holdup of Hewlet R. Greene and Jack Garrity of Fullerton. In the robbery of the men the girls are said to have acted as lures in enticing the two to a place where Morgan robbed them.

The Morgan Hotel robbery occurred last Thursday night, when, it is said, Morgan walked through the lobby of the hotel and held up the clerk, taking several dollars.

X-RAYS BEING USED IN AIRPLANE WORK.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—An up-to-the-minute application of X-rays is used in airplane construction to show up defective materials, workmanship and weak metal castings, which would otherwise escape the observation of an inspector, according to John S. Shearer, of Cornell, in speaking here on "Recent Advances in the Production and Application of X-rays."

"Grains of wood in airplane parts are brought out remarkably," he said, "and it is easily discernible where two different woods have been joined together, a point of construction prohibited in airplane work. Knots in the wood are also shown up, as is unsatisfactory gluing together of parts.

"Electric heater coils are inspected by X-rays and the plates show the manufacturer where air has caused the insulation of the coil to disintegrate, and where the wire will eventually break."

RAILROADS TO CUT EXPENSES.

Economies to Increase Earnings, Not Higher Rates.

Executive Association Heads Review Accomplishments.

Largest Volume of Traffic in History Was Handled.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The railroads will not ask a further rate advance but will seek to increase earnings by economies, according to Thomas Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the Association of Railway Executives.

"The statement is being made in various quarters that the railroads will shortly seek a further increase in rates," said Cuyler. "I know of no movement on the part of the railroads for a general increase in rates, nor do I expect any. It is true that the railroad companies are not yet receiving from the increased rates anything like the 6 per cent return needed. But the railway executives realize that they are trustees of a great public interest in the reduction of railroad operating expenses to the lowest possible figure and every effort will be made during the coming year to accomplish this by further economies and efficiency."

That private is superior to government operation of railroads has been demonstrated, Cuyler believes, in the nine months succeeding the return of the lines to their owners.

RECORD YEAR.

"This is the record year of American railroad operation," said Cuyler. "Not only has a larger gross tonnage been moved than ever before but new records have been established in the amount of transportation gotten out of each territory. Even during the war year of 1918 the highest performance was 494 ton miles per car per day, while for August, 1920, the average was 557 and for September and October, 565.

"In the nine full months since the government turned back the railroads to their owners on March 1, the railroad companies under private operation have:

"(1.) Increased the average movement per freight car per day 6.3 miles—from 22.6 to 28.6 miles.

"(2.) Increased the average load per car 1.7 tons, from 26.3 to 30 tons.

"(3.) Made substantial reduction in the number of unserviceable locomotives.

"(4.) Reduced the accumulation of loaded, but unmoved freight cars from 102,237 on March 1, to 21,991 on December 3, of which only 6386 were detained, because of the inability of the railroads to move them.

RELOCATED CARS.

"(5.) Relocated approximately 180,000 box cars from the East to the West for the movement of farm products.

"(6.) Relocated approximately 180,000 open top cars from the West to the East to keep up the production of coal.

"(7.) Moved the third highest coal production in the history of the country.

"(8.) Spent over $500,000,000 extra on improvements on maintenance of tracks, bridges, cars and locomotives.

"(9.) Contracted to spend about $250,000,000 largely out of earnings for additions and betterments to promote the movement of cars.

"(10.) Made arrangements to purchase approximately 50,000 new freight cars, 1500 new locomotives and 1000 new passenger cars.

"(11.) Begun the reconstruction of thousands of old cars.

"(12.) Moved—with a deteriorated plant, under disturbed labor and business conditions—the largest volume of traffic ever known in a single year, with the highest efficiency yet achieved and with a minimum addition to the value of the property on which the public has to pay a return through rates."

WILL BURY FINANCIER'S WIFE TODAY.

Personal Friends Will be Pallbearers at Funeral of Mrs. Marco H. Hellman

A group of personal friends of Mrs. Marco H. Hellman, who died on Saturday evening, will act as pallbearers at her funeral today. They are Sol M. Clark, Cecil Frankel, Karl Triest, Alec Brownstein, Karl Steinlein, B. K. Meyberg, George L. Newberger, Harry L. Harris, Joseph P. Loeb and Sylvan Kaufman. The funeral services will be conducted in the Fitch chapel at 1201 South Hope street at 10 a.m., and will be strictly private.

Mrs. Reta L. Hellman was a daughter of Leon Levis, a pioneer merchant of Visalia. She was 22 years of age when death claimed her. In her girlhood she was prominent in San Francisco society. Most of her education was received in Europe. She became an accomplished linguist and musician, and painted considerably.

Twelve years ago she became the wife of Marco H. Mellman. The home at 3350 Wilshire Boulevard was noted for its hospitality. The relatives are the widower, Marco H. Hellman; a son, Herman W. Hellman, aged 11; a daughter, Marcorets Hellman, 8, and an aunt, Mrs. Adolph Levis of Visalia.

VENTURA FIELD BUSY.

Important Companies Close Leases Covering Large Acreage.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, Dec. 26.—More than 2000 acres within a radius of eight miles of Ventura have been leased within the past three months by four big oil companies, the Standard, Associated, Shell and Doheny interests. The Shell has another well going down on the Taylor ranch. In the Montalvo section the Doheny interests have a well that is making a fine showing with gas and it is understood another hole is to be put down shortly. The Eddystone Company has leased a portion of the Hobson holdings in the Castas. The Ventura avenue oil people have tied up more than 700 acres in and adjoining Ventura and propose particularly to test out the shallow strata.

ADVOCATE NEW MARKET SYSTEM

Federal Trade Commission Makes Annual Report.

Would Centralize Selling of Perishable Goods.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Establishment of central markets for perishable food products in all large cities and the setting up of a Federal licensing system applicable to all dealers in such foods at those markets is proposed by the Federal Trade Commission in its annual report today to Congress.

The commission's conclusions are based on an investigation covering many months, and it declares that Federal action is necessary to obtain effective regulation and to avoid unfair and wasteful practices, with the consequent effect on prices. In the present system the commission sees as a hindrance to the proper passage of perishables from the producer to the consumer certain interstate dealings which it believes should be eliminated, and it suggests that the handling of these products be surrounded by numerous regulations and restrictions such as the recording of available supplies, the dating of cold storage periods and provisions for auction marketing.

PROTECT PRODUCER.

Facilities should be made adequate, the commission says, to enable the producer to ship freely into the central markets, and "with proper protection of his interests." The marketing system should be so governed that objectionable hoarding would be eliminated and proper co-ordination of transportation facilities should be accomplished to make deliveries certain when required.

The commission says that "the needed reforms can hardly be expected to be accomplished by the initiative of the dealers," and asserts that State and municipal authorities lack adequate power to effectively regulate the handling of the food supplies. Although co-operation of State and local authorities and railroads might accomplish the ends sought, the commission believes this plan does not hold out much hope for a satisfactory solution of the problem.

CONCENTRATION OF MILLING.

Turning to wheat products, the commission says it has found that concentration of the milling industry has progressed far enough so that "probably ten of the largest milling concerns could supply the demand of the country for flour." The commission mentions incidentally that its figures from thirty-seven milling corporations showed that their sales had increased from $160,000,000 to $350,000,000 between 1914 and 1918, while their annual profits had grown from $5,500,000 to $20,000,000 in the same period.

Reporting on the operation of the Webb-Pomerene Act, permitting formations of associations for export trade, the commission informs Congress that this act has served as "a decided factor" in promoting the progress of American manufacturers in foreign markets. The commission says that during the year forty-three associations, comprising approximately 732 concerns, whose offices and plants are distributed over forty-three States of the Union, reported to it as operating under the export act.

"Records of the commission seem to demonstrate," the report continues, "that the criticism so often charged against United States exporters of failing to cultivate and maintain permanent trade relations abroad, and too often withdrawing from a particular foreign market as soon as more attractive opportunities present themselves at home or elsewhere, will not apply to associations acting under the export-trade act.

"In reply to questionnaires sent out by the commission, requesting an expression of opinion as to the actual working out of the export-trade act, the replies received for the most part expressed satisfaction over results obtained under the law. It was reported that the system of collective advertising and selling makes for the elimination of much useless expense and duplication of effort. Several associations reported that their system of conducting business abroad is meeting with the hearty approval of the foreign customers."

The commission says also that the law, instead of increasing the strength of the already great American industrial establishments, has enabled the smaller concerns to band together in a fashion to push fully organized export trade in a keen competitive manner, which they are not able to do at home. To this extent, the commission believes, the law has worked to the great advantage of the small firms.

BUSINESS SHIP HAS WEATHERED STORMS.

BUT STILL SAILING READJUSTMENT SEA, SAYS FEDERAL RESERVE BANK REPORT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND (O.) Dec. 26.—The Fourth Federal Reserve Bank in its monthly summary of business conditions issued yesterday, says business has weathered the storm of 1920 and that an era of stabilized business conditions is in sight.

"We are still sailing the sea of readjustment," the statement says. "Some squalls have blown up, but the business ship has successfully weathered the storm thus far."

"The fact remains, however," it continues, "in concluding its general survey of the business situation, 'that we are still on the sea and cannot leave the ship until we reach port.'

"We believe land is in sight, and that within a reasonable time we shall safely reach refuge in the harbor of stabilized business."

While the year has been one of surprising developments to many, says the statement, there is nothing but what students of business conditions had expected.

"A substantial liquidation has taken place and the damage done as compared with the good accomplished has been surprisingly small," it says.

FRENCH LAW BLOW TO LOUNGE LIZARDS.

WILL BE COMPELLED TO ENTER SERVICE IN EVENT OF ANOTHER WAR.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Dec. 26. — The new French military regulations strike a blow at lounge lizards, who will all be compelled to do conscript service and, in the event of another war, they will not find the War Office willing to accept either temporary or permanent "sursis," which kept thousands of healthy youngsters in Paris offices during the world conflict.

French subjects who are overseas when they arrive at the mobilization age, however, are to be given special concession terms, which have not yet been defined, but it is expected they will be given five years additional wherein to report and learn how to handle a rifle. Then instead of including them in the regular cadres, they will be attached to the auxiliary or territorial forces. The only citizens who are favored by the government are those with large families, a father with six children not having to respond to the war call, while reservists with four or five children pass to later classes as each youngster arrives. For those preferring real instead of family battles, balms are offered in the form of extension leaves up to thirty days per year.

MIDDLE WEST NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OMAHA, Dec. 26. — Mrs. McElhaney of Alliance, who was found guilty of murder last week, has asked a new trial.

Ernest L. Hess, a Northwestern Railway employee, was found Saturday in a room in the Burlington Hotel, shot through the heart. His wife, returning from a walk, made the discovery. Indications are that death was accidental.

MARINE INSURANCE SYNDICATES NEEDED.

REPEAL OF STATE LAWS, FAVORED BY SHIPPING BOARD AND HOUSE COMMITTEE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The repeal of State anti-trust laws to legalize the new American marine insurance syndicates, is urged in a report today by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries and the Shipping Board.

The report attacks the legislative disabilities imposed by State statutes on the development of American insurance for American ships and recommends a more liberal treatment of American companies in taxation and legal restrictions.

Adoption of remedial measures to put American marine insurance on a par with foreign underwriters is advocated. Specifically, the report advocates enlarging classes of vessels which marine companies may write; authorization of insurance with all American companies and the removal of barriers to the entry of American companies in foreign fields.

MUSICAL.
CHRISTMAS ORATORIO.
PERFORMANCE OF BACH'S "MESSIAH" NOTABLE.

By Jeanne Rehman.

The annual performance of the "Messiah" by the Los Angeles Oratorio Society was given before a large audience yesterday afternoon at the Philharmonic Auditorium. The work was conducted by John Smallman, and members of the Philharmonic Orchestra played.

The effect of this yearly performance of Handel's masterpiece is to draw increasingly large audiences and to add to the Christmas season through the musical influence of the greatest work built around the story of the birth of Christ.

Technically, yesterday's was the best rendition, probably, that the society has given us. The soloists are now fully familiar with the work, and it goes smoothly throughout. The soloists were of unusual excellence.

Fanny Lott, as soprano soloist, repeated notable successes she achieved here recently and made formally established her European reputation as singer of oratorio. Her voice is large and very wide in range, and her production admirable.

The tenor part was sung by Reginald Hammon. His voice is of fine quality, and he gives careful attention to his text. Florence Middleton sang the contralto solos, and produced a fine effect with a wide range of tenuous quality.

The bass was sung by Fred W. Peterson, whose feeling for the sentiment of his songs and oratorios were vigorously applied.

The balance between the soloists and the chorus was well maintained, and the "thin" spots were few. Of course, the tone production of the society is not of a uniform quality of excellence, but the volume is large and the pitch good. The ensemble was completely adequate to the demands put upon him by the chorus and orchestra, and handled the great climaxes with force and discretion.

"POP" CONCERT SHOWS IMPROVED ENSEMBLE

One of the most pretentious programs Misha Guterson has yet arranged was presented by the orchestra at Grauman's yesterday. An improvement in the ensemble of the orchestra was very apparent in the "Sakuntala" Overture by Goldmark. The work of the lower string and wind instruments was striking in the opening movement of mysterious and strained chords, and a word of commendation is in order for the manner in which Guterson held to the climax descriptive of the love theme.

The high light of the orchestral numbers, however, was the third movement of Ippolitow-Ivanow's suite, entitled "Caucasian Sketches." The viola solo introducing this movement by Josef Rosenfeld was beautifully interpreted, as was the expressive strain of the solo violin. The color of Mr. Rosenfeld's tone varied and the depth is unusual, since it resembles the full resonance of the 'cello.

Gutelson's offering of "Angelique," with Sawange Rice at the 'cello obbligato was followed by a long-ood applause and an encore was necessary.

The soloist was Claire Crane, pianiste, whose musicianship coupled with a radiant personality make her very interesting. Her numbers were Chopin's F minor ballade and A flat Polonaise, which showed a brilliance of style, clean technique and breadth of tone.

BRAKE-ROD BREAKS

Street-car Crashes Into Auto and Four People Are Hurt.

Due to a broken brake-rod, a Los Angeles Railway car crashed into an auto at Third and Spring streets last night and injured four people. The occupants of the machine were Frank Johnston, the driver, of 1231 South Hope street; Frank E. Alexander and his wife, Ada Alexander of 2[illegible] Alice street, and Mrs. Nell Alexander, Mr. Alexander's mother. All were taken to the Receiving Hospital where their injuries were dressed by Dr. C. C. Goodrich.

According to witnesses the motorman failed to stop at the corner. An examination by the crew, Motorman Ferguson and Conductor L. W. Gray showed that a brake-rod was broken.

FOR FINAL HONORS TO MRS. FLINT.

Hold Funeral Today for Pacific Colony Head Who Helped Needy Children.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. today at the family residence, 2019 West Washington street, for Mrs. J. Powers Flint of this city, president of the Board of Managers for the Pacific Colony, which she established with the assistance of other workers interested in needy children.

It was her privilege, after months of tedious work in search of a suitable site for the colony, to inspect one of its finished buildings at Pomona before death wrote the final chapter of her life. Forty boys are soon to take up occupational training there.

Mrs. Flint became active in political work here when women were given the ballot. As a member of the Friday Morning Club she served on several of its committes for a number of terms. Her maiden name was Mary Moore Flint. The relatives are the widower, J. Powers Flint, and two sons, James Powers Flint, Jr., and Kendrick Moore Flint of this city.

Disappointed in Love, Veteran of War Kills Self.

Said by his parents to have been despondent because of an ill-fated love affair with an unknown woman, Sam Drago, aged 31 years, an Italian dairyman of 1103 Lilac Terrace, and veteran of the World War, yesterday morning killed himself instantly by firing a bullet into his throat. The suicide was committed in his parents' dairy at the above address when his father, Vincent Drago, was busy in another part of the establishment.

Drago's father and sister, Mrs. Josephine Cucci, told Detectives Rico and Hamilton, who investigated, that the young ex-soldier had repeatedly threatened to kill himself. Coroner Williams was notified and the body removed to the Button undertaking parlors.

Ex-Councilman Dies Who Headed Morality Fight.

In the passing of Samuel H. Kingery of 4812 Pasadena avenue early yesterday, the city lost one of its pioneers and a man who took a prominent part in municipal affairs, particularly moral betterment.

Mr. Kingery was a senior member of the City Council when Mayor Snyder was serving as a junior on that body. During his term Mr. Kingery led in a fight for better morals here. He was also the leading spirit in the organization of the First United Brethren Church.

He was born in Pennsylvania, eighty-four years ago, and leaves a widow and a daughter, Miss Frances Kingery, who is a teacher in the Boyle Heights Intermediate School. Funeral services will be conducted at the Garrett Chapel tomorrow at 2 p.m. by Rev. John A. Eby, assisted by Rev. H. C. Shaffer. Burial will be at Inglewood.

GIRL RIDER HURLED UNDERNEATH HORSE.

Hurled underneath the horse she was riding near Edendale yesterday afternoon, Miss Carie Comport, 16 years of age, daughter of a well-to-do rancher near Silver Lake, suffered a broken left wrist. She was treated at the Receiving Hospital and then sent home with friends. The horse, she said, became frightened at a passing crowd of hikers.

RUSSIANS HERE WOULD GO HOME

Petition Harding to Secure Them Safe Passage.

Conduct Classes in Own Tongue for Scores Daily.

President-elect Harding is asked to secure safe passage back to Russia for a large portion of the Los Angeles Russian colony in a resolution made public yesterday by the local Russian Progressive Club. The members declare that they are forced to remain in the United States against their will, and set forth that the soviet government is willing to send ships for them, but that present regulations do not permit Russian ships to enter American harbors.

The resolution says:

"Whereas: We, the Russian workers of Los Angeles are forced to remain in the United States against our will; and

"Whereas, we are Russians, therefore believe in the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic and desire to leave peacefully the United States and go to Soviet Russia, and

"Whereas Soviet Russia is willing to send ships for us but they are unable to get safe passage from the United States government for their ships. Therefore be it

"Resolved: We are bringing this matter before the people of the United States in the hope that safe passage will be given us and our families to Soviet Russia; and further be it

"Resolved: That this resolution be sent to President-elect Harding, to the Soviet Russia representative and to the press."

CLUB MEETS DAILY.

There is said to be a well defined back-to-Russia movement among members of the Russian colony which lies south of First street and between Utah and Gless streets. The Russian Progressive Club meets every day and night in an old store building on South Gless and conducts a school where those in sympathy with the movement are taught to read and write Russian.

Miron Baker, a machinist from Chicago, who came to this country from Russia thirteen years ago and who is secretary of the club, says the school is teaching more than 100 men, women and children to read and write Russian and is instructing them in matters pertaining to Soviet Russia.

According to reports many little girls and boys who have been taught English at the Utah-street schools at great effort and expense on the part of the Board of Education, are now learning how to do things they have been instructed in recent years concerning the American government.

"These people don't want to be Americanized, they want to go back to Russia," said Miron Baker yesterday. "As conditions are at present no Russian Soviet boat can come to a United States harbor because this country does not recognize the soviets.

GERMANY NO PASSAGE.

"No other vessels will take us to Russia, and we can't get into Russia, even by taking passage to Germany, because Germany won't let us go across their line.

"The members of our club wish to leave this country because they cannot secure employment here. I am a skilled mechanic and I can't get work. I came here from Chicago several months ago. At that time I had enough money to pay my way back to Russia, but it is all gone now."

George Kapinski, treasurer of the Soviet Medical Relief in this city, expresses the belief that more than half of the 1000 Russians in the local colony are confirmed believers in the soviet system and are anxious to return to Russia.

The Russian Progressive Club held a concert and "village dance" at the Men's Public Club, 321 South Main street, on Friday night to raise a fund for soviet medical relief. The event was in the nature of a celebration of the Wrangel defeat.

PLEADS FOR AN AROUSED CIVIC CONSCIOUSNESS.

Pastor Denounces Those Who Frequent Suburban "Hell Holes" and Drag Southland's Name in Dust.

Speaking on the "Vernon Country Club vs Decency, Will Los Angeles Stand for It?" to the congregation of the Trinity Methodist-Episcopal Church, South, yesterday morning, Rev. "Bob" Shuler, the pastor, both commended The Times for its exposes of law violations in suburban resorts and pleaded for an aroused civic consciousness regarding these hell holes. He said in part:

"I am here this morning to affirm that the only more shameful tragedy that I can think of is that a hundred thousand Los Angeles citizens have not arisen in their indignation and demanded that the gates of the Vernon Country Club be closed in the name of ordinary decency, never again to be opened until there can be assurance given that those who resort thither will deport themselves at least half as decently as semisavages would on a similar occasion. In God's name, where is the conscience of our citizenship? Have we women displaying their nakedness brazenly, openly, flagrantly and viciously; booze sold openly contrary to law, the most suggestive dancing engaged in. And yet Los Angeles Christians sit dumbly by. We who are placed as God's watchmen on the wall open not our mouths. If I know my heart I would rather die tomorrow at the hands of an assassin than to condone with my silence or sanction with my speechlessness such a crime against decency, civilized society and Christian American ideals.

"What has become of the policemen who were parties to this shame that has befallen us, who drank on duty and perjured themselves? Echo only answers.

"True, I am a new man in this city, but I am not a new man in the affairs of this old world. This city can never prosper in the things of God while it she sacrifices her moral character.

"This city needs some real, backboned manhood and a bunch of women whose chastity is so certainly defended by modesty and virtuous behavior that they will gladly no public pride, no community self-respect, no resentment at the shameless rape of the good name of Southern California."

"But I am informed that the ministers of this city had best go slow in discussing this affair, since many of the society ladies of the city were present. Ah, well, I haven't been in this city long enough to know all the marks of a lady of society at the Vernon Country Club, but where I was reared a real lady, whether in or out of society, would no more have been found at such a gathering as she would have volunteered to her bosom a mountain rattler. There may have been present scores of women from the richest families in Los Angeles. I do not know and I do not care. I do know this: The account of that Saturday night carousal as published in The Times sounded most familiar to every old rounder in this city who reveled back in the redlight district days now far beyond recall. And those old nesters who have gone the way of cigarette-smoking, wine-drinking, seminude, slobbering women of the underworld, might give you a better idea of what constitutes a real lady than some folks think—or rather what does not constitute a real lady.

"I will say that the sooner modern society, whether at the Vernon Country Club or elsewhere, leaves off the paint and dance and cigarette and booze of the brothel, the surer will American civilization be saved from the pit of the damned, toward which it is now being plunged by the fact that we have lost our ideals and standards in going the sloppy way of twentieth-century pleasure.

"What was the situation? A thousand people more or less, celebrating the coming of our Lord, in the beginning of the Christmas season, on the evening of the Holy Sabbath, set apart of God as sacred, engaged in a drunken carousal; defying the laws of the nation with officers of the law assisting; hugging, kissing in drunken fashion; dis before they will submit to the brazen familiarity that is today sapping the very life out of our city. And to this end, I declare that we need some emphasis placed, as it is not being, upon the program of Him whose birth we are commemorating, which program has ever safeguarded the American home and those institutions that afford our country protection against a decay that can result in nothing less than national collapse. For this reason, I stand as a minister and point to my Lord as the one cure for such moral degeneracy and social outrage as have been heralded by a newspaper in this city, whose surprising courage should be a lesson to ministers and churchmen in their future stand upon such performances.

"In saying the above, I only take a position that as God's messenger I must take. To stand elsewhere or to stand silently under such circumstances would be treason to my Lord."

ASKS GRAND JURY TO ACT.

Declaring that the grand jury is responsible for conditions at the Vernon Country Club and should act at once, Dr. Gustav A. Briegleb of the Westlake Presbyterian Church preached on "The Devil's Garden" to a large congregation last night.

Highly commending The Times for its expose of conditions at Vernon, and commending the jury which found Harry Brolaski guilty at San Francisco on a charge of having violated the Volstead Act, Dr. Briegleb declared he thought that church people might better cease blue law movements and devote their time to making men and women better citizens, in order to remove from their hearts the desire to do things which are unlawful.

"You can't legislate goodness into the hearts of men," said Dr. Briegleb. "You must get into their hearts and work outward."

Dr. Briegleb said that the wave of crime now spreading over the country is due in large measure to too much don't and not enough do.

FIND BLUE LAWS TOO BLUE.

A majority of the provisions of the proposed Sunday blue laws are neither reasonable nor desirable, in the opinion of many Los Angeles pastors who have expressed themselves on the campaign launched by the Lord's Day Alliance. Some modification of Sunday customs is favored by most of the ministers, but they are almost a unit in opposing those features of the blue law program which would upset mail and train service and many other essential seven-day-a-week activities now accepted as necessary and proper.

Here is what Dr. Edgar Fay Daugherty, pastor of the First Christian Church, has to say about the Sunday blue law as formulated by the reformers.

WASTED ENERGY.

"Any movement of self-constituted reformers looking toward the abridgement of innocent personal liberties, or the stoppage of essential activities in our complex modern life on Sunday, is an expenditure of energy that might have better direction.

"The observance of the rest and worship day in the week, is a matter of the spirit of men, rather than a form for the church; the institution was made for man, rather than man for the institution. As a churchman I would like to see men put more religious habit and less personal dissipation into the day's observance, but I would as soon bay at the moon as to plead for a compulsory church attendance."

MADE FOR MAN.

Rabbi Emanuel Schreiber in his sermon at Temple Emanu-El Friday said: "The sabbath was made for man and not man for the sabbath.' Mark 2:27; Matthews 12:8 These words of Jesus were the answer to the "The sabbath was made for man and not man for the sabbath.' Mark 2:27; Matthew 12:8. These words

OIL KING MADE ONE BAD GUESS

Rockefeller Told Vanderlip Supply Was Too Great.

Refused Chance of Intertst in Siberian Field.

Before Autos, Gasoline Went Into Creeks as Waste.

"John D. Rockefeller thought there was too much oil in the world back in 1903," said Washington B. Vanderlip, American engineer, who recently arrived in this city after having secured from the soviet government of Russia a land grant embracing 400,000 square miles and orders for merchandise approximating $3,000,000,000 in value.

"I interviewed Mr. Rockefeller in 1903 with a view to interesting him in the enormous reservoirs of petroleum that are lying dormant in that vast undeveloped region of limitless natural resources which we designate as Siberia. The great oil magnate could not, however, be interested, and he turned me down with the remark quoted above. Of course, in those days there were no automobiles to speak of. The vehicle propelled by an internal combustion engine was in its infancy, there were probably not over 100 of these vehicles in existence and those that were being manufactured at that time were for experimental purposes only.

"In the big refineries of the East gasoline was being allowed to run down into the creeks as a valueless product incident to the refining of kerosene or coal oil, or paraffine, as the British called it.

REPORT FOR BRITISHERS.

"This reference to the English, by the way, reminds me of an experience I had with a bright young Britisher. This young man was the secretary of one of the big British syndicates by which I had been commissioned to make a report on the oil resources of Siberia. In this report I had devoted several pages of typewritten matter to data concerning the crude oil resources of that great region. When this bright young man had read the report he called me in for a conference. He opened the conversation with the following remark:

"'I say, Mr. Vanderlip, I notice that you have cluttered up your report with a mass of statistics and ancient data as to the crude oil resources of Siberia. Now, my good man, just what is crude oil? I have no knowledge of the stuff and I doubt very much that your account of it has any place in an engineers' report dealing with important facts as to the resources of Siberia.'

"I undertook to explain as best I could to this young, man just what crude oil was. I told him it was the raw material from which coal oil was made.

"'Coal oil,' he replied, 'What is coal oil?'

BURN IT IN LAMPS.

"'Why coal oil is kerosene,' I replied. 'Kerosene is what you burn in lamps.'

"'Ah!' he replied. 'You mean paraffine.'

"'Well, yes,' I replied. 'Have your own way about it. But we Americans call it coal oil or kerosene.'

"'Very true, very true,' responded the young man, 'but still I see no place in this report for such an elaborate account of it.'

"So I removed the offensive portion of the report and determined then and there to reserve this for future use. It makes me smile now when I see the anxiety of the British government over the oil resources of Siberia and other regions. The world do move.

"Britain," said Mr. Vanderlip, "was not interested because of British ignorance of the value of crude oil. John D. Rockefeller, the wizard of that great industry, was confident that there was too much oil in the world. But today, the whole world is interested in oil and Siberia is the future storehouse from which the oil needs of the world will have to be drawn."

TO ELECT OFFICERS.

H. van der Linden, W. J. Wallace, E. C. Wilson, John T. Wootan.

CHILDREN OF MASONS BAPTIZED.

Scottish Rite Ctremony is Thought to be First of Its Kind on Pacific Coast.

One hundred and thirteen boys and girls, children and grandchildren of members of the Scottish Rite were dedicated to truth and virtue and to the watchful care of all members of the fraternity amid solemnly impressive ceremonies yesterday afternoon at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 929 South Hope street.

More than 500 persons, including the parents and the godfathers and godmothers of those dedicated, gathered in the stately auditorium to witness the baptisms, believed to have been the first of this kind on the Pacific Coast. The ceremony is distinctly a Masonic one, and not a Christian, officers of the Scottish Rite explained, and has for its purpose the guiding and upholding of the protecting hand of Free Masonry.

After the Masonic rites were over, members of the Christian faith who desired it were given Christian baptism by Dean MacCormack of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral. A feature of the services was the special music by the Scottish Rite choir.

The Masonic baptism in the name of Masonry lasted from 2 to 4 p.m., and the ceremonies were in charge of the presiding officers of the organization.

TO OPEN NEW BRANCH.

Security Bank Vice-President Heads New Organization.

While workmen were putting the finishing touches on the interior of the banking room, the new officers of the Seventh-street branch of the Security Trust and Savings Bank at West Seventh street and Grand avenue, were busy yesterday with final arrangements for the opening of the branch this morning.

A force of sixteen men will be employed at the branch, from the opening, to be increased as business requires. S. F. Zompky, former president of the Central National Bank, which later merged with the Security Trust and Savings Bank, is the manager of the branch, retaining his title of vice-president of the main bank. With him are associated as assistant managers W. D. Otis, who has been for many years with the Security Trust and Savings Bank, and C. S. Albro, long with the Security National Bank.

IN A CHRISTMAS PLAY.

"A Puritan Christmas" will be presented by the Children Players in the Pasadena Community Playhouse Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon. This piece is being given in honor of the Pilgrims' tercentenary, which is being observed all over the country. The Shakespeare Club and Daughters of the Revolution will be patronesses for these children's productions and large parties are coming to Pasadena for them from Los Angeles, Hollywood, Whittier and other nearby towns, because of the historical significance of the undertaking. Another playlet on the program is "The Babushka" which deals with a Christmas legend of Russia.

ANGRY CITIZENS TO PROSECUTE.

Will Ask Complaint Against Reputed Reckless Driver.

Youth, Child Perhaps Fatally Hurt in Street Crashes.

A felony complaint against R. F. Maurer, a broker of 103 West Fourth street, who was surrounded and arrested early yesterday morning by six infuriated citizens, after the automobile he had been driving had crashed into a machine standing at the side of a road a short distance west of Culver City and injured four persons, one perhaps fatally, will be sworn to by the citizens this morning, it was declared last night at the University Police Station, where Maurer is held. If the citizens fail to act a felony complaint will be filed by the University police or the Sheriff's office, it is stated.

Fred C. Nass, a nurse, age 34 years, who with Miss Hazel Gross, 21 years of age, supervisor of studies for a film company, suffered the more severe injuries, was reported at the White Memorial Hospital last night as being in a doubtful condition. Surgeons stated that he sustained a possible fracture of the skull which may prove fatal. Both of Miss Gross's arms were broken, but it was said her condition is improved. James M. Roe and Catherine S. Beck, who were with Nass and Miss Gross in the machine standing at the side of the road, escaped with lacerations and bruises. All of the injured, who were rushed to the Receiving Hospital in private machines, gave their address as 716 Columbia avenue.

Maurer was taken to the University Police Station by the six citizens and booked on the charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated and with failing to render assistance to the injured persons. An accident occurred outside the city, Deputy Sheriffs Hots and Cooper investigated. Roe had been repairing a punctured tire when Maurer's machine crashed into the standing car, they said.

Struck from his motorcycle by an automobile driven by F. H. Beard of 219 East Fifty-fourth street at Fourth street and Western avenue yesterday, Joseph Vaillelneve, aged 23 years, of 1170 West Eleventh street, suffered concussion of the brain, a punctured left cheek and lacerations of the left ear that almost tore away that organ. He was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, where it was said last night that he is in a serious condition.

While playing in front of his home yesterday afternoon, 9-year-old Eddie Ramsey of 1308 North Broadway was struck by a machine driven by Earl Smith of 422 South Grand avenue and probably fatally injured.

According to the report of the accident filed with the police, Eddie had been playing on the sidewalk with some other children, but dashed into the street, where he was run down by Smith's car. He was run down by Smith's car and it was found that he had fractured skull and possible internal injuries. He was then removed to the Children's Hospital.

EXTRA PAY IS GIVEN.

Broadway Department Store Remembers Its Loyal Workers.

Additional compensation ranging from a half week's to two weeks' salary was paid employees of the Broadway Department Store by Arthur Letts, the president, last week. In announcing the payment of the additional salary, Mr. Letts announced that the money was being paid in appreciation of the loyal service of the employees.

Those who had been with the store six months were given a half week's pay extra; those employed for a year were given one week's extra salary and those who had been employed for more than a year were given two weeks' salary. Extra or special workers employed since January 1 were given a half week's extra pay and those employed previous to that date a week's extra pay.

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

BY DOROTHY DIX.

No sane person underestimates the value of appearances. Not being mind readers or seers, we cannot know what secret talents, what hidden graces of mind and character our fellow-creatures possess. All that we can see is the outside, and so we form our opinion of others on the front they put up.

We take note of their dress, of the style in which they live, of the company they frequent, and how much money they spend, and we rate them accordingly. Without direct evidence to the contrary, we assume that the man who is well dressed and prosperous looking is older and more forceful and of a higher order of ability than the man who is shabby and seedy and down at the heels.

So true is the adage that nothing succeeds like success that there is wisdom in camouflaging it on many occasions. A young doctor, for instance, who hires a good office in a desirable location, who wears good clothes and who appears to be rushed to death with work undoubtedly has a better chance of getting patients than the young physician whose office is a mere hole in the wall and who sits all day rubbing his shiny elbows on his table, waiting for the patients that do not come. People are like sheep, they go in droves and follow where someone else leads, and the more they think you don't need their money the more anxious they are to give it to you.

Women have been quicker to grasp the full significance of the value of appearances than men have. That is why they are dress-mad. They know that fine feathers make fine birds, and that a homely woman in beautiful clothes makes more impression than a living picture does in a dowdy frock.

Also they know that a man's success depends largely upon the sort of appearance his wife presents, for a man's wife is the show window in which he makes a visible display of the degree of prosperity he has achieved. Hence, a clever woman who wishes to help her husband is justified in having a house that is Queen Anne in front and Mary Ann in the back, and in economizing on the family's stomach in order to put the money on the family's back until they make their title good to a residence on Easy street.

There are, however, two sides to this matter of keeping up appearances, and while it is without doubt highly desirable for poor and ambitious people to look prosperous, nothing is more disastrous to their prospects than to overdo the prosperity stunt. They must look good, but not too good. For it doesn't do to overplay even a virtue.

Girls often make the mistake of doing this. A poor girl who is a genius with her needle, and a shark for hunting out remnants at bargain sales, will dress so that she looks like a daily hint from Paris. Instead of being clever enough to tell how she does it, and thereby win the admiration of all who know her, she will yawn languidly when anyone compliments her hat or gown and say, "Oh, yes. This is a simple little thing that I got from Victorine," and everyone who knows Victorine's prices will begin to look at her slantwise and wonder where she got the money.

Many a good girl's reputation has been ruined in this way, because she dressed too well for her station in life. Many a girl has missed a good husband because she wore such expensive looking clothes that no poor young man, with his own way to make, dared tackle her dress bill. So the poor girl, who wants to look like a million dollars should be there with her alibi of how she does it on 50 cents, or else her bluff at putting up the appearance of Miss Million Bucks will be her undoing.

It is equally important that a young man should appear to be the thing he wishes to be. Among my acquaintances is a young man who really has plenty of ability, and industry, and ambition. He has no money, and a very poor job that pays him an insignificant salary, but he is handsome, and agreeable and well bred, and a good dancer, and he is in much demand among hostesses who need that sort of a man to fill in their parties.

The result is that this chap is seen out night after night at theaters and dances, and running with a gay, rich crowd, and he's got the reputation of being a lounge lizard, and business men think he is no good.

And you can't blame them. There are no records of eminent financiers, or merchant princes, who were conspicuous for their social success in their youth. The men who are at the head of things, and hold the money bags now, were not hopping around ball-room floors and pursuing the elusive golf ball, even at somebody else's expense, thirty years ago. They were putting up a life-like appearance of industry, and frugality that attracted the favorable attentions of employers who had good jobs to hand out, and of people who wanted to deal with merchants who were looking after their business.

Nothing queers a man's chances of success quicker than to live beyond his means. The house a little better than he ought to live in; the automobile he is paying for on the installment plan; the country club with the sporty set whose pace he hadn't the money to keep; these have been the stop to many a promising career.

For once let people commence asking the fatal question: How can he afford it? and it is all over with a man. He is under suspicion of either being crooked or a fool, and when men begin to discount another man's honesty or his intelligence, he is done for so far as getting along is concerned.

On the other hand, when a young couple registers industry, and thrift, and independence, when they dress within their means, when both of them work, and save, and show that they have an eye to the future, everybody gives them a hand up.

After all, it is quite impossible to overestimate the value of appearances. Right or wrong.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Strict Law Enforcement.

INGLEWOOD, Dec. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In last Friday's issue of The Times, G. F. Lavin gives his views on the subject of lynching, and calls for expressions from other readers.

For one, I certainly agree with him, for it seems to be fast becoming the only way to deal with dangerous criminals.

We are the people! We make laws through our representatives in the States legislatures, or representatives at national headquarters, and through the chicanery of lawyers and judges, these laws have become of no effect. Immediately a notorious criminal is detected and arrested, immediately the best legal talent to be procured is provided for the defense, and all technicalities and arts of the profession brought to bear to nullify the statutes.

What about the Caplan case? Why should The Times object, if by a technicality this worse than criminal can be set at liberty? Is it a case of "the other ox that is gored?"

In view of the fact that so many criminals are probated—so many given light fines, a travesty made of justice—what about a vigilance committee, such as prevailed in San Francisco some years ago, and effectively, too?

Carrie Nation meant well in her crusades, but she took hold of the wrong horn of the dilemma. The saloon-keepers were only doing what the minions of the law quietly approved of and permitted. Carrie should have supplied herself with coils of hemp rope, and strung the officials who stultified the laws. Such action on her part would have done more for the enforcement of the laws than to smash the fixtures and destroy the liquors in the whole State of California.

The man who recklessly violates the speed laws, and in so doing kills an inoffensive innocent human being, is as guilty of deliberate murder as the one who used the knife or gun.

But our judges, with the connivance of lawyers, set them free.

We are the people! We make the laws! When the majority arise in their right, and take initiative, that act is legal. They make it so.

"To What Base Uses—"

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I quote the following verbatim from the headlines of a Los Angeles evening newspaper: "Murdered Woman Identified. Love Motive Revealed." The particular murder referred to, I may add, was one of the most brutal and beastly and degrading in all the long list that is daily disbed up as news matter for a discriminating Los Angeles public. As to what love is, I can only suppose it is what the preachers tell us it is, the rock on which the Christian Church is founded.

Comment seems superfluous. "Murdered Woman Identified—Love Motive Revealed" is a whole week-a-day sermon condensed into six words. Through the headlines of a Los Angeles newspaper we learn the final effects of our cardinal Christian virtue as a promoter of murder in its foulest and filthiest form. And probably not one of a hundred readers saw anything incongruous in the premise and the result. Judged by our twentieth century standards love as a motive for murder is perfectly plausible and correct.

But even Frederick Nietzsche in his savagest moment never dreamed that the gospel of love could attain such sublimity as this.

GASOLINE ALLEY—BILL'S GETTING FINICKY

A Very Important 5-Day Clearance of Office Furnishings

Although the idea of a Sale in its general interpretation is contrary to the policies and principles which have guided this business from the days of its inception 8 years ago, we have, after very thoughtful consideration, chosen the sale method as a quick means to a desired end.

Including today we have only five days' more business in our present home. We celebrate the opening of our new 7-story home at 420 south Spring St. under the name Pacific Desk Company, next Monday, Jan. 3rd.

We prefer not to move a single sample from our present floor displays to our new home, and there are some lines of desks, chairs, filing cabinets and other office furniture which we plan to discontinue handling altogether. To close out all such lines and floor samples between now and next Friday night we will offer

Accept our assurance that this is a real opportunity to save very considerably on highly desirable office furniture, flat top desks, roll top desks, directors' and office tables, stenographers' desks, swivel chairs, side chairs, filing cabinets and other equipment essential to the modern efficient business office.

Coming right at the time when you are making your enlarged plans for the New Year business we believe you will appreciate this opportunity. It is the first publicly announced reduced price event in the history of the business. Only the fact that we are moving to our new home in a few days makes such an event possible and permissible even now. Insofar as we know now we will never put on another such clearance.

The Reduced Prices are for 5 Days Only, Including Today

DR. ELMER E. HELMS.
FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

"'In the fulness of time God sent forth his Son.' When was that? God gave time to three peoples—the Hebrew, Greek, Roman—the task of making the world ready for His son. Jerusalem. Athens, Rome, became the world's teachers. When the Hebrew, Greek and Roman lines met at a common point that was the fulness of time. Time entrusted to the Hebrew the knowledge of the true God. This unique gift he was to hold sacred and separate. So the word 'separation' was the great word with the Hebrew. Ceremony, service, temple, ritual all emphasized 'separation.' The second great word was 'anticipation.'

While other great nations looked back, the Hebrew looked forward. He was saved by hope. The golden age was to be. His King was yet to come.

"The third great word was 'dispersion.' God now permitted the Hebrew to be scattered, through persecution, to the ends of the earth. And he planted his synagogue and the knowledge of the true God in all the famed cities and centers. And everywhere men began to cry, 'Oh, that we knew where I might find Him!'

"But if ever men learn of the true God they must be told by the human voice. To the Greek, God entrusted the high task of preparing a language fit, flexible, capable of carrying the good news to all people. 'In the fulness of time' the famed Attic mind had come to full fruition—the subtlest, richest, most varied, most beautiful, most expressive tongue ever given to man.

"Through the Greek, God prepared a language able to tell the story of His love to all people, in all places, men of every kind and, clime.

"But men cannot 'go into all the world' with the good news without roads and law, and order, and protection. To the Roman was committed the task of molding the scattered semi-barbaric tribes into world unity. The Appian Way, and others as great, radiated from Rome to the edges of civilization. And over the roads thundered the Roman legions to preserve law and order, assuring travelers of safety and security.

"It is now 12 o'clock—God's time. 'The fulness of time is come.' 'Hark! the herald angels sing, glory to the newborn King.' The desire of all nations is here. Christ is born in Bethlehem."

DR. HERBERT BOOTH SMITH.
IMMANUEL PRESBYTERIAN

"I want to speak this morning about three of the pillars of the world—Christ by His Christmastide, His manger birth, set up a new scale of values. He exalted some forgotten and despised elements of society to their rightful place. We propose to examine three of these new pillars which we call childhood, womanhood, laborhood. First, Christmas and childhood. Christmas means the enthronement and illumination of the child. Jesus was the first reformer to set childhood in the center of the circle that all light might radiate from it. The children of the olden time were welcome nowhere and nobody cared. But Jesus put a crown upon their heads and a smile on their faces and put on them the garments of a prince. The slogan 'women and children first' has become a part of the unwritten law of the twentieth century civilization.

"Christmas and womanhood. Let us turn back the pages of history and search amid the debris of the heathen world for this thing we call woman. Where do we find her, on the throne or in the dust? Jesus was the first advocate of woman's rights. His gospel said, 'There can be no male and female, for ye are all one man in Christ Jesus.' The great movement for woman's rights in the last twenty-five years is one of the packages on the Christmas tree which Jesus brought to the world when He came.

"Christmas and laborhood. Why decorate the shepherds with heaven's glory? God wanted to show the world that a new day was at hand for the group of toil. Christmas made all the difference in the world to the toilers. The spirit of Christ's love for the humblest has awakened the admiration of the world."

REV. T. F. DAUGHERTY.
FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

"When the supreme teacher gave childhood its throne in human hearts and minds, the disciples who occasioned the placement were discussing the question, 'Who is greatest?' The world persists in discussing the question, in trying to settle it by trials at cleverness, force, education or what not; but the divine answer was, 'Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven.'

"The world, when Christ walked Galilean paths, was topheavy with selfconceit; the determinative figures and orders of men in the world today carry an oversupply of selfconceit; they largely tend to patronize each other, or to patronize the church as the champion of the ideals of the kingdom of heaven; while adoption, rather than patronage, is the attitude men need toward the kingdom of heaven.

"The child is in our midst, supremely to emphasize the necessity of learning, of growing. We have become as little children when we have set up the definite purpose of becoming better men and women according to our light, in every direction. When we have undertaken to educate ourselves into better ways of thinking, feeling and living. Whether we have come into the kingdom with a dramatic experience or not little matters; the main thing is to be faithful scholars in the school of Christ."

CHURCH OF THE OPEN DOOR.

"The gladdest message this old sorrowing, sin-ruined world had ever heard up to that time was the one the messenger from heaven brought to the watching shepherds on the hills near Bethlehem in the early hours of the first Christmas morning, and the sweetest chorus this old world has ever heard was that which 'the multitude of the heavenly host' sang when the angel had completed his announcement, that the all-sufficient Savior, had at last after centuries of weary waiting, been born. The great need of this world was a Saviour, and the angel declared that this Saviour had at last come, that He had been born, just where the prophet Micah, upwards of seven centuries before had said He would be born, 'In Bethlehem of Judea,' 'the city of David.' The Saviour was born that first Christmas Day, Jehovah became incarnate that first Christmas Day.

"Jesus was born for a purpose and that purpose was that He might die, that through death He might bring to nought Him that had the power of death. And having died and made perfect atonement for sin, He rose, and was given "all authority in heaven and on earth, and now as risen has power to save to the uttermost them that draw near unto God through Him."

REYNOLD E. BLIGHT.
CHURCH OF THE PEOPLE.

"Jesus Christ is the supreme genius of the centuries. It is well that we date our history from His birth because the angel song over the Bethlehem hills ushered in a new era.

"Seeking the purpose of his life and work in the gospels, we find not the slightest intimation that He came to found a hierarchy, establish a temporal kingdom, propound a new philosophy, establish a dogma or reveal a supramundane realm. Very explicitly he declared that His purpose was to bring glad tidings that should heal the broken-hearted, set free those that were bound, break the power of evil, establish righteousness, and lay the foundations for the kingdom of God upon the earth. This was to be accomplished by giving humanity a new spiritual impulse, lifting before them a new social ideal and making men realize their relationship to the Father whose name was Love.

"The way of Christ is the only way out of the prevailing chaos of conflict, hatred and misery that now afflicts humanity. We have tried a thousand panaceas and experimented with unnumbered schemes put forth by enthusiastic and confident social reformers, but there is no hope for relief from the universal wretchedness until humanity sits at the feet of the gentle Christ and learns of him. Pride and arrogance must give place to simplicity and sincerity. Greed and self-aggrandizement must give way to generosity and human sympathy. The Christ Spirit alone will save the world."

REV. M. C. DEWEESE.
WESTERN AVENUE CHRISTIAN.

"Walt Whitman has said: 'Now mark me well, it is inherent in the nature of things that from any fruition of success, however complete, shall come forth something that shall make a greater struggle necessary.' This is but another interpretation of one of the Master's great lessons, forecast in this text, 'He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works shall he do, because I go unto my Father.'

"When Christ delivered that utterance He was thinking of the great task of spreading His gospel message throughout the whole world, and He wanted His disciples to understand that this was a much greater work that He was able to accomplish in the brief three years of His ministry. Now He is still urging us to grasp the importance of these greater works, to be achieved, and to each of you individual Christians comes the appeal for a greater exertion in His behalf. You were not saved that you might sit down and wait for Christ to come, but he wishes you to be continually telling the good news to others, urging them to help in raising the other fellow above the mire of earthly entanglements of sin.

"World conditions today are but another illustration of this great truth. We have succeeded in ridding the world of a great menace to the peace of mankind. The work we have just finished requires us to strive for greater things. We see that by united effort we may bring about world peace. We are slow in getting under way, but we will get under way and then the accomplishments of our age will be in proportion to those following other epoch-making events of the past.

"Christians! This is the day and the hour to be doing greater things for the kingdom. 'By their works ye shall know them.'"

LAKE AVENUE METHODIST.

"The Christmas of the shepherds ran over into the next day. It may mean to us the workingman's Christmas, the Christmas of the man unread, the poor man's Christmas, the quiet Christmas of the stars and stillences. Even more wisely it spells the ordinary Christmas. A company of shepherds would have among them the types of the race. Among their crooks is hidden the average man. His Christmas is the likely Christmas of most of us. An extraordinary Christmas does little preaching. The sermon is in the ordinary Christmas.

"An ordinary Christmas carries the reality of a world invisible. Its stories of angels and God and bewildering wonders are very reasonable, granted the world we see is not the whole of it. If it is the whole of it, it is ours to tell how a book of frauds can do so large a business with the truth. Being ordinary men, we go on seeing in the dark.

"An ordinary Christmas carries also the benediction of the invisible. Were Christmas a time of fasting and tears, it would doubtless be less popular. The joy of the Christ is His strength. The great bulk of life is comfort. We wince at pain that is rare. That the world within the veil is good-will and peace, we run to meet it. It is a friendly sky above our toil and sleep.

"So the ordinary Christmas sends us on with an optimistic vision of life. With the shepherds we bless God for all we see and hear. The Star of Bethlehem is not heraldry of apprehension, but glad tidings. It does not happen that angels sing. They know too much to croak. Their ages do not end in a crash. Their world grows better."

THE WHITE TEMPLE.

"It is easier to explain Jesus in the terms of the Scriptures than it is on rationalistic grounds. It is a self-evident fact, whether He was real or imaginary, that we have a record of His life and teachings. It is equally certain that somebody wrote this record. Can we believe that it is the product of the minds of four simple fishermen who lived in that far-off age of ignorance and superstition? Then we have a greater miracle than the life of Jesus, for it has been the supreme ambition of all the master minds of all the ages to portray or paint or to incarnate in sculpture, architecture or music a perfect ideal. Is it possible that this marvel was wrought by four simple, ignorant men when the genius of all the ages has failed? The very fact that His example is the incarnation of all good and the representation of all that I ought to be is sufficient for me to accept Him as my guide and exemplar.

"Unto you was born in the city of David a saviour. He saves in the most natural and reasonable way by teaching the truth regarding human duty and destiny. Jesus covered the whole domain of human duty. No one virtue has been discovered in two thousand years. He designated every vice, and no man today can do anything that He condemned without suffering for it in this life, whatever the next may be. He never read a book, consulted an authority or asked time for deliberation. Never man spake as this man spake. This is enough for me. His life without His miracles attests that He is the safest along the unknown path of life that stretches away into the darkness.

"He saves us by exemplifying in His own life the divine ideal. No man has ever found a flaw in His character. The Declaration of Independence and the American Constitution are the concrete expression of the Masonic ideal of government. But it must be remembered that it was the open Bible in the Masonic lodge that fired the hearts of our revolutionary forefathers to put this ideal into practice, and let it be remembered that the ideal itself came from the Sermon on the Mount."

PASTORS HIT GLOOM LAWS.

of Jesus were the answer to the fanatics who reproached him because he allowed his hungry disciples to break the law by plucking ears of corn and to eat them on the sabbath. This passage is a translation from the Hebrew commentary on Exodus 31:13, 'Verily my sabbath ye shall keep.'

"What does this wise answer of Jesus to the bigots of His own day mean? It conveys the significant lesson that a weekly day of rest was instituted for man's and not for God's benefit. The sabbath is not so much the 'Lord's Day' as man's day, for God needs no day of rest from hard work.

"Among the ancient heathen what we call sabbath was a 'day of gloom.' Emperor Constantine in the year 321 was the first to enact laws in honor of the Sun-God, but it was not yet a fixed day for every week. The Babylonians considered it a day of ill omen. Sabbath is a Hebrew word, 'Shabbath,' meaning rest.

"The fourth commandment reads 'Six days shalt thou labor, but the seventh day is a day of rest, also for thy man and maid servant.' This passage virtually meant the abolition of slavery and the proclamation of the dignity of labor. But, what constitutes rest? Does it mean doing nothing? No human being can stand this. It simply means change of occupation, or recreation.

"Jesus's reply to the fanatics, 'The sabbath was made for man' emphasizes the Hebrew prophet, especially Isaiah, expressed in the passage, 'and thou shalt call the sabbath a joyous delight.' (Isaiah 58.)

DOESN'T PROHIBIT.

"Encouraged by the prohibition law which, as we all know, does not prohibit, our own enemies of liberty begin a fresh war on cigarettes, on high-heeled shoes, dancing, music, theaters, and want to introduce the Blue Sunday of the seventeenth century.

"They want to force people to attend church by force of police. Hence they insist on iron laws to prohibit theaters, concerts, places of amusement, moving pictures, except those shown in the churches, Sunday excursions, all games and sports and rides in automobiles, trains and trolley cars, except (how considerate for their own selfish purposes!) when necessary to carry the people to and from church.

"Do these peculiar 'Saints' lay the flattering unction to their souls that the millions whom, by power of police they propose to rob of their Sunday recreations and amusement, will by such means by made friends of the church?' Have they so little knowledge of psychology and human nature as not to be aware of the fact that all these people, who so far are merely indifferent to religion, will become her outspoken enemies? It is the law of nature that pressure produces counter-pressure."

Rev. Thomas O. Grieves, pastor of the Westlake Methodist Church, expresses the opinion that the Sunday blue law promoters have "bitten off a little more than they can chew." He says:

"Efforts to legally bring back such an observance of the Sunday as was known in the days of the Puritans will always find favor in the eyes of many of those who deplore the license and liberty of the present day to desecrate and commercialize the Lord's Day. The Christian who knows something of the past has no desire to have the Puritan Sabbath return.

"Is there not a medium between the austere and repellent bitterness of the unlovely Sundays when one could have no real happiness but was confronted by an endless array of 'thou shalt nots,' and the present irreligious tendency when the world seems to have entered into a conspiracy to rob us of the spiritual and domestic rest and joy of the Lord's Day? That the passage of the proposed blue laws will supply this middle way I can scarcely believe. They propose to swing the pendulum as far back as it now swings the other way."

MUCH NOT FEASIBLE.

Agreeing with the opinion of Rev. Mr. Grieves and Dr. Daugherty, Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Helms of the First Methodist Episcopal Church says:

"In regard to the so-called Sunday blue laws as formulated by the reformers behind the movement in Washington, I believe that some of the provisions are not, in the present day and age, practically feasible. Of course I would like to see a Sunday law that would provide for a more conservative and a more sacred observance of the Sabbath than now exists. There is too much laxity shown by the public.

"But it is ridiculous to try to pass laws that would prohibit interstate traffic or commerce. Where would one be if while on a transcontinental journey one were forced to stop at midnight Saturday on the desert? There is a happy medium to be recognized in everything.

"What we want is a sane Sunday law that will fit in with the present day and age."

Though expressing a desire for a more religious Sabbath, Dr. Herbert Booth Smith, pastor of the Immanuel Presbyterian Church, also states that he believes the reformers have been a little overzealous. He says:

DOUBTS PUBLIC SUPPORT.

"It is quite doubtful whether public opinion will ever reach the stage desired by these reformers, though no one could be more anxious than myself to have a more careful and correct observance of the sanctity of the Sabbath Day, whether that day be regarded as coming on the seventh or on the first day of the week. But I feel that these reformers defeat their own purpose in shutting down the bars so tightly that they will antagonize by their suggestions a group of right-minded people who recognize that the necessities of modern life are such that a certain amount of work on the Sabbath Day seems to be demanded and legitimate."

Rev. R. P. Shuler of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, in giving his opinion of the Sunday blue laws, expresses himself as more favorably inclined to the proposed legislation.

"The chaotic condition of the nations that prefer the 'continental or open Sunday,'" he says, "is within itself full and positive answer to those who would produce the same situation in America with reference to her Sabbath.

"The Christian Sabbath has degenerated into a day of gain and play, there have come social disorder, moral delinquency, and the lowering of our standards as a people. For these reasons I favor a law for the protection of our Sabbath."

Can you wear the slim silhouette?

THERE'S positively no evading it this season—one simply must be slim if one would be smart. The couturiers absolutely refuse to design clothes, except for the willowy. And the plump woman's only question is "How?"

In this number, Vogue answers that question as thoroughly, as practically, as authoritatively as it can be done. Diets, exercises, baths, regimens—every safe method is reviewed. All you need in order to be slim is to supply the moral courage and the cheque.

Yet a figure alone isn't enough. There's complexion. Good looks don't just happen. You see only the results—but the most beautiful women in the world have to touch the floor twenty times every morning and rub in cold cream with a circular motion every night—even as you and I. Would you know the secrets of their loveliness? They, too, are in the

VOGUE

Dated January 1

But this number of Vogue doesn't stop with telling you how to be beautiful—slender, smooth-skinned, delicately perfumed, skilfully corseted. It tells you how to dress beautifully as well. Pages and pages picture the exquisite intimacies of the boudoir as Paris sees them—nightgowns that look like negligées, negligées as gorgeous as frocks, simpler models that are lovely but easy to copy, clever lingerie. Pages more show trailing evening gowns and trig things for street wear. And one page is devoted to the beauty of old age, whose privilege is to sit high above all whims of fashion and look picturesque alone. Are you interested in the why of clothes as well as the how? Vogue begins in this number a long-contemplated series of articles on the history of the mode from the earliest B. C. fashions all the way down the ages to the latest Poiret silhouette—authoritative as only Vogue could be. Are you curious about the spring fabrics? Would you like to know about artificial jewels that are almost as effective as real gems? Do ancient mirrors intrigue your fancy? Or do you just want to take advantage of every aid to feminine delicacy and charm that art and imagination can supply? Then .... send Pierre to the nearest news stand now, before all the copies are gone .... and buy the Lingerie and Vanity Number of Vogue.

SMOKED INDIAN.

An Indian chieftain died the other day at the age of 138 years. Sparks from his pipe set fire to his robe and he was burned to death before help could come. This should be a warning to every one to shun the weed. Here was Chief Galloping Wolf cut off in the prime of his life because of his addiction to his pipe. If he had let tobacco alone he might be 139 years old today.

LYNCH LAW.

Senator Curtis proposes to press his antilynching bill. In its operation this measure would levy a fine of $10,000 upon any county in which a lynching occurs. Furthermore, it provides for the removal or prosecution in the United States courts of any county or other officials deemed to be negligent of duty in preventing a lynching or punishing those involved. It would also take into the Federal courts the prosecution of the individual members of the mob participating in any lynching. The idea is to remove the prosecution from the local sphere of influence in which it ineffectively whirls. It is practically impossible to punish or convict any member of a mob if it is left to a home jury. The conditions in the country seem to demand resolute and heroic measures, and yet it is doubtful if the Curtis bill can ever materialize. It trespasses rather heavily upon the right of the States to regulate the behavior of their own citizens and determine their own punishment. When lynching reaches the proportions of interstate commerce the Federal government may apply its penalties; but communities will not readily surrender the right to punish their own kind in their own way—or let them run wild. The United States government may run down our bootleggers under traffic regulations, but it may not yet hang our lynchers.

REAL SQUATTERS.

Out on the Eagle Rock City car line and just within the five-cent-fare limit a total of more than five hundred tents, garages and small temporary homes have been hastily thrown up within the present season. All these are occupied and there is probably an average of three persons to each habitation. To find a family of four making a home in a 10x12 garage is no unusual thing. And this is in but one little district alone. It is much the same in and about all sections of the city. In very many cases the family journeyed westward in the family Ford. They buy or pre-empt a cheap lot, order a load of lumber or a tent and sleep in their car the first night. The second they have a roof of some kind over their heads and are in a fair way to become old residents. There are thousands of such families within the limits of the city. They are mussing up the scenery with their shacks and temporary homes. They are dotting the hillside with their tents. They are spoiling the temper of some of the rose-clad bungalow communities, but apparently they are doing the best they can and are entitled to much consideration. In some cases they have a bed of lettuce before they have a comfortable bed in which to rest. But that is the point. They wanted to get next to nature. With building costs excessively high they have had to economize and they have done so while still establishing a home nest. That in itself is evidence of wisdom and excellent judgment. There are no anarchists among them.

THE BLACK AND TANS.

Irishmen are good haters. "Heavens, how my old dad does hate the English," said one of them in Los Angeles the other day. But there are degrees even to their detestation of the men across the channel. They have an active aversion to the general run of Englishmen, but their fullest and most malignant dislike is reserved for the Black and Tans. Of course the Ulsterites are not included in this generalization of Irish ill-will for their neighbors. Who are the Black and Tans? They are a body of officers and men specially enlisted to cope with the lawless Irish who have risen in rebellion against the British crown. They have reinforced the Royal Irish Constabulary against whom the death sentence has been passed by the Sinn Feiners. The Black and Tans mostly come from across the Irish Sea, but there are some Celts among them. A large number of them are men with war experience. They fought to "make the world safe for democracy" while many of the Irish shirked. One division of the Black and Tans is composed exclusively of ex-officers of the British army, men whose courage, endurance and patriotism have been tested at the front. They assist the Royal Irish Constabulary in the defense of the police barracks constantly menaced by the rebels. Then there are the privates and noncommissioned officers, a force of brave, fighting daredevils, willing to scrap from the drop of the hat and prepared to revenge police officers foully assassinated for doing their duty. For that they are fiercely denounced by the Sinn Feiners—the men who ambush and slay officials who would gladly be at peace with them.

Problem in Economics.

"Here's a problem in economics," says the Fort Scott Tribune. "If a merchant pays $1 for an article, the wholesale price drops to 50 cents and he sells his stock on the basis of replacement value, does his reduction in price to the consumer lose him money? Hadn't he already lost it?"

DOLEFUL DUPLICITY.

The building trades, both masters and men, seem to have a good deal to explain. When both the trusts and the unions come together at the expense of the public the consumer must inevitably get the worst of the deal. New York exposures during the last few weeks have offered a painful lesson on the results of such collusion. That "lodge" embracing 425 master plumbers, for instance, which is said to handle contracts in all parts of the United States and doing business to the extent of $100,000,000 a year, with their alleged "Code of Practice" by which competition was completely eliminated, is a disheartening revelation, if true, and the evidence given before the legislative committee of investigation leaves very little occasion for hope to the contrary. Nor is there much loophole for doubt that the plumbers' union collaborated in the scheme for exploiting the public for all the traffic would bear.

Then, again, there are the National Erectors' Association and the bricklayers', masons' and plasterers' union, with officials of the latter admitting having accepted large sums of money for "expenses." It seems pretty evident that a great deal of profitable collaboration at the expense of the consumer has been practiced.

Outstanding facts of the exposures are that crass selfishness and greed are the ruling passions of the trades engaged and that the bitter and oppressive home shortage which has occasioned such distress throughout the country was seized upon as a glorious opportunity for exploitation of the public woe by both capital and labor, and that labor-union officials were quite ready to do business with the cruel capitalist under those alluring conditions. The capitalist is only a sinner when he fails to generously share the loot. The labor-union idea of fraternal brotherhood is peculiarly exclusive, and the unionite might as well be a "public-be-damned" capitalistic profiteer from the consumer's point of view.

It is just as well to remember this while the investigations are going on and punishment being devised to fit the crime. The building trades are being shown up in a very unpleasant light from the top to the bottom, and everybody seems to have been in on it. There doesn't seem to have been any faction that had any patriotic instincts, any splendid policy of public honesty, any consideration for the public welfare.

However, even the investigations seem to have brought a little encouraging sign of grace. One observes that the union carpenters of Chicago have recommended a voluntary cut of 25 per cent in their wages before a furious public reaction sets in. True, this is expediency rather than public consideration to ward off possible unemployment and "keep the plants going," but it is a straw which shows which way the wind is blowing. "When the devil was sick the devil a saint would be, but when the devil was well the devil a saint was he." It is, however, rather a mournful thought that the public can only get a square deal in some of its industries through depression, that honesty as the best policy must be driven home with a club rather than accepted as a standard principle.

Some of the exposures of collusion and duplicity in this basic trade of the nation give one to despair. They smack of a treachery that is unbelievable. If these are the results of ebullient prosperity, or if ebullient prosperity can only come through these means, is it any wonder that a stern Providence sends periods of hard times to nations for the salvation of their souls?

But prosperity does not have to come that way. Honesty IS the best policy. Those industries which are conducted on decent human principles do thrive and prosper exceedingly. It is possible to do big business and be square with the public. These intrigues, collusions and treacheries are the barnacles of commerce which make the ship unseaworthy and ultimately bring disaster.

These practices are not peculiar to the United States, but they are more rife in this country than in others, to our shame and sorrow. There is a tendency to regard such practices as "smart," and perhaps we could lay up no better store for the future than education in commercial honesty in our schools. As an indication that this principle is gaining ground we have the campaign of the Advertising Association of the World for honest advertising. Richard H. Lee, their counsel, has been in Los Angeles preaching the necessity for truthful copy. There is to be a stern war on untruthful advertising—and if honesty is the best policy in advertising it is equally the best policy in all trading.

"To thine own self be true, and it shall follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

THE YEAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

An inventory of the work accomplished and progress made in the Southwest in 1920 would be highly gratifying as a whole, and actually astonishing in some of the larger phases. It has been a year of advancement and enlightenment. Development of industries, resources and communities has been along broad, constructive lines and on a grand scale.

The year's work has contributed substantially and permanently to the upbuilding of the Southwest and, at the same time, has given the people here and elsewhere a clearer and bigger conception of the tremendous opportunity that exists here for the upbuilding of a rich and mighty community. As a result of the great progress of the past year the future looms brighter.

The year has been marked by incessant activity in almost every line of endeavor. Development has been steady, not sporadic. Some of the largest development enterprises undertaken are based on programs covering several years. The Southwest is building for today, but to an even greater extent it is building for tomorrow.

The year started out auspiciously with unprecedented building activity in almost every city and town. Wholesale and retail trade and foreign commerce were broadened in scope and volume and there was a notable expansion of manufacturing industries. Early announcements of the United States census provided a new stimulus. California's census triumph was gratifying and complete. Nearly all communities of the State had a direct share in it.

It was no news to the average citizen of Los Angeles that this city had made tremendous gains and was the largest city in all the West, yet the official announcement, with its weight of authority and solidity, came as a joy and an inspiration to the enterprising citizens here. The census figures showing that California had raced upward among the States in the Union and that many of its municipalities had doubled or trebled their population undoubtedly had an encouraging and strengthening effect. Further growth and advancement was certainly strongly in evidence during the remainder of the year.

Our shipping and foreign trade have been notably increased. With all the improvements and development that a foresighted community has made the business of Los Angeles Harbor has already outgrown its facilities. New manufacturing plants established and existing plants extended constitute an important and significant phase of the year's progress. Los Angeles continues to bask in the glories of its matchless climate, but it is also paying strict attention to increasing its pay roll, its productivity and other essential fundamentals upon which great world centers are builded.

The past year was the greatest building year in the history of Los Angeles and the same is true proportionately of many other Southern California cities. Census announcements of growth arrived here in the midst of a period of even faster growth than the census recorded. It is significant that at the close of a year of extraordinary building activity, a year when apartment-houses, hotels and dwelling houses in great numbers were erected, the housing shortage is still acute.

An evidence of growth in population in Los Angeles that has been commented on frequently this year is that the fixed population of the city has become so large that visitors make no appreciable impression on the life of the community. Last spring, when winter visitors departed for their homes in other States, their place seemed to be filled by double the number of other people. The natural increase in residents overshadowed the winter tourists for one thing and, furthermore, summer visitors from other Southwest communities outnumber them.

Hydroelectric projects which will have a tremendous and far-reaching influence on the future growth of the Southwest were undertaken in 1920 and others under contemplation took more definite form. Water for power and for irrigation is possessed by the Southwest in almost unlimited quantity. It is a natural asset which gives the Southwest a tremendous advantage over all other portions of the country. Men of the Southwest are awakening to the opportunity and water development is now generally regarded as the sure foundation for industrial expansion here on a colossal scale.

The agricultural and horticultural resources of the Southwest have been substantially developed during the year. The preeminence of the reclaimed desert regions in Imperial Valley, Palo Verde Valley and Arizona as producers of cotton of superlative grade has been established. The 1920 crop was almost twice as large as that of 1919. The sudden and marked decrease in price will tend to materially reduce the planting for 1921, but the fact has been established that long-staple cotton of fine texture and high tensile strength can be grown here as well as in any place on earth, and perhaps better. Under ordinary market conditions, and with adequate tariff protection, the long-staple-cotton industry will be an important one.

During 1920 more land has been put under water and in crop. New orchards have come into bearing. California's harvests are greater than ever before and the markets for them have been extended and more wisely handled.

The Southwest is up and doing. It is a land that calls for red-blooded endeavor. It looks back upon a year of remarkably successful achievement, but its most earnest attention is directed toward an even more promising future.

How to Stop It!

SCHOOL COSTS MOUNT.

Last week the school-teachers reigned in Los Angeles. The activities of institutes, associations and clubs connected with the teaching profession attracted here several thousand educators from all over Southern California. Figuratively speaking, they sat at the feet of the Gamaliels from the East and North and heard instructive talks on new problems and developments affecting the training of the young. Los Angeles was glad to welcome the visitors and to include them in its Christmas celebrations. Highly though the people rate the teachers of the various communities, they cannot shut their eyes to the fact that the high cost of education is troubling the taxpayers of this State. Figures furnished from Sacramento show that the amount expended for schools during the fiscal year of 1920 was no less than $46,000,000. This is an increase of $15,000,000 as compared with the previous year. These are stupendous figures, even if one takes into consideration that the enrollment for the fiscal year was more than 660,000. The Times would be the last to advocate any curtailment of money spent on necessary education; but are there not many ways in which money is being foolishly spent in connection with the training of the young people? One cannot help thinking that a business expert could show the school authorities of the State that the present expenditures could be decreased without sacrificing the welfare of the pupils.

A LITTLE SERMON BY YE PASTOR.

Take it from ye pastor. Young feller: The human soul craves trust more than any other thing. Just as soon as you put confidence in a man and convince him that you believe in him without a particle of distrust—at that very moment he enters into his greatest period of efficient accomplishment. The best way to get the most out of any friend or worker is to trust him. Just as soon as an employer begins to trust an employee—just as soon as an employee begins to trust his employer—at that moment a strong organization begins. It is the same in the course of the everyday. The people that we trust are the people who trust us. Mutual trust is mutual happiness. No one can be unhappy or useless who trusts. It is natural to trust. It is unnatural not to trust. Human life begins by trusting. The child at first trusts everyone. Every happy relationship starts with co-operative trust. The only thing that can mar or pry trust from its hinges is suspicion. In the work of this day—every day—whenever you are tempted to distrust, to criticise, to envy—bring this little word into use—trust.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

ANNEXING GREAT BRITAIN.

The Americanization of this country is becoming a serious matter. Rich American women marry our impoverished peers and set an example of luxurious extravagance, which is most reprehensible, especially as our own aristocracy is ruined. The Americans are capturing our movies and flooding the music halls with American slang. American shop-keepers are buying up shops to such an extent that soon there won't be an individual shop in Oxford street or Regent street. American newspapers are dumping their surplus issues in London at prices below their cost of production. If this goes on England will become an annex of the United States.

We have read in an American novel that after a concert or ball given by a millionaire at Newport the host and first violin sat down to supper together and talked over old times at school, without the slightest sense of incongruity or allusion to their different places in life. That could not happen in this country, at least not yet. Englishman are too sensible to pretend to ignore distinctions which, though not dispensations of Providence, are facts.—[London Saturday Review.

HEROES AND CLOTHES.

All the heroes are not wearing uniforms and posing on pedestals. Most of the heroes are ordinary-looking dubs who wear pants that bag at the knees and shine on the rear. These heroes have been honest and industrious and have raised families and have gone without good clothes and pleasures in order that the kids might have new shoes and that wife might have something decent to wear on Sunday.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

YOU ARE GREATER THAN FATE.

You were made to master unfavorable conditions, made to rise above what others regard as misfortunes, handicaps and stumbling blocks. There is something in you that is bigger than any fate or destiny, anything which is trying to down you; something in you that is mightier than the influence of others which is trying to keep you back. There is something in you that can laugh at fate.—[O. S. Werden in New Success.

WASTING RADIUM.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Dec. 21.—That continued wastage of radium is foolishly depleting the supply of the world's most valuable metal is claimed by geologists here. Every milligram of radium is jealously hoarded by the medical profession as a great power for healing. Yet large quantities of it are annually introduced into luminous paint so that wrist watches and alarm clocks may be conveniently consulted in the dark.

It is true that, precious as radium is, there is only 10 or 15 cents' worth of it on the luminous dial of a watch. But when thousands of timepieces are made luminous, the value of the radium consumed is estimated to reach not less than $300,000 a year. This means about three grams of radium, which seems a small amount, until you remember that there is less than half a pound of the metal in the world at present, and very little is added each year.

The lamentable feature of the luminous dial business, where radium is used, is that the precious metal is permanently lost. The radium on the dial is still potent long after a clock has succumbed to old age, but the amount of the metal there is so infinitesimal that it would be impossible to recover it.

The point made in this connection is that the radium is wasted unnecessarily. There is a metal similar to radium, known as mesothorium, which is equally efficient in illuminating watch faces, and which is the logical material to be employed for this purpose. Mesothorium is not a new material. It was discovered in 1905. Its cost is only about half that of radium, yet it has never been widely used by clock and instrument makers, though there is presumably enough of it available.

The life of mesothorium is only about seven years. At the end of this time, if the watch with a luminous dial is in working order, it is a small repair job to have the dial illuminated again, or replaced.

Radium, unlike mesothorium, loses its power so gradually that it may for practical purposes be regarded as retaining it indefinitely. It is estimated that in 1500 years radium loses one-half its weight, and in 1500 more years another half. Obviously a wrist watch is not going to last long enough to be worthy of so ageless a material.

RADIUM LASTS.

The long life of radium is what makes it really practical for medical purposes. If it could be used but once, or even a few times, the cost of radium treatments would be prohibitive. But, because the energy of radium is undiminished by use, it is within the reach of rich and poor alike, where hospitals make use of it. It does not matter whether it is kept in sunlight, or in a hot or cold place. None of these conditions affect its strength.

It is shut up in leaden caskets to prevent theft and as a protection to people and objects around it. So powerful are the forces emanating from a few grains of radium that the Bureau of Standards finds it necessary to inclose its supply in a lead case, and to place before that a lead screen. Until the screen was obtained the radium rays projected themselves into the next room, and affected the delicate mechanism of a number of the bureau's valuable instruments.

All the possibilities of radium have probably not been exhausted. No new uses have been discovered recently. Doctors who are interested are constantly making experiments.

Radium has been found to cure some types of cancer and some tumors, and to fail absolutely with others. It has proved almost invariably successful as a means of removing birthmarks and softening hardened scars left by the healing of wounds. Yet in the face of indisputable cures, doctors still disagree regarding the curative value of the metal. One skeptical physician who scoffed at the idea of radium having any power, allowed himself to be treated with it for a cancer. After twenty-four hours he admitted that it did indeed have some potent properties, for it had nauseated him extremely.

Nausea is the main immediate reaction upon the patient. Treatment is not usually accompanied by much pain, and the ultimate effect is to lessen suffering. Seriousness of burns from radium have been overemphasized in the opinion of one expert here who prefers not to be quoted. He explained that constant handling of radium by doctors and nurses occasionally causes the fingers to become tender and glazed, and in some diseases in order to obtain sufficient intensity of the rays, it is inevitable that there should be burning of the tissues. But these are not frequent occurrences in the use of radium. Indeed, radium is used to heal burns from X-rays.

CURES SOME CANCERS.

Radium's most conspicuous service to humanity so far has been as a treatment for several types of cancer. It does not always cure, even those forms which respond to treatment. But where it only relieves suffering and removes the terrible odor which so often accompanies cancer, it is a remedy of inestimable value.

As for the future of the supply, the United States Geological Survey says that no one knows exactly how long the United States will continue to be the main producer of radium, or how much the earth holds. Our carnotite mines in Utah and Colorado yield nine-tenths of the world's radium, and the amount isolated from the product of these mines is slightly increasing each year.

There are smaller radium-producing mines in Bohemia, Portugal, Southern Australia, Afghanistan and Cornwall, Eng. Most of these countries produce but a gram or so a year, while the United States is producing about twenty grams.

Originally, radium was isolated by Madame Curie from pitchblende, and for a time pitchblende was sought as the source of supply. But there was comparatively little pitchblende to be found and now most of the radium made is derived from carnotite. This is a bright, canary-yellow metal, which occurs in soft sandstone, nearly always with fossil woods and often with the fossil bones of long-extinct animals. At first it was found only on the surface and on the edges of cliffs, which led to the belief that it did not exist under the rocks. But lately some experimental drilling revealed carnotite as far as sixty feet below the surface, so that the resources for producing radium may be far greater than has been supposed.

Producing radium is a prosaic, exacting task. The carnotite is mined laboriously and in enormous quantities, for, as one firm puts it, it takes a dozen carloads of ore to yield a thimbleful of radium. The deposits in our West often occur in desert land sixty miles from a railroad and half a dozen miles from water supplies. The strings of burros that bridge the desert miles, laden with water and supplies, are the one picturesque touch about a radium mine.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

A SINLESS WORLD.

Reformers are not satisfied with merely moderate success; if any triumph is denied, they wring their hands in black distress. The victory of yesterday forgotten is, as soon as won, while they plan out some drastic way to make another evil run. The brimming flagon they have scrapped, and now they say the pipe must go; an earnest campaign has been mapped, to fill Dame Nicotine with woe. The Sunday train must cease to run before we've scored another year, or some reformer with a gun will rise and shoot the engineer. The Sunday paper must be banned, on Sundays autos must not chug, or sheriffs, with their writs in hand, will put offenders in the jug. They'll censor songs, they'll censor plays, they'll censor everything in sight, and strive, in forty-seven ways, to drape us all in snowy white. They will not interfere with me, for I'm so moral anyhow; a shining halo you may see at any time above my brow. But much I fear some wearied guys, by laws galled, jaded and oppressed in revolution yet will rise, and knock some statutes galley west. Reformers now are going strong, they look as though they'd never stop; but when Reaction comes along, just pause and hear the fireworks pop.

WALT MASON.

The American's Creed—for you and me.

NOBLESSE OBLIGE

By John Strong.

FROM GLENDALE.

Friend Guidinger of Glendale is strong for the Golden Rule.

He wants the teachings of the Great Master alone to be the guide of life.

So be it. Those teachings are epitomized in Noblesse Oblige, so far as they can be humanly lived now.

No matter what our other faith, Noblesse Oblige is your American obligation and mine. Never mind the mass; that will do well when you and I do well.

Noblesse Oblige is simply two words into which our faith can be compressed for purposes of action.

It is no new creed, no new doctrine. It is the term in which we can apply the good of all the doctrines for your living and mine; that's all.

Think what we will, if we think at all, let our actions be decided by Noblesse Oblige.

It is offered because it has been lost in the shuffle of war and the chase for indulgence; because we are at a time when the sense of obligation has been slackened.

Let's just use these words to decide us in our daily contacts. They'll lift us. There ends our responsibility.

And because you and I are American equals, it applies with equal force to you and me.

EDITORIAL OPINION.

Senator Harding's farewell talk to his co-workers in the Senate was a delightful revelation of the simplicity of the man's character as well as a fine expression of a citizen's appreciation of the dignity of office. There was none of the velvety texture in his speech which would reveal the slightest spirit of condescension—it was a frank, open-hearted, thoroughly sincere outpouring of one regretting the interruption of years of personal and official relationships. The President-elect's switch to a consideration of things which should be done by the closing Congress and to the great work lying ahead under his administration was made so gracefully and tactfully that his expressed desire for wise use of the "precious days" doubtless has placed the members of both houses in a temper to fulfil their duties to the republic in the strength of fervid patriotism and not in the paralyzing grip of selfish partisanship. In more respects than one the President-elect's presence on the Senate floor ushered in a momentous era in the history of our country.—[New York Commercial.

Those critical editors who have been pointing out the proneness of the oriental to utter the speech that is false should put the American character under the microscope and assure themselves there are no germs of prevarication working overtime at home. We did not invent the lie, but we were standing around and making suggestions when it was put on the market. We have perfected the bunglesome article. We have raised the craft to a fine art.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

It Russia lingers outside the League America, stimulated by the spectacle of European harmony, and for her own sake desirous of a share in the shaping of the afterwar world, will in all likelihood make an early request for admittance. Anyhow, the League must find place not only for our late foes, but for America, whose President, its chief author, familiarized mankind with its great idea.—[Liverpool Post.

The question now is whether all hands, on farms and in factories and elsewhere, will work energetically enough to keep up agricultural production and manufacturing and distributing on a basis that will admit of lower prices without lower, or greatly lower, wages. If factories should be forced to close because of low man-power production in a period of lowered prices the first to suffer would be the workers. Yet factories will run at a profit or they will not run. The alternatives presented to all producers, in cities as well as in the country, seem to be, speed up or give up the job, if reduced wages are not to be considered.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Barbers' Slogan.

The graduates of a New York barber college gave a dinner in a basement restaurant in Houston street one night recently. This is the yell they gave when the food arrived:

Leave his face—Raw! Raw! Raw!
—[Atlanta Constitution.

WESTERN KERN FIELD PROVED.

Standard's New Well Assures Extended Territory.

Elk Hills Development Being Rushed by New Rigs.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 25.—The western front of the old Kern River field, for the past several months the focus of attention for nearly every oil operator in the Central California fields, has at last been proved as oil-bearing territory. It has rested with the Standard Oil Company to bring this section within the fold of development by bringing into production its No. 2 well on Sec. 5, 28-27.

The new well is now doing 125 barrels of oil daily through a four and one-half inch casing on a small pump. There is an appreciable gas pressure, which would make the well a flowing one should it be capped off properly. The well could do 300 barrels daily if pumped to maximum, according to employees.

The well is 2818 feet deep, but has the pump set at 2700 feet. It is located about a mile and a half south of Poso Creek and three miles east of Lerdo and is at least three miles from any other producing well.

During the past week it has been visited by Cy Bell, general supervisor for the Standard in Kern county, and by L. B. Little, director of production, and a number of outside Standard officials, who believe that one of the greatest steps in many months toward opening up a new field of production has been taken.

OPENS WIDE AREA.

The western front of the Kern River fields coming into production will offer a wide area for development. Much of the land for lease by the government under the new leasing bill, is located in this territory, and a number of Kern county men have received permits to drill on property not far from where the Standard has brought in its No. 2 well.

Activity has been going on for some time in various parts of this district on the strength of geological reports, which indicate that a large lake of oil underlies the whole district.

The Union Oil Company has drilled what it terms twin wells on Sec. 36, 27-27, in one part of this new field. It has also struck oil, but has been hampered by water trouble in the upper sands. The twin wells are now being cemented for water shut-off and the wells are being finished. It is expected they will be brought in at an early date and operators are watching the results with interest. The Standard did not encounter the same water trouble in No. 2.

Out of a total daily production for last month of 312,182 barrels in the state, or a grand total of 9,382,460 barrels, Kern county produced an average of 140,598 barrels daily, or a total for the month of 4,962,460 barrels. There were 156 wells started in Kern county, while twenty-nine were completed, an increase over the month previous of six and five, respectively.

LEADS IN NEW WELLS.

Of the twenty-one new wells started last week in the State, fourteen are located in Kern county. Five are in the Kern River field, three in the Sunset, two in the Midway and one each in the Elk Hills and the Buttonwillow districts.

The Buttonwillow district recently came into prominence through the activities of the Buttonwillow Oil and Gas Company, which now has its first well standing cemented ready to test out for oil within a few days. The latest well to be started there is by the Petroleum Midway Company, Ltd., on Sec. 12, 32-22.

Activities in the Kern River field are divided between five companies, each starting a new well. The Mags Oil Company has spudded in its No. 4 well on Sec. 2, 29-26, and the Fisher & Hughes Oil Company is operating upon the same section has also started a new hole. This is also slightly west of the old proven territory, but production has been assured by previous drilling.

The Associated Oil Company has a crew of drillers at work on Sec. 28, 28-28, putting down a new one. The Junction Oil Company is adding another to its string on Sec. 9, 29-28, and the Standard has begun work on a new well on Sec. 11, 28-27. The Standard is also starting a new well in the Elk Hills on Sec. 31, 30-25.

PACIFIC IN MIDWAY.

In the Midway, the Pacific Oil Company, formerly the Southern Pacific, has spudded in No. 106, on Sec. 1, 32-23, and the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company is starting one on Sec. 25, 31-22.

The Obispo Oil Company, the Tannehill Oil Company and the Garner-Madison Oil Company are each starting a well in the Sunset district.

Another of the big wells which has had a tendency to make Sec. 1, 32-23, in the Midway famous, came in early in the week on the Pacific Company's property, and for a short time flowed a stream high over the top of the derrick. Traffic along the county highway was blocked for a time when the wind blew the spray in that direction. The well was soon controlled, however, and is now flowing through special gap trap equipment into the gauge tanks.

The E. & M. Oil Company has its No. 1 well on Sec. 10, 31-22, standing cemented, with plans to drill into the oil sand almost any day now. This property is in the withdrawn territory and is being operated under a government prospecting permit.

Judge J. F. Burnes, managing superintendent on the Dominion Oil Company property in Sec. 15, 31-32, near McKittrick, reports that No. 11 well is down more than 300 feet, with the drill progressing rapidly. During the past year the company has drilled seven wells, all of which are producing on an average of fifty barrels each daily. Burnes looks for a bigger production from No. 11 and a higher gravity of oil.

The Standard Oil Company is pushing the development of its Elk Hills property to the limit and Sec. 34 is a beehive of industry. Two new wells have been started there within the past few days and more are to follow. While the wells that have been brought in there dropped off a little in production after a few days, this could be expected, because they came in as gushers, with a flow of approximately 5000 barrels a day.

Deepening and redrilling of old wells continues active in the fields of Kern county. Eleven wells were reported as undergoing work of this kind during the past week, the Midway leading with six wells.

The Pan-American is down nearly 2900 feet in its test well in Sec. 1, 31-22, near Taft. There is no indication yet to prove or disprove the territory as oil-bearing. Within a few days the Pan-American will bring in its No. 7 well on Sec. 36, 30-23, in the Elk Hills. It has been standing cemented for the past few days at a depth of 2290 feet.

After having had some success for limited periods in shutting off water, the Del Rey Oil Company, operating on Sec. 3, 29-28, in the Kern River field, has had its production cut by infiltration to about 4000 barrels a month. The Del Rey believes the water filters in from property adjoining.

ASKS COUNCIL TO FIRE MAYOR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 26.—Removal of Louis J. Wilde from the office of Mayor of San Diego on the grounds that he is not a resident of this city, but of Coronado, is urged upon the Common Council by Horace B. Day, Water Commissioner, whom Mr. Wilde has threatened to oust from office.

Mr. Day has sent an open letter to the Council, citing the provisions of the city charter as evidence that the office of Mayor should be declared vacant and the Council should then proceed to fill the vacancy.

The Mission Valley Hospital was set on fire last night in what is believed by the police to have been a concerted attempt on the part of the women inmates to make a wholesale escape. In the excitement three women — Oznola Stone, Mrs. J. K. Cotton and Mildred Brown—escaped.

SHOUP WILL TELL PLANS.

Paul Shoup, who has been elected president of the newly organized Pacific Oil Company, is expected to reach San Francisco shortly and announce further appointments and details of the company's plans.

Permanent organization of the Pacific Oil Company was completed recently in New York with the election of the following board and officers: Directors, Henry W. De Forest, E. P. Swenson and B. D. Caldwell, each for a three-year term; Mortimer L. Schiff, James S. Alexander and Gordon M. Buck, each for a two-year term; Samuel Rea, Charles A. Peabody and Paul Shoup, each for a one-year term.

The executive committee includes: Mr. De Forest, Mr. Schiff and Mr. Peabody, and the New York officers are Mr. Buck, vice-president and counsel, and Hugh Neill, secretary and treasurer.

The San Francisco officers will include A. D'Heur, vice-president, and the following staff, which will act jointly for the Pacific Oil Company and the Associated Oil Company: A. C. McLaughlin, vice-president; P. G. Williams, auditor; J. P. Edwards, assistant secretary, and W. A. Sloan, local treasurer, also agent to receive deeds, assignments, certificates for stock acquired, etc.

The company's New York offices will be located at 165 Broadway, and the San Francisco offices in the Sharon Building. The home office will be located in the Dupont Building, 7 West Tenth street, Wilmington, Del. The annual meeting will be held on the first Tuesday in October of each year.

Pasadena Churches Urge Aid for Central Europe.

Crown City Postoffice Taxed With Holiday Mail.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Dec. 26.—The Pasadena post of the American Legion has decided to get behind the movement to build a memorial flagstaff at the intersection of Orange Grove and Colorado street, where so many visitors arrive by motor over the Colorado-street bridge.

The fund for the flagstaff, being raised by popular subscriptions, has been languishing lately but it is believed that now that the American Legion post has taken up the project the remainder of the money required will speedily be raised.

It is proposed to have an ornate base to the staff, this pedestal to be carven with words and figures typifying all Pasadena's contribution to the war.

An appeal for aid to the children of Central Europe was made in many of the Pasadena churches today at the behest of the newly organized local branch of the European Relief Council. The collection of funds will begin here tomorrow.

In many of the evangelical churches, which did not hold Christmas services yesterday, Christmas was the theme of sermons and services today. The congregations were large.

Clerks and carriers of the Pasadena postoffice will be swamped with belated Christmas gifts tomorrow, huge receipts today and yesterday augmenting the matter still undelivered after the one delivery Christmas Day. Postmaster Clark McLain, who said a few days ago that the outgoing Christmas mail in Pasadena was breaking all local records, said today that the incoming Christmas mail likewise has eclipsed the highest totals of previous years by a large margin. It will be ten days yet before all the Christmas mail is cleaned up.

MOTORISTS VISIT TREES.

Many motorists from other towns visiting Pasadena this afternoon and early this evening took rides through the lane of famous deodars on Santa Rosa avenue, which were illuminated with myriad electric lights after nightfall. The trees will be lighted every evening from now until New Year's night.

HELPED MAKE A CITY.

SAN BERNARDINO, Dec. 26.—Mrs. Nancy Hunt Daley, aged 93 years, died at her home here yesterday. She was one of the prominent California pioneers and daughter of Capt. Jefferson Hunt, famous early-day scout. Mrs. Daley arrived here with an immigrant train in 1851, having left Council Bluffs in 1849. The men and women of this train built the Fort of San Bernardino and founded the city. She is survived by seven children, including Attorney Frank B. Daley and Chief of Police C. J. Daley.

Santa Monica Makes Fine Showing During Year Just Closing.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Dec. 26.—One and a third millions of dollars worth of building has been completed in Santa Monica during the year just closing, according to a statement made at the City Hall. This is a record never before attained, even during prewar days.

It is the pride of the city that by far the greater amount of this money was expended in homes. Public Works Department of the government, declares the work of the building section of the department is continually the most engrossing of their organization.

LAST RITES TOMORROW FOR MRS. HUSELTON.

Funeral services for Mrs. Josephine Huselton, widow of George W. Huselton of Kansas City, will be held in the chapel of Strother & Dayton, 6240 Hollywood Boulevard, at 10 a.m. tomorrow. Dr. W. F. Richardson of the Hollywood Christian Church, formerly of Kansas City, and who knew the deceased when she was a girl, will be the officiating minister. Mrs. Huselton was the widow of "Col." Huselton, who, for nearly a quarter century, was first vice-president and sales manager of the Peet Brothers' Manufacturing Company of Kansas City. She died in her home, 5756 Carlton Way, Hollywood, early last Thursday morning, while asleep. She had been ill several days, but her condition was not deemed serious. Heart disease was the cause of death. Mrs. Huselton leaves a daughter, Miss Gertrude Huselton, who lived with her in Hollywood; a son, Howard E. Huselton of Kansas City, and a sister, Mrs. Candace Kinnear of New York City. She was born in Eureka, Ill., 70 years ago. Her body will be placed in a crypt adjoining that of her husband, in the mausoleum of Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Patrons Object to Jolting and Jarring Stages.

The Bell-Maywood-Cudahy Chamber of Commerce and the Woman's Club of Cudahy, in this county, not only want Charles B. Holbrook to reduce the rate of fare he charges for rides on his auto bus line from 10 to 5 cents, but they also want him to provide equipment that will give his patrons less jolting and jarring.

They have appealed to the State Railroad Commission for an investigation of Holbrook's auto line, setting up, that in addition to being overcharged for a ride, they are compelled to stand for "insufferable delays." They ask the commission to see that there is a cessation of the "frequent breaking of parts" of Holbrook's conveyances and to compel him to provide the springs and tires necessary for comfortable travel.

Holbrook, who operates to Huntington Park, and had been charging 5 cents a ride from his first trip in the morning to 7:30 at night, collecting 10 cents after that hour, was recently allowed by the commission to extend his 10-cent schedule over all his trips. His patrons assert that this rate of fare is exorbitant, and point out that as Holbrook recently bought out his competitor and secured a monopoly the added business justifies a reduction.

Eighty-year-old Resident Seemed to Lack Nourishment.

Josephine Foley, aged 80 years, was found dead on the floor of her home at 701 Lamara street yesterday morning by members of the Lincoln Heights Police Station. The body was removed to the Los Angeles Undertaking Parlors, where it was said that she had apparently died from heart failure and lack of nourishment. Several nieces and nephews of the aged woman now living in Dallas, Tex., were notified of her death. She lived alone at the above address and had no relatives residing in this city. A friend, returning to the aged woman's home yesterday morning after partaking of a Christmas dinner with her the night before, first discovered her lying dead upon the floor, the police said.

CROWDS FLOCK TO VIEW VENICE RUINS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Dec. 26.—The ashes of the famous Venice pier attract crowds in fully as great numbers as that famous edifice did when it was alive with jazz. Great piles of gray representing what last Sunday had formed the center of pleasure for thousands, were surrounded today by curious visitors from all over Southern California.

Band concerts, racers, ferris wheels were in full swing for the crowds. For the first time the tapping of the hammers, working on the rebuilding of the pier, ceased today, but will begin immediately tomorrow.

Financial, Business, Mining and Oil News.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

You are politely requested to submit samples, carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make sample of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Tungsten Absent.

BARSTOW, Dec. 7.—Question: I am sending you several samples of ore, chiefly from my claims located in Mono and Inyo counties, California, with one sample from a Nevada friend of mine who has several ledges. We tried this Nevada ore for lead, with negative results, but assays give 4.50 ounces gold on similar samples. The samples sent you from my claim mystify me. Arsenic is present in many of them, but the sample with long crystals in it is what? The more iron-like samples on my claims run high in scheelite crystals; all double pyramids. Many of the samples are in the Sierras and from an altitude of 12,800 feet. I found the "Tip Top" mine on this trip, and prospected with an outfit packed on four burros. The molybdenite specimen is from float; the place where it comes from is so precipitous that I would have to pack in four and a half miles to reach the main body. The concentrates are from near the molybdenite locality, and there are mountains of zinc ores near. While prospecting near Leidy Peak the wind was blowing sixty miles an hour, and I will give $500 reward for the very large wildcat that got away from me. I found that he had killed two big yearlings and even crunched the bones; withal, the screams of this cat was not favorable for sleep.

Answer: We regret that your letter could not be published in full. That prospecting trip was a "hummer" and then some; expressed in good, old United States language.

The brownish-yellow sample from Nevada carries gold; it is a conglomerate with dolomite, zinc, microscopical pyrite, and "peacock iron" in the mass. Uranium absent. The sample with long, acicular crystals in it (from your tungsten claims) would mystify most any one, at sight. It carries no tungsten; it is Andalusite (not the cross-stone variety) and is, chemically, anhydrous silicate of alumina carrying over 59 per cent alumina; 39 per cent silica, and traces of lime-magnesia; iron present. In the concentrates we found but little scheelite. The molybdenite sample is high-grade mineral. The remaining samples are Fahlerz (tetrahedrite,) high in arsenic; zinc present with lead traces and silver. We find added a sample from Mono Lake; it is far from "talc," it is merely a silicious magnesian—aluminum mineral, and the green sample carries no nickel; arsenical iron and copper present.

Low in Kaolinite.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8.—Q.: Will you please give me a general analysis of the inclosed sample? It comes from Lower California. B.

A.: It is not possible to give you a quantitative analysis. The sample appears to be high in silica with some alumina and iron, which would mean a mixture of silica with Kaolinite. A little muscovite (potash mica) is present. The specimen is on the order of a product of decomposition from a Rhyolite or similar rock.

Quartz and Feldspar.

HUENEME, Dec. 9.—Q.: I am sending you by parcels post, two samples of rock. Will you kindly let me know if they are of any value? I shall look for answer in the usual column of The Times. The specimens are from near Mount Hermon. M. M.

A.: No. 1 sample is an altered graphic granite (pegmatite;) flaky hematite present, with a like variety of titaniferous iron. No. 2 is quartz. It carries the same iron ores as referred to in sample No. 1.

Tin Absent.

PERRIS, Dec. 8.—Q.: I am sending you three samples which came from the old mining district west of Perris. Will you please tell me what minerals they carry? No. 2 looks like tin ore. No. 3, I think, carries lead. No. 1 is from a bed or deposit carrying streaks of hard, glassy silica. E.

A.: Sample No. 1 is a rather low-grade silica. No. 2 is Aragonite; a variety of lime carbonate. No. 3 is a blackish iron-manganese silicate resembling Lydian stone (touchstone.) Carefully tested for lead with negative results. Nos. 1 and 3 carry traces of lead and zinc. No sample tested for gold or silver.

Obsidian Pebbles.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 10.—Q.: Please tell me what the crystals are? W.

A.: The samples are named in the subheading, and they represent low-priced gem stones.

Free Gold Absent.

MINERAL (Va.) Dec. 11.—Q.: I am sending you by this mail a sample of ore. I wish you to carefully test it and determine the general make-up of it. Note the "Splash" sulphide which, from the general appearance, is far from the ordinary sulphide. Where these samples come from the vein is well defined, with perfect hanging, and foot walls; a tale gouge separating the ore from the country rock (Schist.) The vein is four feet in width at the 120-foot level. The samples I am sending you come from the face of the drift; 130 feet from the shaft. The strike is northeast and southwest. Try for the precious metals, and tell me what you find in other metals. T.

The samples carry no platinum; tellurium is not present, and the powdered ore was carefully panned for free gold with negative results. As a matter of fact, a full quantitative analysis on approximately one ounce of concentrates from 100 pounds of ore, would be the only means of determining with certainty what such sulphides contain. Native copper is in the ore in low percentage.

Doubtful Ores.

YUMA (Ariz.) Dec. 11.—Q.: I am sending you two samples under separate cover. No. 2 is supposed to be talcum; it is located between Julian and El Centro, in Riverside county. There is quite a large deposit of it. The loose, pink and red specimens are from a large deposit in Arizona, close to the Gila river, and I took it up before the war for potash. I thought, at that time, that it was Alunite; some assays went 11 per cent potash-water soluble. I would like your opinion on both samples. L.

A.: The sample supposed to be talcum, is probably of no commercial value. It carries some little muscovite (potash mica,) with kaolin and runs high in silica. Arizona has immense deposits of rock similar to that from which you obtained available potash, near Ray and elsewhere, but reports thereon by the United States Geological Survey show that the rock is doubtful for successful promotion. The two white samples carry some Bentonite, which might answer for Fuller's earth substitute, and, mixed with glycerine, should be a low-grade surgical dressing.

Doubtful Ores.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—Q.: Please tell me all that this sample contains, and also if it would pay to mine such rock. There are large quantities of it.

A.: The rock is in part chlorite. It carries "peacock iron," microscopic pyrite sparingly, copper traces and free gold absent.

Two Samples.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 12.—Q.: Kindly let me know through your column of The Times if the samples I am sending you are rutile. Some times ago you advised me to look out for rutile. Remember? R.

A.: You are right; owing to the ores formerly submitted carrying ilmenite we thought that you had a chance for the named mineral at your mines.

The two pebble specimens are obsidian (volcanic glass variety) and, when free from flaws, can be used as gemstones of low value. The blackish quartzitic sample is on the order of Lydian stone, or touchstone, but it is merely one-half of a small boulder consisting of silicate of iron, manganese, titaniferous iron and chromite.

Some Dirt!

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 14.—Q.: I am sending you under separate cover sample of dirt. I should be obliged if you will tell me what it is and whether of value? Your answer will greatly oblige. M.

A.: The sample gives many surprises during the tests on such granular matter. It contains microscopic sizes of Clinoclare that is somewhat malleable, with epidote and quite a per cent of microscopical silvery-lustered muscovite (potash mica.) Wet methods show that the sample is a very much altered mixture. Sulphur, with sulphates, chiefly of iron, lime, and soda carbonates; flaky ilmenite (no magnetite) and quarts, are more or less contained in the mass. Chlorite also present. Further on this "dirt" quantitative analysis should be had. There is no free gold in the mixture.

Standard Oils

No such opportunity, at prevailing prices, since 1912 (the year immediately succeeding their segregation from Standard Oil of New Jersey, the parent company,) has been afforded to buy these stocks.

Southern Pipe Line is yielding 16.8% cash income.

OUTPUT DROPS, THEN JUMPS

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Dec. 23.—That the recent decline of production of the light crude petroleum fields of North Central Texas was but a temporary feature of the industry is shown by the increase during the last few days of the output of two of those pools—Breckenridge and Burkburnett. The Breckenridge field is now giving a daily production slightly in excess of 118,000 barrels, while Burkburnett has mounted to more than 64,000 barrels. It is stated that the congested condition at Breckenridge, due to the lack of adequate pipe-line facilities, is being rapidly remedied and from now on for some time to come it may be expected that the movement of oil will show an increase. The stability of that pool is being maintained, the remarkable record of no "dusters" still holding good.

To the north of Breckenridge there is much activity in wildcatting as well as in putting down wells in proven territory. While the daily production of the wells in the northern localities is below that of Breckinridge, the inducement is sufficient to cause the development of all leases. Among the recent completions at Breckenridge is the well of W. G. Fields, which is credited with a daily output of 3000 barrels, and that of the Fensland Oil Company, which shows 1600 barrels, with the hole only thirty feet in the lime.

STANDING IN OIL.

The well of the Brandon Drilling Company, in the extreme northwest part of Eastland county, is attracting considerable attention. It is reported to be standing 2000 feet in oil and the column could not be lowered by bailing. When swabbed, good results may be obtained, it is asserted.

In the Sipe Springs field, which up to this time has been something of a disappointment to operators, several companies are pursuing their efforts to obtain good production. This is also true as to Rising Star. The Sun Company, the Invincible Oil Company and the Humble Oil and Refining Company are among the larger concerns that are now working to bring in wells in those two fields.

The Pioneer Production and Development Company and the Azner Oil Company brought in small producers in the Burkburnett field. In the shallow field at Electra the Virginia Oil Association, the Gulf Production Company and the Gladiolus Oil Company have brought in wells, that of the latter company having a daily production of 250 barrels from the 960-foot sand.

FOR PIPE LINE.

That the well of the Humphreys Petroleum Company, near Mexia in North Texas, but far removed from any previous large production, may mark the beginning of a large field is shown by the fact that the Texas Company is preparing to run a branch pipe line to the well, to connect with its trunk line eighteen miles east of the well. There is much activity in securing leases in the Mexia territory and big prices are being paid for near-in stuff. It is stated that the well of the Humphreys Petroleum Company will not be finished until early in January, and until then it will not be known how large is its production. It has been flowing by heads in its incomplete state.

In the heavy crude fields of the Gulf Coast region, the most notable completion during the last several days was that of the Humble Oil Refining Company at West Columbia, which opened with a flow of 15,000 barrels a day and is continuing at the rate of 13,000 barrels. The Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company brought in a well of 5000 barrels daily production at Damon Mound. The International Oil Company and the Baker Oil Company brought in good producers at Goose Creek. In the Hull field the Gulf Production Company completed a 1000-barrel well. Wells of smaller capacity were brought in there by the Monarch Oil and Refining Company, the Humble Oil and Refining Company and the Empire Gas and Fuel Company.

NEED MORE TANKS FOR OIL TRADE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Dec. 23.—It is shown by reports just compiled here that the total oil shipments from Mexico for the month of November were 16,151,294 barrels, as compared with 17,050,948 barrels for the month of October. This falling off in shipment is not attributed to any decline of production but to lack of tank steamships to carry the product, it is stated. The shipments for November by companies were as follows:

Transcontinental Oil Company, 2,241,628 barrels, a decrease of 251,448 barrels as compared with its October shipments; Island Oil and Transport Corporation, 1,346,790 barrels, a decrease of 8829 barrels; National Petroleum Corporation, 83,226 barrels, a decrease of 31,759 barrels; New England Fuel Oil Company, 150,524 barrels, an increase of 39,989 barrels; East Coast Oil Company, 436,104 barrels, a decrease of 2081 barrels; Agwi Oil Company, subsidiary of the Atlantic Gulf West Indies Steamship Company, 1,066,332 barrels, an increase of 54,207 barrels; Huasteca Petroleum Company, subsidiary of the Mexican Petroleum Company, 2,427,974 barrels, a decrease of 611,106 barrels; Mexican Gulf Oil Company, 1,193,502 barrels, a decrease of 224,979 barrels; Cortes La Atlantic companies, 1,152,415 barrels, a decrease of 102,483 barrels; Corona Oil Company, subsidiary of the Royal Dutch-Shell, 611,117 barrels, a decrease of 22,981 barrels; Mexican Aguila, (Eagle) Oil Company, 2,456,859 barrels, an increase of 347,401 barrels; Pierce Navigation Company, subsidiary of Pierce Oil Corporation, 106,771 barrels, a decrease of 949,584 barrels; Penn Mex Fuel Company, 353,715 barrels, a decrease of 190,651 barrels; Cochrane & Harper, 72,549 barrels, a decrease of 87,068 barrels; the Texas Company, 1,281,623 barrels, an increase of 26,154 barrels; Freeport and Mexican Fuel Oil Corporation, 801,456 barrels, an increase of 71,896 barrels; National Oil Corporation, 259,691 barrels, an increase of 28,310 barrels.

MORE WELLS DRILLING.

STATE SUPERVISOR'S REPORT SHOWS INCREASING ACTIVITIES.

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor McLaughlin during the week ending December 18, show twenty-two new wells started, compared to thirteen during the previous week. The total new wells this year is 869, compared to 682 the same date last year.

Tests for water shut-off numbered twenty-four, compared to thirty-one during the previous week. Yearly total to date, 1209; total to same date last year, 1036.

Deepening or redrilling jobs numbered eighteen, compared to twelve during the preceding week. Total to date this year, 856; total to same date last year, 803.

Wells abandoned numbered seven, compared to three during the preceding week. Total to date this year, 198; total to same date last year, 212.

FLASHES.

THRILLS PLUS SMILES.

"YANKEE IN KING ARTHUR'S COURT" SUPERLATIVE.

By Grace Kingsley.

Hurrah for Mark Twain, and for "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court!" Then throw in a couple of hurrahs for Emmett Flynn, director, and Harry Myers, star. For, hark ye, the most brilliant comedy drama in the history of picturedom is here, and "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" is it.

The picture's on view at Miller's and the big audiences are fairly pulling the house down.

"Make 'em laugh, make 'em cry, make 'em thrill!" D. W. Griffith said once, and the Yankee does all three superlatively. Its comedy has Charlie Chaplin's brilliant aliveness and great common human touch; it has lightning flashes of William de Mille's fine whimsy; it has moments as great as some of Griffith's own; it has touches of "Miracle Man," spiritual vision, and yet it is much more, for it is all Mark Twain.

In this film Twain lives again, and though he has gone before, has triumphed as the greatest picture story writer the world has seen. The adapter's hand, though it took some liberties, eliminating, for instance, the religious satire, seems fairly inspired.

That's doubtless where Emmett Flynn's genius comes in, too. One can fairly hear dear old Mark Twain chuckle at some of the down-to-the-minute points which the director has made in transferring to the screen the brilliant conception of the common-sense, practical, latter-day Yankee, with all his inventiveness and knowledge of work-a-day paraphernalia, being hurled into that realm of romance and age of chivalry most vividly represented to our latter-day ideas by the tales of King Arthur's court.

Never even at a premiere of a Charlie Chaplin picture have I seen a house more rocked with laughter than at "The Yankee;" for instance, when the boss extricates himself from his threatened fate of being burned at the stake by hurling the threat at the king that he will darken the sun, remembering happily at the thrilling moment that an eclipse is due at the very minute at which he is supped to be burned, nor have I seen it more thrilled either than at the eclipse scene.

But it's when the boss meets the wicked Sir Sagamore in the tournament, and beats him by lassoing him and dragging him around the arena that the audience yells its joyfullest!

As for the cast, that, too, seems to have been chosen with inspiration. Harry Myers is the sturdy, capable, resourceful, yet chivalrous Yankee to perfection. He is so vivid, so effective, yet so un-actory! And his sense of comedy is quite superlative. No more appealing and soul-satisfying Sandy could have been found than Pauline Starke.

William V. Mong does a superlative bit of character work as Merlin; George Siegemann is even more cleverly villainous than usual as Sir Sagamore; Charles Gordon is picture perfect and ideal as Clarence, the page; Charles Clary is impressive as well as subtle as King Arthur; Rosemary Theby is the hard-hearted, but alluring queen to the life, and the minor parts are equally well done.

BEBE DANIELS EXTRA LOVELY AT CLUNE'S.

Never has Bebe Daniels been better suited with a photoplay than she was when Realart chose that charming little satirical comedy, "O Lady, Lady," by Messrs. Bolton and Wodehouse, for her to transfer to the screen. It is drawing large crowds at Clune's Broadway. As the country girl, turned into a successful actress, forgetful of her old lover, who, when he becomes a great artist, forgets her too, but whom she tries to rescue from a supposedly designing woman, she is at her best.

The crux of the comedy is the situation in which the actress, having mischievously telephoned her forgetful lover on the eve of his marriage, that she is coming over to tell him what she thinks of him, and thereafter hearing from a friend that a designing woman is after him, promises to impersonate an angry adventuress, so as to get him out of the clutches of the mean woman and save him for his sweetheart, never guessing it was she herself who was supposed to be mean.

The piece is admirably played by everybody in the cast. Walter Hiers, who really is a star whether any director has named him that or not, is delightful as the troubled artist lover; Harrison Ford plays the actress's lover delightfully; gracious Lillian Langdon portrays an unsympathetic role in a manner to show that she is an actress, even if we do love to see her as a good woman.

But there's one player I want to speak about especially, and that's that cutie little Charlotte Woods. The child is not only vividly effective and an ingenuish flapper to the life, but she has moments when she positively sparkles. We expect big things of this little girl.

Maj. Campbell directed, and made a mighty good job of it.

ROGERS NATURAL IN "GUILE OF WOMEN."

The eminently "natural" actor, Will Rogers, is with us again this week at the California, and in a picture story eminently suited to his easy, humorous, pathetic manner of characterization. This is "The Guile of Women" turned into a photoplay by E. A. Bingham from a story by Peter Clark MacFarlane, and directed by Clarence Badger.

We all know, by this time, that all the Rogers characters are pretty much alike—as alike as peas in a pod, in truth—and that they are always Will Rogers himself. But as Rogers has a personality, the most engaging in the world, one whose delightful and expected sameness custom cannot stale, we protest against any effort on his part to become an actor.

As Hjalmar Maartens, affectionately known as Yal, a big-hearted Swedish sailor, he does not differ by a hair from Cupid, the cowpuncher—but what of that? He's still Will Rogers, and that's enough for us.

Yal sends a thousand dollars from San Francisco to his sweetheart, Hulda Swanson, in Sweden, but Hulda doesn't come, and so he saves three thousand more and sets up Annie Hanson in a delicatessen, with the idea that he is to marry her instead of Hulda. But Annie double-crosses him, and he is disconsolate—and then, the long-lost Hulda turns up!

And when he is ready to marry her he is shanghaied—he calls it hoodwinked—but by jumping into San Francisco Bay and seizing a passing tug he arrives at the wedding on the very minute.

Among the male actors is Bert Sprotte, who, as Skole, Yal's cynical sailor friend, may almost be said to divide honors with Will Rogers himself, so true to type is he. Moreover, Skole looks like a Swede, which Yal really does not.

Charming Hulda looks like one, too, a fascinating, blonde, golden-haired Swedish maiden. No wonder Yal couldn't forget her, even when he was under the spell of Annie Hanson, equally good-looking, but not so blonde as Hulda. Mary Warren and Doris Pawn play these enchantresses, Miss Warren being Hulda.

Other good people in the cast are Lionel Belmore, as Armstrong, the ineffectual villain of the story; Nick Cogley as Capt. Stahl, and Charles Emily as the kindly Capt. Larsen.

On the same bill is Booth Tarkington's irrepressible Edgar, this time in a Christmas episode of appalling misadventures entitled "Edgar's Little Saw." Then there is that artistically attractive "Revue Petite," in which Paisley Noon and Julienne Johnston dance a Spanish tango in a very tempestuous and colorful way. Grant McKay plays superbly on the piano, his offering being Liszt's "Liebestraum." Four ladies gowned a la Watteau's shepherdesses dance lightly to his playing.

A thoroughly good program from start to finish.

REVIEWS.

DESMOND REGISTERS SUCCESS IN "SLIPPY McGEE."

By Edwin Schallert.

The "safe and sane" crook melodrama has apparently arrived. Even the most sensitive person may sit through the four acts of "Slippy McGee," which had its premiere Saturday night at the Little Theater, without being startled once. Not a shot is fired during the play, in which the chief excitement, as from time immemorial, is the rescue of the papers, this being done with the muffler on tight on noise.

"Slippy McGee" is yet another of the plays being tested out by Oliver Morosco in Los Angeles. It is an adaptation from the novel of Marie Conway Oemler by Edward E. Rose. It was presented with a cast which, with one or two exceptions, manifested excellent spirit in the first night performance. The honors of the presentation fell chiefly to William Desmond, who played the title role. Really many of us had forgotten what a splendid stage actor Mr. Desmond is until his return, and unquestionably his vigorous and vital portrayal had much to do with the enthusiasm that greeted the play.

There are possibilities in Morosco's latest production even though it inclines toward a copying of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," and other plays of that type. But much of the natural force of the regeneration theme employed is lost through redundant talk and action.

As it stands there is too much of this play and not enough. The first two acts drag their way along, with hardly a single dramatic explosion. All the clashes take place off stage, and this Greek-tragedy stuff doesn't make palatable melodramatic material. It looks as if Mr. Rose were afraid that his production might run amuck of the blue laws if he got too violent.

Everybody likes to see a man's soul saved but it should be done with action and not with long arguments. There is evident sincerity in the spirit of this piece, and it is rich in the illumination of goodness, but there is too much sentiment and not enough strong-arm stuff about it all.

There is cleverness, of course, in the trick in the last act where the priest volunteers to assist the safe-breaker in securing the return of the girl's letters, and this alone suggests interesting material for a one-act play, but the suspense is held in check so long that the climax is not strong enough to redeem the unnecessary delays suffered through the earlier acts.

The chief enjoyment afforded by the cast, outside of Mr. Desmond, was in the instances of John H. Elliott, who appeared as Father Jean Rance, and Mary MacIver as Betty thereafter hearing from a friend that a designing woman is after him, promises to impersonate an angry adventuress, so as to get him out of the clutches of the mean woman and save him for his sweetheart, never guessing it was she herself who was supposed to be mean.

The piece is admirably played by everybody in the cast. Walter Hiers, who really is a star whether any director has named him that or not, is delightful as the troubled artist lover; Harrison Ford plays the actress's lover delightfully; gracious Lillian Langdon portrays an unsympathetic role in a manner to show that she is an actress, even if we do love to see her as a good woman.

But there's one player I want to speak about especially, and that's that cutie little Charlotte Woods. The child is not only vividly effective and an ingenuish flapper to the life, but she has moments when she positively sparkles. We expect big things of this little girl.

Maj. Campbell directed, and made a mighty good job of it.

ROGERS NATURAL IN "GUILE OF WOMEN."

The eminently "natural" actor, Will Rogers, is with us again this week at the California, and in a picture story eminently suited to his easy, humorous, pathetic manner of characterization. This is "The Guile of Women" turned into a photoplay by E. A. Bingham from a story by Peter Clark MacFarlane, and directed by Clarence Badger.

We all know, by this time, that all the Rogers characters are pretty much alike—as alike as peas in a pod, in truth—and that they are always Will Rogers himself. But as Rogers has a personality, the most engaging in the world, one whose delightful and expected sameness custom cannot stale, we protest against any effort on his part to become an actor.

As Hjalmar Maartens, affectionately known as Yal, a big-hearted Swedish sailor, he does not differ by a hair from Cupid, the cowpuncher—but what of that? He's still Will Rogers, and that's enough for us.

Yal sends a thousand dollars from San Francisco to his sweetheart, Hulda Swanson, in Sweden, but Hulda doesn't come, and so he saves three thousand more and sets up Annie Hanson in a delicatessen, with the idea that he is to marry her instead of Hulda. But Annie double-crosses him, and he is disconsolate—and then, the long-lost Hulda turns up!

And when he is ready to marry her he is shanghaied—he calls it hoodwinked—but by jumping into San Francisco Bay and seizing a passing tug he arrives at the wedding on the very minute.

Among the male actors is Bert Sprotte, who, as Skole, Yal's cynical sailor friend, may almost be said to divide honors with Will Rogers himself, so true to type is he. Moreover, Skole looks like a Swede, which Yal really does not.

Charming Hulda looks like one, too, a fascinating, blonde, golden-haired Swedish maiden. No wonder Yal couldn't forget her, even when he was under the spell of Annie Hanson, equally good-looking, but not so blonde as Hulda. Mary Warren and Doris Pawn play these enchantresses, Miss Warren being Hulda.

Other good people in the cast are Lionel Belmore, as Armstrong, the ineffectual villain of the story; Nick Cogley as Capt. Stahl, and Charles Emily as the kindly Capt. Larsen.

On the same bill is Booth Tarkington's irrepressible Edgar, this time in a Christmas episode of appalling misadventures entitled "Edgar's Little Saw." Then there is that artistically attractive "Revue Petite," in which Paisley Noon and Julienne Johnston dance a Spanish tango in a very tempestuous and colorful way. Grant McKay plays superbly on the piano, his offering being Liszt's "Liebestraum." Four ladies gowned a la Watteau's shepherdesses dance lightly to his playing.

A thoroughly good program from start to finish.

By Edwin Schallert.

The "safe and sane" crook melodrama has apparently arrived. Even the most sensitive person may sit through the four acts of "Slippy McGee," which had its premiere Saturday night at the Little Theater, without being startled once. Not a shot is fired during the play, in which the chief excitement, as from time immemorial, is the rescue of the papers, this being done with the muffler on tight on noise.

"Slippy McGee" is yet another of the plays being tested out by Oliver Morosco in Los Angeles. It is an adaptation from the novel of Marie Conway Oemler by Edward E. Rose. It was presented with a cast which, with one or two exceptions, manifested excellent spirit in the first night performance. The honors of the presentation fell chiefly to William Desmond, who played the title role. Really many of us had forgotten what a splendid stage actor Mr. Desmond is until his return, and unquestionably his vigorous and vital portrayal had much to do with the enthusiasm that greeted the play.

SENNETT OUTBURST AT KINEMA THEATER.

If the duty of the wife is to love, honor and obey, then that of the husband is to "Love, Honor and Behave," which is the name of the current cheerful attraction at the Kinema Theater. It is another of Mack Sennett's expanded comedy productions, and the laugh-seeker is going to miss considerable joyfulness associated with the holidays who doesn't view it.

Mack Sennett is evidently making certain of a moral for his comedies, if one may judge by the introductory title to his current release quoted at the start of this review. One beauty is, that he gives you the moral at the start and then lets you laugh your way through the exposition. Seriously considered, this allows you less to look forward to, but much more to look back on, which is quite proper when one is speaking about misbehaving. But as a Sennett five-reeler is not to be considered too seriously, you may safely park your worries outside and learn to "Love, Honor and Behave," without its inducing brain fag.

The story is mostly cut-back. Charles Murray as His Honor, the Judge, tells what he considers a worth-while experience of his own to a young couple intent on getting a divorce. Of course, the judge stretches his imagination to the limit on his tale, but every time he does something comes off with a snap and a bang, and the audience calls for another side order of the Sennett jazz.

The comedy is rare, well done, and even raw in spots—not so raw though, as it is rare, and not so rare as it is well done. The raw spots won't need any healing, because some people like their fun in the rough. And the principle of slapstick is that, though you can't make everybody laugh all the time, you can make somebody laugh most of the time, and cause everybody to laugh whenver you put over a new gag. Many of the gags in "Love, Honor and Behave," are new, or at least they seem fresh, for the cold storage plant at the Sennett lot is always in good working order.

Keatonesque Acrobat.

Tillyou and Rogers present a mixture of versatile bits entitled, "Show Me," including comedy talk, dances and some tumbling. Inman and Cunningham are a pair of funmakers, who sing and talk entertainingly, and the Vivian Sisters offer violin and bass viol selections that please.
